House Fight Is Expected On Tax Bill Surrender

Conferees Reported To Have Accepted Higher Surcharge On Corporate Profits

Details of almost complete House surrender in conference to major provisions of the Senate tax bill yesterday foreshadowed a sharp Congressional skirmish when the House returns to business on Monday.

Officially, a secrecy lid was still on the informal agreement reached Thursday, but the House group was reliably reported to have yielded not only to lower individual exemptions but to steepened corporate surtaxes and other key Senate changes.

The secrecy rule, it was learned, was adopted to ward off any opposition drive to upset the agreement when the House meets Monday. As House conferees have never formally been appointed, this might be attempted by a motion to bind them to House tax provisions when the chamber officially sends the bill to conference on Monday.

Reported Concessions

Controversial provisions reported tentatively decided in the Senate's favor included:

Reduction of individual income tax exemptions to $750 for single persons and $1500 for married couples with the Senate-approved version of House surtax rates merged with the special 10 per cent tax.

Increase in corporate surtaxes on companies earning under $25,000 from the 5 per cent proposed by the House to the 6 per cent Senate rate, and raising of the rate on companies making more than $25,000 from 6 to 7 per cent.

Elimination from the House bill of the special 10 per cent tax on concerns whose earnings have improved but not sufficiently to be subject to the excess profits tax.

House Items Dropped

Although the Senate was reported to have yielded on a number of excise tax items and technical changes, and reportedly had granted a compromise on wine rates, the special House taxes on radio broadcasting time and billboards were stricken out.

Senator Byrd's amendment, setting up a 14-man joint committee to effect nondefense economies, remained intact.

One unofficial estimate of the revenue now in the bill placed its total at about $3,550,000,000, against the $3,216,400,000 approved by the House and $3,280,900,000 as the bill passed the Senate.

Report Set for Monday

Present plans call for formal appointment of House conferees Monday morning, and another session of conferees Monday afternoon to report the bill officially. The proposal is to approve finally the conference report in the House on Tuesday. Unless complications develop, the Senate may take action the same day.

Lowered exemptions were never voted on in the House, and leadership fears had been that political volatility of the reform might bring a House test of the conference agreement. Should the House vote to bind its conferees to present law tax exemptions, the agreement would be reopened in conference.

Henderson Pegs Hard-Coal Prices

Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday froze anthracite prices at present levels, thereby blocking a proposed increase of 15 cents a ton which was set to go into effect Monday.

He said the hard coal operators had failed to furnish his office data justifying the proposed increase.

Trade Unions Hit

Mass Arrests Made to Stem Norse Revolt

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 12.—The Germans are resorting to mass arrests in an attempt to halt the spirit of revolt racing across Norway and forestall a threatened gigantic conflict, border advices said tonight.

[Fighting already has occurred, according to the British Broadcasting Company, which in a broadcast heard in New York last night, said that a German munitions depot "north of Everking" had been stormed by a group of Norwegian patriots, and that seven airplanes had been destroyed and many German soldiers had been killed at an adjacent airport.

[It added that "near Stavanger a freight train loaded with food and supplies for German garrisons was destroyed by sabotage."]

Angered by repressive measures to block a general strike and the execution of two labor leaders Wednesday, Norway's 350,000 trade union members were said to be fanning opposition to the Quisling puppet regime.

Although official accounts said strikes had been halted and "there were no episodes of any kind," a dispatch received in Stockholm said the situation was grave.

"Everyone seems decided not to submit to the Quisling mastery and everything indicates a gigantic conflict in the next few days between the opposition and the Quisling rule," said a message from a Norwegian journalistic source.

Ludwig Buland, vice president of the labor federation, was sentenced to death and then pardoned by Joseph Terboven, Nazi gauleiter for

Inquiry Will Weed Out D. C. Detectives

Plan Is Disclosed As Keck, Former Head, Is Promoted

By John Singerhoff,
Post Staff Writer

Appointment of a three-man board to investigate the records of Washington's 70 detective sergeants "to eliminate deadwood," is contemplated by Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police.

The Post learned of the impending inquiry from informed sources at Police Headquarters yesterday. The board will be made up of three captains with detective experience.

News of the Detective Bureau probe came a short time after the Commissioners announced the promotion of Acting Capt. Ira E. Keck to the rank of inspector and Lieut. Robert J. Barrett, Third Precinct, to the rank of captain and assistant chief of detectives.

Keck, who was acting chief of detectives for three months before the appointment of Inspector Richard H. Mansfield, was elevated to fill a vacancy left by the retirement last spring of Inspector William E. Holmes.

Keck's Job to Barrett

Barrett will fill Keck's former position as assistant detective chief and will hold the rank and receive the pay of a captain, though he remains a lieutenant on the roles of the Civil Service Commission.

The Commissioners yesterday also announced that Capt. Clement P. Cox, Eighth Precinct, who was promoted temporarily several months ago when Capt. Lloyd Kelly was called to active military duty, had been given a permanent status. He was named in the vacancy created by the promotion of Mansfield.

Keck yesterday actually was promoted twice. He was only an act-

Nazi Gains Menace Kiev From Rear

By the Associated Press

The Russians, while claiming to have the better of it generally all along the eastern front, acknowledged early Saturday their withdrawal from Chernigov, 80 miles northeast of Kiev along the lower central front.

This meant that the Nazis had crossed the Dnieper above the Ukrainian capital, extending 30 miles beyond the river a salient from which a flanking attack could be made to the southeast to take the Kiev defenders from behind.

All this, however, was well to the south of the main Russian counteroffensive in the Gomel-Smolensk area and did not imply any check of that operation.

Nazis Stress Difficulties

German reports emphasized the difficulties being met in mud, rain and bad terrain but insisted that "still more heavy" Nazi blows would fall before winter sets in.

Moscow, in a series of optimistic reports, declared:

That the Russian Baltic fleet had entered heavily into the defense of Leningrad, bombarding German troop concentrations and tank columns on the city's approaches and beating back the German navy.

That the full power of the Nazi offensive could not much longer be sustained in that theater in the face of losses which the Soviet spokesman, S. A. Lozovsky, described as the greatest ever suffered by German arms. "The struggle," he added, "has assumed such a character and dimensions that the Germans cannot conduct it long."

That Russian guerrillas slipping out of the Estonian swamps had disrupted Nazi communications 150 miles behind the front.

Report Dnieper Recrossed

That the long Red counteroffensive at the center still was going on and that in the south a new counteroffensive had been loosed, Russian troops having recrossed the Dnieper River to the west at four points, capturing a strategic island and two villages. More than half of the 16 Nazi-allied divisions thrown against Odessa on the Black Sea had been annihilated, Lozovsky asserted.

Against all this, the Germans offered these claims:

That in the drive on Leningrad a Russian town and two Red field positions had been captured by an army corps that had to dispose of 6700 land mines in two days and that the Russians three times had been thrown back bloodily in attempts to cross the Volhov River between Leningrad and Novgorod to the south.

That at the center Russian forces acknowleged to be strong were under German artillery fire.

That in the south, along the lower Dnieper, Soviet troops had been bombed by German planes which scouted all the way eastward to the Crimean Peninsula and in the process destroyed 29 railroad stations and tore up communications generally.

From his field headquarters Adolf Hitler made a written appeal for contributions to the annual winter relief fund which, although he spoke of great victories, had in it indications of considerable concern.

The German armies, he said, were "fighting from northernmost Europe to the shores of the Black Sea against an enemy who is not human but is made up of beasts."

Axis Will Now Have to Strike First, Declares Duce's Editor

By the Associated Press

Official invective and a statement that U-boats have sunk 22 ships out of a British Atlantic convoy in a continuing attack constituted Germany's reply last night to President Roosevelt's announcement that the United States Navy will shoot at Axis sea raiders and submarines on sight.

[The British admiralty, denying any such number of ships had been sunk, pointed out, according to International News Service, that similar German assertions in the past have proved "exaggerated." The admiralty said that on the last such occasion, the Germans said 17 ships had been sunk but the actual losses turned out to be only four.—Editor's note.]

For most of the day the Germans kept silent, letting the special high command communique about the convoy stand as their only reply to the President.

Finally, an authorized spokesman burst out in a statement climaxed with: "All Roosevelt's contentions are lies. . . . The President of the United States is a hypocrite" and his position on freedom of the seas is "the peak of hypocrisy."

Mr. Roosevelt, the Nazi said, must bear the responsibility "for all consequences" and Germany will decide what happens next.

Axis to Hit First

German's chief Axis partner, Italy, replied to the President through Virginio Gayda, fascist editor, who wrote that every Italian or German warship must attack first "for its self defense," if it cannot escape American attack.

The Japanese, who had looked forward to the speech as an answer to questions on Far Eastern trends, expressed disappointment that it contained no word on progress of Japanese-American talks.

The Japan Times and Advertiser, English-language organ of the foreign office, said the President disclosed "the initiation of undeclared war in effectively blockaded zones." The newspaper declared that President Roosevelt "created his own law and now defends it on a new principle of freedom of the seas—freedom to attack any foreign warship if he thinks it intends to attack American ships."

Despite the Vichy French government's decision to collaborate with the German conqueror of France, French circles commented sotto voce that the Roosevelt stand was "both logical and straightforward."

An authorized Vichy source said the speech was "destined to prepare American public opinion for the need to run new risks," but a spokesman explained the absence of full official reaction by pointing out that Roosevelt had not mentioned France or her colonies.

Spy Trial Hears How Nazis Pressed G-Men For Information on U. S. Planes and Deliveries

Chile Arrests 21 As Nazi Leaders And Seizes Arms

By the Associated Press

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 12.—Chilean police investigating activities harmful to domestic security tonight announced the arrest of 21 alleged Nazi leaders in Chile and the seizure of arms and ammunition in raids at Antofagasta.

Confiscated documents also disclosed the existence of both a women's and men's Nazi organization, police said. Other "valuable documents" were said to have been found in a beehive on the farm of one German citizen at Osorno.

Those held are German citizens who are prominent in society and Chilean commerce.

Walter Boettger, German Embassy commercial attache, was described as head of the groups, but investigators said his diplomatic functions placed him "outside the reach of justice."

Hamburg Gestapo Asked for Charts Of American Waters

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 12.—The overwhelming concern of the German espionage system for American production of airplanes and their delivery to Britain in 1940 gave way in 1941 to a desire for information about the American air force itself and charts of American waters, it was disclosed today at the trial of 16 men charged with espionage conspiracy.

[Revelation that the German Gestapo had obtained plans and photographs of a new American bomb was reported by the United Press. It said one message introduced at the trial read:

["Who supplied plans and photos of new bomb sent us? Who produces it and where?"—Editor's note.]

In 1940, according to the messages exchanged by headquarters in Germany and a "spy" radio station on Long Island, the Hamburg Gestapo station demanded information ranging from weather conditions (which were asked to be broadcast daily) to plane and parts production of all the leading aircraft companies. Deliveries to Britain were stressed.

About the time agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation cracked down upon the spy ring—into which they had planted themselves firmly through counterespionage measures—Hamburg was demanding information about defense strength in Canada and the United States, size of forces, amount of equipment and shipyard locations and production.

Wondered About Africa

In February of this year, the messages indicated, Germany's interest in shipments was intensified. Hamburg asked particularly about war materials being sent to Africa and wondered whether the consignees were friendly or inimical to Germany.

From the messages placed in evidence, it appeared that the FBI specialized in minimizing or denying information about which the Hamburg station had inquired.

Thus, the FBI said that the aircraft carrier Saratoga was stationed in the Pacific and had not, as the German headquarters had heard, delivered planes to Halifax.

Obligingly, the FBI carried out an assignment to "observe" the French liner Normandie, which has been tied up to her New York pier for about two years.

Asked About Bombsight

Often asked was information on the "new bombsight," details of which United States Attorney Harold M. Kennedy charged had been given Germany by one defendant.

Some of the requests were for military journals but there were also demands for figures considered secret on the monthly production of Grumman, Republic, Curtiss, Bell, Lockheed and other fighting planes, the rate and manner of delivery to England, and any new devices that might have been used.

Hamburg also wanted minute specifications of a new steel and rubber armor plate, hydraulic de-

Secret Air Field In Colombia Held By Nazi Doctor

Copyright by New York Times

Bogota, Colombia, Sept. 12.—The secret landing field in Colombia threatening the Panama Canal mentioned by President Roosevelt in his speech last night is located 17 miles from the Atlantic port of Cartagena, according to a reliable report here.

The field is about an hour's flying time for bombers from the canal and is built on a ranch named Bolivar, in honor of the Latin-American liberator, but is owned by a pro-Nazi German doctor, Hans Neumeuller.

The minister of war of Colombia, in a statement to the press, said the government can control possible dangers and remedy the situation, although he did not state what action was being taken.

Dr. Neumeuller has lived 15 years in Colombia. He founded a hospital in Cartagena and owns a number of ranches in that neighborhood.

Supply Mission Sent to Russia By Roosevelt

18 Men Instructed To Make Hitler's Downfall Certain

President Roosevelt yesterday dispatched an 18-man supply mission to Russia with instructions to arrange for sending weapons to the Soviets until the downfall of Hitlerism is assured.

There were many indications after a White House conference between the President and the mission's leaders that Russia may receive lease-lend supplies indirectly, but will not be a direct beneficiary of that program. The signs were that Great Britain will make available large quantities of her lend-lease supplies to the Soviets, since they are carrying the brunt of the land and air warfare against Germany at the present time.

W. Averell Harriman, chairman of the mission, declared after the meeting that aid to Russia will have no time limit, but will continue until "ultimate victory."

Oumansky Calls

Immediately after conferring with the mission to Russia, the President met with the Soviet Ambassador, Constantine A. Oumansky, who is returning to report to his government. Oumansky called to present three leading members of the Russian technical mission which flew here from Moscow via Alaska.

Harriman disclosed that his five-man mission and technical assistants

Harbor of Abidjan, With Dakar, Will Put Bracket on Freetown

By Taylor Henry
Associated Press Staff Writer

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Sept. 12.—The French announced tonight that work was being rushed to transform Abidjan on Africa's Ivory Coast into "one of the most secure natural harbors in the world."

With the base at Dakar, Senegal, it will bracket the strategic British port of Freetown.

Work has been going on at great speed on the Abijan harbor since June, it was said. When completed it will permit the biggest ships to base in the sheltered lagoon, to which a broad channel is being cut.

(In New York the Associated Press heard yesterday that France, Germany and Spain had worked out elaborate plans for joint defense of West Africa. Fear that the United States and Britain would some day try to seize bases in the French, Spanish and Portuguese possessions motivated the plans, it was said.

(Tripower staff talks were understood to have resulted in the setting up of a permanent joint staff at Melilla, Morocco, and a flow of German arms to French Morocco, to Spain's Rio de Oro and Dakar.)

The announcement of Abidjan harbor work by an official news agency followed allotment of 128 million francs, largely for the improvement of the Dakar base, to which Foreign Legion reinforcements were recently sent.

French sources said the work on the new harbor ought to be finished in "two years at the outside."

Dakar is already much larger than the Sierra Leone port of Freetown.

Former Danish Freighter Hit; Attacked Before Roosevelt Spoke

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Scarcely 18 hours after President Roosevelt proclaimed a policy of "shooting on sight" at German and Italian warships in "American defensive waters," the State Department yesterday revealed another torpedo attack on American shipping in the sub-infested sea lane to Iceland.

The latest challenge to the American policy of "freedom of the seas," occurring 12 hours before the President's momentous speech of Thursday night, was the torpedoing of a second American-owned freighter flying the flag of Panama. The attacker was not immediately identified as German.

The S. S. Montana, sister ship of the sunken Sessa, was torpedoed at 8:45 a. m. Thursday east of Greenland, 40 miles from the spot where the Sessa went down August 17, according to a Navy Department message. The crew of 26, which included no Americans, took the boats.

There was no doubt that the attack took place in the "American defensive waters" that President Roosevelt has vowed to sweep clean of German and Italian "rattlesnakes."

The news electrified a Cabinet meeting at the White House. President Roosevelt read them a dispatch that was handed to him in the midst of the session.

This newest attack, which occurred just 12 hours before the President announced that the Navy

Mexico Proposes Joint Defense Plan

Mexico City, Sept. 12 (AP).—Immediate preparation of a joint defense plan for the Americas was urged today in a note issued by the Mexican foreign office commenting favorably on President Roosevelt's "shoot first" speech against Axis sea marauders.

Measures announced by President Roosevelt "reveal to the Americas the growing proximity of war," the note said. "They lead us to think that immediate events, which will last for no one knows how long, are events of a war of continents."

The nations of the Western Hemisphere, under these circumstances, the note said, "should prepare a joint economy and common defense with the utmost rapidity."

Sailors to Strike For War Bonus

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 12.—John Hawk, national secretary of the Seafarer's International Union of North America (A. F. L.), announced today the union, which claims a membership of 20,000, would call a ship strike "not later than tomorrow morning."

He said locals in Atlantic and Gulf ports had approved the walkout, designed to force shipowners to increase bonuses paid for going into belligerent waters.

First ships to be affected would be the Evangeline, Trader and Banner of the Alcoa Steamship Co., Hawk said. The Evangeline is due to sail tomorrow for Bermuda and the other two within a few days for the British West Indies.

Three California Plane Makers Grant $65,000,000 Pay Boost

By the United Press

Los Angeles, Sept. 12.—Three major airplane factories in Southern California disclosed tonight in separate announcements that they are giving employes blanket salary rises of 10 cents an hour retroactive to July 1.

The wage increases were announced by Vultee Aircraft, Douglas Aircraft and Lockheed-Vega Airplane Companies. The announcements said that the increases had been approved in Washington today by the Office of Production Management and the War and Navy Departments.

Vultee workers are affiliated with the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers Union, while the Lockheed-Vega workers are mainly members of the A. F. L. Aeronautical Lodge. At Douglas no bargaining agency has yet been recognized.

The increases will cost the three aircraft companies approximately $65,000,000 during the coming year. Lockheed estimated that $24,936,079 more will be paid to workers under the new scale; Douglas estimated the increase at $25,000,000 for its factories, and it was believed that the increase would cost Vultee somewhere around $15,000,000 a year.

Vultee's general manager, C. W. Perelle, said that the blanket 10-cent increase for factory workers was negotiated with the union on the basis of a wage study by the firm since it signed a contract with the U. A. W. last fall. He said the company would give office workers a proportionate increase.

Ralph V. Hunt, controller of the Douglas Aircraft Co., said the back pay under the increase that will be given to the more than 9000 workers will total approximately 11 million dollars.

Donald W. Douglas, head of the concern, said that the increases were approved by the governmental bodies in Washington in the interests of national defense and wage stabilization in this area and were approved with the understanding that they would remain in effect for at least a year.

Temple Center Joins Drive For Sale of 1c Milk Here

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Temple Center, a juvenile and family welfare agency, was added yesterday to the list of social service organizations seeking to obtain a one-cent milk program for needy Washington children.

Mrs. Albert Fenderson, executive director, announced her intention of applying to the Department of Agriculture for provision of the penny half-pints to undernourished boys and girls who take part in the center's activities. The center is at Tenth and N Streets Northwest.

At the present time, Mrs. Fenderson explained, milk is served at the center twice weekly to approximately 60 youngsters. The only reason that the number is not larger and serving days are only two times a week is that the funds are insufficient, she declared.

A penny project, with the welfare center paying only one cent per half-pint and the difference in cost being borne by the Agriculture Department's relief milk subsidy, would have untold benefits to underfed children, according to Mrs. Fenderson.

Another sign of widening interest in the local campaign for a 1-cent milk project came yesterday with the disclosure that the Junior Board of Commerce is studying the issue.

Congressional Views Conflict

Axis Attacks Will Define Shooting Area, Hull Hints

The Administration yesterday offered no light to the Axis on the future scope of American naval defense operations as conflicting views were expressed at the Capitol on the President's intent.

Secretary Hull indicated that actions by the Axis powers themselves may determine in some degree the extent of the waters the United States may or may not find it necessary to protect.

The President Thursday night merely warned Axis raiders to enter at their peril waters "necessary for American defense."

Chairman Connally, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who participated in the conference preceding the speech, told reporters that in his opinion this did not mean convoying or United States naval patrol operations beyond the Iceland route and sea approaches to United States bases.

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, likewise declared that the United States was protecting "a limited objective" and saying to the Axis: 'Don't do any shooting in our front yard. If you want to shoot go down the road a piece'."

Senate noninterventionists meanwhile continued to assert that the President's speech meant everything from merchant convoys to American naval operations "anywhere" in the seven seas.

Senator Aiken (Republican), of Vermont, said that in ordering the Army as well as the Navy to keep

Peril From Air Is Overlooked, Expert Warns

United Press Air Analyst

New York, Sept. 12.—An aviation specialist listening to the President's historic radio address on Thursday night was of necessity deeply impressed by its logic and urgency. Better than Americans in other callings, we in the aeronautical field are conscious of the shrinkage of distance in the present world and consequently of our greater vulnerability to transocean military attacks.

Our Government's foreign policies are geared to this new fact of dwindling oceans and therefore, in the writer's view, are essentially realistic. The same cannot always be said of the strategic ideas which must support those policies. At points there is a striking contrast between the breadth of the President's political vision and the narrowness of some of the military ideas with which they are sometimes implemented.

For this, of course, Mr. Roosevelt cannot be held responsible. The political leadership rests on his shoulders. In military matters he necessarily relies on his entourage of experts, many of whom have not caught up with the threat to American safety represented by the rapid advances of military aviation.

At several junctures in his talk, the President recognized the role of air power, as when he said that Hitler "must wipe out our patrol on sea and in the air" in order to dominate the world.

According to German claims on their war at sea, out of a total of 13 million tons sunk by the Nazis, three and one-half million, or roughly one-quarter, have been sent to the botton by air bombers.

Percentage Accepted

Whether the total tonnage claimed as destroyed is correct, the percentage credited to the Luftwaffe may be accepted as genuine, since Hitler is too much concerned about maintaining the morale of his U-boat command to deny it credit where credit is due. That percentage, moreover, applies over a long period. Since the range and effectiveness of the Luftwaffe in the blockade of Engand has been rapidly growing, the percentage at present is undoubtedly even larger. There have been weeks when the Luftwaffe accounted for fully half the total shipping sunk, wherefore an overall average of one-third at present represents a good guess.

The aerial counter-attack, by the same logic of events, must develop correspondingly.

Air Attack More Probable

If and when we are attacked by an overseas enemy, it is far more likely to be through the air than by way of the sea lanes. Mr. Roosevelt mentioned the recent discovery of "secret air landing fields in Colombia within easy range of the Panama Canal."

If the Nazis are still fussing around with air bases close to the canal, then it is a tip-off that Nazi aerial strategy is still based on the present German short-range equipment, which failed in the battle of Britain and has its hands full in Russia.

The real danger to the Panama Canal—and to America—is not from bases in Colombia or the Caribbean, but from bases in Europe and Africa. Any bridgeheads which a potential enemy may obtain close to the United States we are prepared to annihilate even with existing American air equipment. But direct attacks across the ocean by long-range aircraft is another matter. Those we can counter only by having aircraft of similar reach and of even greater hitting power.

We must assume that potential enemies are constructing air power to the absolute limit of the present aerodynamic scope, and that happens to be a limit which makes bombing across oceans an immediate threat. We must also assume that experimental aviation on types of even larger range is being developed, which will make us accessible from all sides without any need for intermediate bases.

Early Likens Lindbergh Talk to Nazi Propaganda

President Roosevelt's press secretary yesterday accused Charles A. Lindbergh of making statements that bear "striking similarity" to the outpourings of the German propaganda machine.

The White House ire descended on Lindbergh for charges the aviator made Thursday in a speech in Des Moines, Iowa, that three groups, "the British, the Jewish and the Roosevelt Administration," were trying to plunge the country into war. Lindbergh spoke at an America First rally.

Stephen T. Early, White House secretary, had an answer phrased yesterday when he was asked for comment on the Lindbergh speech.

"You have seen the outpourings of Berlin in the last three or four days," said Early, "and you saw Lindbergh's speech last night. I think there is a striking similarity between the two."

Asked to Denounce Roosevelt Speceh, Col. Johnson Says

Col. Louis Johnson, former Assistant Secretary of War, disclosed yesterday that he had been asked by Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the America First Committee, to join in the denunciation of President Roosevelt's speech of last night. For reply, Col. Johnson told Gen. Wood that he not only approved the President's speech in full, but resented Gen. Wood's "stab in the back" effort at disuniting the American people.

Col. Johnson also charged that Charles A. Lindbergh's speech following President Roosevelt's last night was based on "false premises" and said it was "time for the Lindberghs to accept the opinions of the majority of good Americans and shut up."

Old Church Bombed, Rector's Widow, 76, Jumps to Death

By Eddy Gilmore
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 12.—They placed the ashes of Mrs. Louisa Pennington-Bickford, widow of the rector of St. Clement Danes, beside those of her husband today beneath the bomb-burned altar of their famous church.

According to evidence presented at an inquest, the widow, 76, threw herself from the window of a children's holiday home last Monday, dying, like her husband, of a broken heart.

Parishioners said that the rector's death in June was due to the fact that bombs finally ruined his beloved church in a raid in May. The church, designed by Sir Christopher Wren in 1681, was a landmark in the center of the Strand.

Mrs. Pennington-Bickford's father was rector before her husband. After her husband's death, her friends say, she prayed nightly for death.

On London trips after her husband's ashes were interred beneath the church she gave instructions that she must never be driven past St. Clement's.

Last week her driver took a wrong turn.

"Never mind," she said wearily, "I can close my eyes."

When she got back to the country that night, the servants said, she repeated over and over again, "Everything has gone."

The next day she gave instructions that if anything should happen to her, her blind dog, Nipper, was to be destroyed.

Then she wrote notes to her domestic staff giving each small personal presents.

Then she died.

'Raw Deal' for Nazis

Berlin, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Germans may have to sleep "raw" when present stocks of pajama and nightgown materials are exhausted, it was learned today. Under new regulations shops will be unable to obtain more materials when their current supplies are gone. Dressing gown also are classified as luxuries by the new regulations.

Reds Face Poor Diet

Berlin, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Russian prisoners of war will receive food inferior to that of prisoners of other nationalities, the high command and the Reich ministry of food and agricuture decreed tonight.

The measure was based on the fact that Russia did not sign the international agreement of July 27, 1929, covering treatment of war prisoners.

Officer Tells Of Hudson's U-Boat Attack

By Wing Commander L. V. Fraser,
Veteran R. A. F. Officer.
Copyright, International News Service

London, Sept. 12.—It is singularly appropriate that the first U-Boat to be brought back "alive" should have fallen victim to a Lockheed-Hudson of the Coastal Command. No aircraft have hunted submarines longer or with greater success than these American-built airliners converted for war use.

Hudsons and U-Boats are by now hereditary enemies. There have been 257 attacks on U-Boats by Coastal Command aircraft since the start of the war, many of them made by Hudsons.

An operational flight which I made recently in a Hudson was typical of thousands of other sorties. We had a report of a suspected U-Boat in a certain position in the Atlantic. There would just be time to get to the spot before dark—weather permitting—we were told.

The sea below was roughish, seared by streaks of foam and long "windlanes." There wasn't a ship in sight.

At last we reached the area where the U-boat was suspected to be lurking.

Darkness was falling when the pilot leaned suddenly forward and tipped the wingtip to the sky in a steep turn. Below us was a long streak of oil showing dark against the foam-flecked sea. We flew the length of it. It was over a mile long and one end had a curve like a short arm which appeared to be growing longer.

With the fading daylight, it was impossible to take the time for checking any movement of the oil streak. Soon we should lose it altogether, we figured.

"We will put our bombs at the end of it," said the pilot. Down we flew an daway went the bombs. They fell just ahead of the oil, where the submarine would be if she was making track.

A moment later the sea bubbled like a volcano. More oil welled up and spread a dirty patch on the surface. Big bubbles of gas or air welled up, held together for a moment and burst. Gradually the sea calmed and, as we looked back in the last light of day, white horses were breaking over the smooth oil.

Our report, of course, was inconclusive as it so often must be. But the pilot remarked as we walked away to a late supper: "You know, I liked the look of those air bubbles!"

Defense Area Up To Axis, Hull Hints

clear the sea lanes the President "seems to indicate that he might send an American expeditionary force abroad without going to Congress for a declaration of war."

Secretary Hull was asked if this Government had notified Axis powers of the specific zones in which defense steps would be taken.

Hull replied that visualization of the fact that a world movement of force is in progress, for purposes of conquest of continents and seas everywhere, makes it apparent that the attacking forces will have something to say about the areas of the sea the United States may or may not find it necessary to patrol in self-defense of this Nation and hemisphere.

He indicated that no text of the President's speech had been officially transmitted to Germany, but said he believed it would be found that Germany already had informed itself of the contents. He made clear that the German government had never officially informed this government of its declaration of a blockade of a huge area from Greenland to the Irish coast to Iceland.

Senator Connally told reporters he thought the President's warning to Hitler that the Navy would shoot first at submarines applied only to the Iceland route, and other Atlantic approaches to American sea bases.

"I don't think the President meant the waters around England, Scotland or the Azores, and those of the Mediterranean and the Red Sea," Connally said. "I don't think for instance that we will send destroyers to police the Red Sea."

If the Axis challenges American protection of the North Atlantic routes, he said there may be "serious trouble" there.

Finns Claim 454 Red Planes

Helsinki, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The Finns reported officially tonight that 454 Soviet planes and balloons have been put out of action and 30 vessels have been sunk by Finnish forces since the start of the conflict with Russia.

In land fighting the Finns said their forces have captured nearly 25,000 rifles, 2000 light machine-guns, 1000 heavy machine guns, 600 trench mortars an more than 800 guns of various other calibers, and destroyed or damaged 669 tanks.

The President's Day

By International News Service

BY DAWN'S EARLY LIGHT: While the President still slept yesterday morning, the White House staff started one of the most hectic days in its hectic history. Wires came in by the thousands, the phones jangled impatiently, reports flooded across the secretariat's desks. America was responding to Mr. Roosevelt's solemn warning of Thursday night. A radio survey showed that 67 per cent of the potential audience of 60 million were tuned in to hear the Chief Executive—the second largest rating ever tabulated.

MISSIONS WITH COFFEE: As soon as the President was up, around and breakfasted, the Russian mission led by spruce, smart-eyed W. Averell Harriman, filed in for last-minute orders replacing the usual Friday morning press conference with the President. In the Presidential study, Mr. Roosevelt told the Moscow-bound boys to stop off in London and find out how much the British could clip off their lend-lease supplies for the embattled Russians. He ordered them to bring back a full report on how all aid needed for "ultimate victory" can be given to the Soviets.

OUMANSKY AGAIN: For the second time in as many days, U. S. S. R. Ambassador Oumansky's custom-built, red cowl-striped limousine pulled up in front of the White House, deposited the Ambassador—and this time the leaders of the mysterious mission which flew to the United States by way of Siberia and Alaska. In 20 minutes they were out again and the President stuffed a big brief case with papers and started over to his office.

A. F. L.: Waiting for him at the executive offices was A. F. L. President William Green with a request. Green asked, and received a promise from the President that he would send a message to the convention opening on October 6 in Seattle, Wash., of A. F. L.ers, who may be electrified by the voice of the President addressing them directly via a telephone hookup. If not, President Green will read the message from the rostrum.

NEW GENUS: The latest thing in Vice Presidents, Assistant President Henry Wallace, came for lunch, lingered longer than the scheduled hour, held up the Cabinet meeting a few minutes.

FLASH: The Cabinet had settled down to earnest give and take on the new developments of World War II and United States angles of it when the State Department cut swiftly through to Steve Early, informed him that the S. S. Montana, sister ship of the recently sunk Sessa, has joined her in Davey Jones' locker. Scrawling the news on a slip of paper, Early pushed it into the Cabinet meeting. The President read it to himself, then aloud to his gathered trusties. Shortly afterwards the meeting broke up.

Germans Call Weather Bad, Progress Good

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Sept. 12.—The mud, rain and bad terrain of Russia were emphasized tonight in German high command reports of fighting on the eastern front, but the invasion campaign was declared still to be making good progress.

Fuehrer Hitler, in a written appeal for the annual winter relief fund, said the success of German soldiers' "sacrifice in blood, sweat, worries and privations is unheard of in world history."

Now, the statement said, "he is fighting from northernmost Europe to the shores of the Black Sea against an enemy who is not human but is made up of beasts."

Contributors, Hitler wrote, will "strengthen the front in the consciousness that the entire German people stands behind them and that their fight is not in vain."

Germans said that the present obstacles of weather were the sort which military leadership anticipates and D. N. B. said the Russians knew they would receive "still more heavy German blows before winter comes."

Reports from the front said the defenses of Leningrad still were being battered, the Germans advancing despite "stubborn resistance and widespread mine fields." D. N. B. said that fires were started in an armaments works during today's Nazi air raids.

In taking one town and two Russian field positions, one German army corps reported disposing of 6700 land mines in two days. Military quarters said the Russians were thrown back with heavy losses when they tried to cross the Volkhov River at three points north of Novgorod. The river flows from Lake Ilmen to Lake Ladoga.

Report Four Nazi Divisions Smashed Before Bryansk

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Sports Writer

Moscow (Saturday), Sept. 13.—Russians acknowledged early today their forces have retreated from Chernigov, on the lower central front, in the face of German forces pounding southward in a renewed effort to loop a noose about Kiev, capital of the Ukraine and a major Nazi objective.

Chernigov is west of the Desna River, some 80 miles northeast of the point where this stream joins the Dnieper at Kiev. The Germans struck southeast from Gomel through Chernigov with the apparent aim of sweeping down between the two rivers to the Ukraine capital.

The Red Army, however, has reported covering the approaches to Kiev with an unbroken ring of artillery and infantry defenses like those protecting Leningrad and Odessa.

By reaching Chernigov, which is on the edge of the transitional forest-steppe zone, the Germans threatened to outflank the hitherto fierce Red defense of Kiev.

The area between Kiev and Chernigov is all marsh land, but should the Germans swing southeastward they would reach the vital Kiev-Bryansk road.

[In the Bryansk area, the United Press reported, Red army forces have repulsed German attacks in a heavy battle, smashed four Nazi divisions and captured more than 200 tanks, according to official dispatches from the front.]

Chernigov is a river port, milling and manufacturing city of more than 34,000 population. It is south of the Gomel-Gelnya area on the central front where the Russians have reported they were hurling the Germans back toward Smolensk.

The early morning communique reported bitter fighting all along the front with the evacuation of Chernigov the only announced change.

Baltic Fleet Aids Army

Far to the north in the besieged Leningrad sector Russian Baltic fleet units were reported shelling German troop and tank concentrations ashore and at the same time keeping the German navy at a distance.

Several hundred Germans were drowned when Soviet naval forces rammed and sank four German cutters and two barges in the Gulf of Finland where the Germans were trying to land troops on Russian soil, the communique said.

Soviet news dispatches earlier had reported Red warships sank two German destroyers, a monitor and a transport.

German bombs crashed into Leningrad Thursday night when a few high-flying Nazi planes penetrated the city's defenses after repeated attempts, the Soviet Information Bureau said. Resulting fires quickly were extinguished and 11 German planes were shot down.

S. A. Lozovsky, vice commissar for foreign affairs and official Soviet spokesman, declared the German losses at the approaches to Leningrad were greater than Germans "ever before" had suffered.

"The struggle has assumed such a character and dimensions that the Germans cannot conduct it long," he said. "The Germans want a quick decision but they cannot obtain it."

Official reports also told of a guerrilla army springing from the Estonian swamps and disrupting German communications 150 miles behind the Leningrad front. The Germans were said to have been unable to establish telephone or telegraph connections between field headquarters and a large area about Pskov, near the Estonian border.

Nazi Barges Shelled

In a three-day action a Russian destroyer was said to have halted the German advance on Leningrad at one point by blasting at barges with which the Germans were attempting to cross a river, sinking one, damaging another and finally silencing German coastal batteries and dispersing a German concentration.

The fleet was disclosed to be maintaining a base on Oesel Island at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga, 250 miles from Leningrad. This island, which Russia leased from Estonia before the war, dominates the approaches to the Gulf of Finland.

The Russian counterattack on the central front was reported progressing steadily and a new counter-offensive was said to have been started in the south.

On the southern front, Lozovsky said Odessa "remains an impregnable fortress" with the besieging Rumanian forces "not even within shelling distance." He said more than half the 16 Rumanian divisions hurled against the city aready have been cut to pieces and that constantly arriving reinforcements were meeting the same fate.

Dnieper Recrossed

Dispatches from the southern front said the Russians had crossed the lower Dneiper at four points, captured the Island of Hortitsa between Zaporozhe and Dnieperopetrovsk, and taken the villages of Voyskovoye and Federova on the west bank. The island is celebrated in Russian history as the site of a settlement of Cossacks who organize an independent regime in the seventeenth century.

Col. I. Khitrov in a dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star told why the Russians had been able to advance so rapidly—7 to 10 miles a day—on the central front. He said the German lines were thinly held, consisting of unconnected bases.

Constant Russian artillery fire, he wrote, had kept the Germans from any deep organization of defense zones and silenced the German artillery.

Small Business, Labor Lead Fight To Keep Job Level

Chicago, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—The Nation's small businessmen joined with labor and civic leaders tonight in a "back-to-the-wall" campaign against threatened wide-scale dislocation of employment and production due to defense priorities.

Two thousand representatives of little business, labor unions and small communities throughout the country emerged from their day-long emergency conference grimly aware that their immediate welfare is secondary to national defense—to which they were reluctantly reconciled.

They created a permanent organization comprising equal representation of labor, management and civic interests and pledged it to combat the "increasing peril to essential national morale" from "defense squeezes on the little businessman."

"We believe that if at any time employment is reduced below 75 per cent of normal we shall not be able to maintain the economy and morale of our respective communities," the conference resolved.

Canada to License Its Food and Clothing Trades

Ottawa, Ontario, Sept. 12.—Canada's entire food and clothing trades are to be placed under license before the end of the year. Over 200,000 food and clothing dealers will be affected.

This step has been taken by the wartime prices and trade board to provide machinery for policing prices and for securing information necessary for the allocation of supplies in the event of shortages arising from war conditions. The board can fix or limit the terms or conditions of sale of any goods or services, can fix or limit the quantities that may be bought or sold and may suspend or cancel a license when it finds that the licensee has failed to comply with any board order or requirement.

Robert L. Haycock, acting superintendent of schools, is now forming a committee of District officials and welfare leaders who will formulate plans for school participation in the proposed low-cost milk enterprise.

Navy Allows Officers Change of Necktie

Naval officers may change their neckties for evening wear, under a formal order issued yesterday. They may wear a black bow tie after dark in place of the black four-in-hand that is regulation from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Full-dress uniforms usually worn in the evening were discarded some months ago for the duration of the emergency. This left officers with only one type of blue uniform for all occasions. They will continue to wear the same double-breasted blue suit in the evening that is worn in day time.

War Refugees Tell of Horror Aboard 'Hell Ship' in Flight From Europe

765 Voyage to N. Y. on Vessel Built to Hold 12; 5 Die on Journey

By Henry Super,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—A grimy little Spanish freighter—the "hell ship" Navemar, designed to carry only 12 passengers—warped into a Brooklyn pier late today with 765 refugees from Europe, many of whom had lost everything but the will to live.

There were 100 crew members, too, who scrambled about among garbage cans piled high with refuse as they prepared the vessel for docking after a harrowing 48-day voyage from Seville, Spain. More than 1200 pasengers were aboard the ship when it cleared Seville, but several hundred left the Navemar at Havana after sickness had broken out.

Called "Horrible"

Five persons were reported to have died during the voyage. Those who survived began streaming off the ship immediately after it docked and customs agents said it would take all night to question them and check up on their passports. There were old men, women and children. They carried meager belongings in bags, sheets and boxes. They had stories of horror to tell.

Lolita Loria, 27, a Spanish dancer, who fled from France, said she had paid $400 to sleep in the ship's hold which had no portholes and was infested with rats.

"It was horrible," she said. "Some of the people slept in lifeboats. We had no linen, not enough food and only a small amount of water."

Lily Rosenstein, a Swiss, said she slept in a a tiny cabin with 20 other persons and that only a few buckets of water were placed in the room each day.

Struggled for Water

"I got up at 4 o'clock every morning to be the first to get to the water," she said.

From a tug circling the freighter while it was flying the yellow quarantine flag before docking, doctors could be seen going about their task of giving passengers, crew and the ship herself one of the most thorough examinations ever undertaken in the port of New York.

Describing crowded conditions in the ship's holds, passengers said plank platforms had been erected in the fore and aft sections to make two levels for sleeping space. The women slept aft and the men forward.

They revealed that 16 passengers had sent a letter to the American consul at Havana complaining of the treatment they had received and charging that the owners of the ship had forced them to sign releases before they left Spain. The releases exempted the company from responsibility for injury or sickness, it was reported.

"Conditions aboard the ship were worse than in the worst slums in the world," the letter said.

Passengers who had left the ship at Havana had described it as a "hell ship" and others testified to this as it lay in quarantine.

"How was the food?" passengers lining the rail were asked.

A woman at the rail held her nose and twisted her face in a grimace.

A man nearby laughed and shouted:

"Anyhow, it was a little better than in the German concentration camps."

Many of the arrivals are refugees from Germany.

"How much did it cost you to come over," they were asked.

"Four hundred dollars . . . five hundred dollars . . . six hundred dollars," the passengers shouted in a babel of voices.

Some Paid $1000

It had been reported that some of the refugees were charged up to $1000 for the trip, paying the fare with money supplied by American friends.

Hundreds of relatives and friends waited for the ship to dock but were not permitted on the pier because customs men interviewed the arrivals there due to crowded conditions abroad the vessel. There were tears and smiles among those awaiting the ship and one of them, Mrs. Z. Paraiser, happily displayed a cable she had received from her daughter when the vessel stopped at Bermuda.

"Please have roast frankfurters and a dish of potato salad," it said.

Seated on a stringpiece adjacent to the pier was Edna Ferber, American novelist, who had been waiting for several hours to meet two passengers she had never seen but for whom she had pledged financial support in the event they are unable to obtain work. The passengers were Dr. Ruth Lubliner and her brother, Rudolf, both from Berlin.

American Flies Bomber in Raid On Nazi Convoy

By Walter B. Kerr.
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

At a Bomber Station, Sept. 12.—Eight twin-engined Blenheims, one piloted by a 22-year-old American on his second operational flight, took off from this airdrome this afternoon and two hours later were back after having raided a German convoy off the Dutch coast.

Some of the planes were skimming close to the waves when they sank two supply ships protected by an antiaircraft or flak ship. They raced in so low and so fast that the protecting vessel had only about 11 seconds in which to sound the warning siren, calling the gunners to their triggers.

Then two bombers singled out one of the larger ships. They came in about 5 feet above the water, soared up to miss the masts, released their explosives and dropped down toward the sea again to avoid antiaircraft fire. Three other planes picked on a second ship and the last of them was flown by young Gerald C. Pryor, whose father, John W. Pryor, of Pittsburgh, resides in Buenos Aires. They followed the same line, dropped their bombs and were off up into the air in protective formation and on their way back to England.

The bombers were escorted by longrange Spitfire fighters who battled with convoying Messerschmitts during the attack. One fighter pilot say "a huge wall of black smoke" rose from one of the ships, presumably the one attacked by the first two Blenheims. It is believed that the second was damaged.

British Raid Nazi Naval Base

Copyright by New York Times

London, Saturday, Sept. 13.—Bomber command forces went out on a new mission Thursday night when they made their first raid on Rostock, important naval base for the Nazis in their war in the Baltic against the Russians, the air ministry said yesterday. Kiel, from which German naval forces are also operating in the Baltic, was heavily attacked as well.

The docks at Le Havre, Boulogne and Haugesund in Norway were also targets for the night.

Heavy railway traffic to and from Denmark goes through Rostock, and the city is one of the most important in the Province of Mecklenburg, having docks, shipyards and factories. There were clouds over the city, but visability was good underneath, and one Hampden pilot dived several thousand feet below the cloud base and from only 1200 feet got his bombs into the shipbuilding yards. A seaplane base in the neighborhood was also bombed, and crews reported great havoc caused in and around the city.

A German convoy was located off the west coast of Norway by a Hudson bomber of the coastal command who dived down in bright moonlight to score two hits on the leading ship—a medium-sized supply vessel.

Bomber Shot Down

London, Saturday, Sept. 13 (AP).—The air ministry announced today that an Axis bomber had been destroyed in a raid on England Friday night. Bombs were dropped on the northeast coast, causing a number of casualties. Guns in the London area had a brief burst of action.

Nazis Claim Four Spitfires

Governor of New Mexico Is 'Kidnaped' in Blackout

By the Associated Press

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Sept. 12.—New Mexico blacked out tonight under simulated aerial invasion—but fifth columnists kidnaped the Governor.

Informed a group of Boy Scouts wished to see him, Gov. John E. Miles obligingly stepped out of the military control room. Before startled State Guardsmen could interfere, he was hustled into a waiting car and rushed off.

State police overtook the car on the Albuquerque highway outside the city and rescued the grinning executive.

Only the lights of the Army air base broke the blackness shrouding Albuquerque. Even the railroad yards were black.

Both there and in SantaFe, traffic was at a complete halt as State police and local officers flagged down all motorists.

Army bombers meanwhile carried the simulation of war to other portions of the State, while civilian mobilization resulted in heavy guard about all of the State's utilities, power projects, railroads, radio stations and other public projects.

In the north mountain country, mission and church bells pealed the blackout warning as news of the approach of bombing planes was flashed to the nearest telephones from headquarters.

Taos Indians thumped the signal on tom-toms. Fire lookout stations, high in the mountains of Carson National Forest, sent the news over forest service telephones.

Long Island Town Has Mock Air Raid

Port Washington, N. Y., Sept. 12 (AP).—This Long Island north shore town, home of millionaires and commuters, underwent an "air raid" of Coventry proportions tonight to test whether a community of 20,000 persons could mobilize cooperatively for itr own defense.

As a lone Coast Guard plane, representing an invading bombardment squadron, droned toward the town, two sergeants in the police station pulled the switch sounding off the fire siren in a prearranged air raid and general mobilization alarm.

Lights flicked out in the homes, street lights blackened. Yachts in placid Manhasset Bay doused their running lights. All traffic halted. Quiet throngs lined the streets.

Papagos Reported Freed From Nazis

Unwilling Hostess to Nazis Returns to U. S. From France

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—An American woman, who was the unwilling hostess to German soldiers in her home in Biarritz, France, arrived today aboard the American Clipper after a 20-year sojourn in Europe.

Mrs. Jane O'Malley-Keyes, 51-year-old widow and mother of five children, said that a German officer in charge of soldiers who occupied her house told her that her American citizenship did not matter. She said she was not paid for the rooms.

Among the passengers were Maj. Gen. Robert Millville Danford, chief of field artillery, United States Army.

Peace Hopes Rise in Two Labor Disputes

Two major labor threats to defense production appeared to be on the mend last night as Federal conciliation officials announced that a settlement formula had been reached in a dispute involving the St. Louis, Mo., electric power supply, and striking hard coal miners in Pennsylvania temporarily suspended their stoppage.

The hopeful forecast on the utility dispute, involving the Union Electric Co. and the A. F. of L.'s International Union of Operating Engineers, was made by conciliators here, who said company and union had agreed on adjusting all problems involved in the latter's threatened strike for higher wages.

Terms were not disclosed and it was understood that final details were still to be worked out. Mediators were optimistic, however, that an agreement, subject to union ratification, would be reached today.

The Pennsylvania miners' stoppage, affecting nearly 10,000 workers, was a protest against C. I. O. United Mine Workers demand for increased monthly dues and special assessments for a "war chest" to be built against the day of post-emergency economic collapse.

After attempting to extend the unauthorized strike into other regions of Pennsylvania's anthracite district, union members abandoned a motor caravan yesterday and returned home because, a spokesman said, it was feared bloodshed might result.

Since the outbreak of the strike, on Tuesday, about 14 collieries have shut down in the midst of one of the busiest seasons in years. A spokesman said that further action would be deferred until Monday. The mines are ordinarily idle over the weekend.

Meantime, in Washington, C. I. O. organizing officials revealed they were exploring the possibility of enlisting members in the railroad industry, in competition with the well-entrenched A. F. L.

Two industrial charters have been issued to groups of railroad workers in Detroit and New Haven, Conn., and possibilities are being investigated in New Jersey, Cleveland and Toledo, it was learned.

Officials emphasized that they were starting in a small way, merely to test the ground and see if a foothold were possible. They added that they did not contemplate raiding any fields held by the long established independent brotherhoods, such as the trainmen or engineers, but were prepared to take in terminal workers, shop craftsmen and maintenance men, among whom union organization has long been under the domination of the A. F. of L.

In Chicago, C. I. O. United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers voted to strike at the Foote Brothers Gear and Machine Corporation, which is working on eight million dollars worth of airplane motor gears.

A union organizer said the union won a Labor Board election last month but subsequent contract negotiations had been stalemated. A Federal conciliator was expected on the scene today.

Vichy Fortifying Ivory Coast Port

Good Hope route now used for supplies and reinforcements to the Orient. The route would be the only passage from England to the East should the Suez Canal be lost. It is also the terminus for American supply planes on the short South Atlantic hop from Natal.

Abidjan is next door to Liberia and close to the communication lines of the "Free French" outlet, Pointenoire.

Ships passing through the new channel will find themselves in a sheltered body of water parallel to the sea, 75 miles long, two to four miles wide and 16 to 25 yards deep.

They will anchor before the Abidjan station of a railroad tapping a rich hinterland producing cattle, sheep, oil, coffee, cocoa, woods, minerals and ores. Quays and piers are being rushed to completion.

Abidjan is now connected with the sea by a rail line running to a pier at the small port of Boue.

Vichy Hints Drive In Mediterranean

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Sept. 12 (AP).—It was openly hinted today in the controlled press of the unoccupied zone that a German-Italian offensive in the western Mediterranean (possibly in Spain) might be brewing.

An article written in the Jour-Echo de Paris, which often has been suspended for its anti-German sentiments, said such an attack would not be a diversion but a "principal operation."

Another Nazi Officer Is Slugged in Paris

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, France, Sept. 12.—Another German army officer has been injured in Paris by an unidentified assailant, according to reports received here tonight. No action of reprisal has yet been announced.

The German officer, it is said, was leaving the Theatre Des Ambassadeurs on the Champs Elysees when he was struck with a bludgeon from behind. Tis assailant escaped.

The military court in Clermont Ferrand today announced death sentences against five officers and hard labor terms for two noncommissioned officers in the French colonial service. All are believed to be outside France and to have been convicted for dealing with De Gaullist "Free French" leaders.

Another death sentence, the first to be imposed upon an alleged agitator actually in France, was announced late last night against Robert Marchadier, an electrician, who was accused of having instigated strikes at Clermont Ferrand in 1938.

Hard-Coal Prices Pegged By Henderson

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Despairing of further informal "requests," Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday cracked down on anthracite producers, freezing present prices and blocking a proposed increase of 15 cents per ton which was to go into effect Monday.

Henderson explained the issuance of an emergency price ceiling on the ground that hard coal operators had failed to furnish the Office of Price Administration with data justifying the projected price increase.

The action followed a price rise of 35 cents per ton since June 16 on coal used by householders. Henderson had asked that the most recent increase—15 cents on August 15—be deferred, but producers failed to comply with his request.

At Philadelphia, the Associated Press said last night that a spokesman for the eight major anthracite producers had informed Henderson that the companies "cannot . . . accede to any arbitrary price ceiling" which would hamper the present industrial wage structure and reduction of operating deficits.

The information was contained in a letter from Walter Gordon Merritt of New York, counsel for the companies which produce more than 60 per cent of the hard coal. Operators have asserted that a wage increase granted in May, together with other rising costs, justified a price rise.

Merritt called attention to data supplied to back up the operators' plea for an increase and said the action "would indicate that you have not had full opportunity to analyze this data and that you have in effect, prejudged the situation."

In a sharply worded statement, the price chief explained that the action was necessary to protect consumers, since 66 per cent of anthracite, mined in eastern Pennsylvania, was consumed by householders in the New England and Middle Atlantic States, including the District of Columbia. Much of the rest is burned in the furnaces of apartment houses, office buildings, hotels and other commercial establishments.

"Placing a ceiling on hard coal prices at the mine became necessary when leading producers of anthracite failed to furnish OPA with reports which would permit full analysis of the factors purporting to justify the proposed September 15 increase," the statement said.

"Rather than allow another 15 cents to be added to the price of the domestic sizes and passed on to householders while the necessity for it is yet to be established, the OPA is freezing anthracite prices for the time being," Henderson added.

Henderson said he expected wholesalers and retailers to maintain present margins so that the ultimate cost of coal to the consumer would not be changed while the ceiling was in force.

The prices set yesterday at the mines were $6.60 per ton for the principal domestic sizes—broken, egg, stove and chestnut; $5.10 for pea coal; $3.75 for buckwheat No. 1; $2.90 for rice, and $2.15 for barley. The latter three sizes are used for commercial and industrial purposes.

Students Urge New Draft Plan

A group of college officials, declaring that the Selective Service Act was causing confusion among college students, asked Congress today to grant collegians deferment from military or naval duty until they had completed their then current school year.

The educators, including Dean Herbert E. Hawkes of Columbia University, appeared before a Senate military subcommittee.

The original Selective Service Act provided for the deferment of college students until the end of the 1940-41 school year.

Roosevelt Accused Of Lies by Nazis

dicted "new serious complications" because, it said, Germany could not permit maintenance of the supply route to Iceland and President Roosevelt had abandoned "the last fictions of neutrality."

Britons Heartened

Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to Washington, said in London that Mr. Roosevelt's warning to the Axis "greatly heartened" every Briton and was "the most practical example of the help in practical form that the United States is prepared to give us and those fighting with us."

The London press hailed the speech.

S. A. Lozovsky, Russian spokesman, said "the President took a firm, energetic stand against German piracy on the seas. This is not only a serious political blow, it is something much greater."

Other reaction around the world:

Free French: The Brazzaville radio said Roosevelt had "thrown down the gauntlet and it is now up to Germany to decide whether it wants war with the United States or not."

British Empire:

There was no official Canadian reaction, but unofficially it was said that the United States had taken another step toward active participation in the war and that at the very least Britain now could leave patrol of the Atlantic west of Iceland to America.

"The American Navy now has become a virtually belligerent ally," said the Montreal Gazette.

Australians Disappointed

Australians, as a result of several days of advance speculation, said they had expected something more definite, but the Australian Stock Exchange showed gains.

Netherlands East Indies papers said the United States was now on a war footing against Germany, and a qualified Dutch observer remarked, "in case of actual war, Germany will stand alone, because Japan decidedly is not joining."

The newspaper Javabode said "Germany has to bend or break. Either way Hitler and his accursed system will burst."

In Chungking, capital of fighting China, commentators foresaw United States entry into a shooting war as likely at any moment.

Latin America:

Colombian papers displayed Roosevelt's assertion that secret landing fields has been found in Colombia in range of the Panama Canal. The government announced it was investigating properties owned by Germans and was "in condition to remove any possible dangers immediately." President Eduardo Santos previously has said an attack on the canal "never would be permitted" from Colombian soil.

Brazilian papers noted that President Vargas already had proclaimed a state of armed vigilance and said Roosevelt's speech was "the decision of America."

In Argentina, the Buenos Aires paper El Mundo called Roosevelt's speech "the first step toward militancy."

Cubans hailed the United States position as a necessary step in defense of democracy, but there was no official comment.

"War," Says Wheeler

Kalispell, Mont., Sept. 12 (AP).—Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, noninterventionist leader, declared tonight that "the President's speech of last evening proved what his worst enemies have been saying about him—that he would take this country into war."

The Senator charged in an address that President Roosevelt "in effect said to the people of the United States: 'I am going to take you into a shooting war as far as the Navy is concerned, without submitting the question to the Congress.'" would go first to London for conferences with Lord Beaverbrook, British minister of supply. For reasons of safety, he withheld other details of his route and did not disclose the time of his departure.

Harriman said that the sea route to the Persian Gulf would become an important avenue of supply for Russia. Basra, at the head of the gulf has rail links with Russia via Iran, recently subdued by British and Russian military force. The Gulf of Iran has never been barred to American shipping by neutrality rules.

The other members of the mission who called with Harriman at the White House were Maj. Gen. James H. Burns, executive officer of the lend-lease administration; Admiral William H. Standley, retired, former Chief of Naval Operations, and William L. Batt, chief of the Office of Production Management's materials division.

To Meet With Gen. Brett

They will meet the mission's fifth member, Maj. Gen. George H. Brett, Army Air Corps chief, in London. He is abroad supervising delivery of planes to Great Britain and the Middle East.

Col. Philip R. Faymonville, secretary of the mission, will remain in Moscow as chief of a permanent military mission. He was formerly military attache there.

Attached to the mission for the conferences in Moscow with Russian and British officials were Lieut. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, Col. Charles P. Gross and Col. Victor V. Taylor.

On the technical staff are the following Army officers: Col. Faymonville, Col. Alfred J. Lyon, Air Corps, Lieut. Col. Charles W. Bundy, 2d Lieut. Clinton L. Olson and 2d Lieut. John J. Cook.

The Navy Department is sending Capt. Frank P. Thomas and Comdr. Clinton E. Brains; the State Department named Edward Page, jr., while the following civilians were selected to go: Earl Petty, Office of Petroleum Coordinator; Prof. Douglass Brown, OPM, and Robert P. Meiklejohn, of Harriman's lease-lend office.

vices and other industrial and military equipment.

One message dated June 11, 1941, received by the station here said: "How much money do you have left? It interests us for the sake of the condition of the deposit.

"What has happened to air reports? We urgently need reports on condition American air force, industry and detailed accounts about falling off of production in factories, including machine tool factories through strike agitation."

Information Meager

Hamburg also suggested, near the end, that two more radio stations be constructed—one in the North and one in the South, and made suggestions as to their operating personnel. Whether the FBI built the stations, as they did the one through which more than 300 messages came, was not disclosed.

That the FBI sent little information to Hamburg was made evident in the handpicked 200 samples of messages read at the trial.

On June 13, 1941, the FBI (through its counterspy) advised Hamburg: "I have asked friends (of Germany) for air force information. They say it is difficult to get. Do you want newspaper articles?"

Quints May Return To Dionne Custody

Toronto, Sept. 12 (INS).—The Ontario government today took up an order in council which, if approved, would return the Dionne quintuplets to their parental home.

The order would restrict the government board of guardians to handling solely the quints' financial affairs and would leave their personal upbringing to the parents.

The quints have lived away from their parents almost since birth. Their wealth was estimated by one of the guardians today to be between $1,200,000 and $1,300,000.

Mass Arrests Made to Avert Norwegian Revolt

Norway.

Border advices said "a great many persons" were arrested at many places.

Among those sentenced in Oslo were the famous skiers Asbjoern Rudd and Olaf Oekern, both sent to prison for 11 years. All local trade union membership lists were taken by authorities and trade union funds were confiscated. All Boy Scout organizations were dissolved.

In Bergen, Trondheim and Stavanger authorities threatened to proclaim a state of civil siege such as exists in Oslo if there were any signs of agitation. Didrik Arup Seip, president of Oslo University, was removed on undisclosed charges.

(German sources in Berlin insisted that Norwegian strikes were of a localized nature and said that affected industries now were operating normally with nonstriking employes.)

(A dispatch from Berlin also quoted the Oslo Nazi paper, Fritt Folk, as declaring "elements in private business, banking, insurance companies and other concerns hostile to National Socialism must be cleaned out.")

Montgomery Nets $7730 From Beer

Montgomery County, Md., earned a net profit of $7,730.06 in August from the county beer monopoly, bringing the net profit earned since establishment of the monopoly to $31,283.75, it was announced yesterday.

The actual cash available for county funds from the August receipts will be $5,963.95, however, since the entire cost of a new truck purchased in the month for use by the wholesale dispensary has been charged against the profits instead of being charged pro rata.

Continuance of the present rate of return will result in approximately $80,000 profit for the county, or nearly 8 cents on the tax rate. Proponents of the county wholesale establishment claimed that approximately $60,000 would result.

Salaries were reduced $750.06 for the month as against earlier month's reports and net sales amounted to $75,840.06 for August. Operating expenses amounted to $5,882.06.

Montgomery School Buses Are Praised

School bus equipment in Montgomery County, Md., has been improved proportionally more than that of any other Maryland County, Paul J. Lowery, of the safety department of the Commissioner of Vehicles reported.

Lowery inspected the 58 buses now in operation in the county for transportation of school children and reported to John J. Seidel, assistant superintendent of the Maryland department of education. He objected to one bus owned by the county because of its wooden body but it was pointed out by Frank I. Davis, supervisor of county school property, that this bus is used to transport prisoners on the road gang and not for school children.

Lowery said that in the past two years the county has removed 14 buses from service and replaced them with modern equipment. Supervisor Davis, who also is county purchasing agent, said the buses are operated more safely because of county ownership through ability to maintain supervision over brakes and ties and other safety equipment. Bus drivers also are required to have periodical check-ups on the buses at prescribed garages and the State inspector checks the buses twice a year.

Hemisphere Duty Seen in World League

Western Hemisphere republics, which have gained so much from association, must in the future take an active part in any union drawn on a world scale, the Institute on World Organization was told last night. The speaker was Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, former Panamanian minister to the United States.

"The success of any future Association of Nations inspired by the national and international concept of democracy requires that all the republics of the Western Hemisphere be members and actively cooperate," said the lecturer at the American University meeting.

"A cosmopolitan outlook is coupled in Latin America with a strong regionalism which has grown in intensity with the present war," he added. "For this reason we have heard so much about the question of the constitution of an American League of Nations, a question that has been agitated since the days of the establishment of the Geneva center. It was President Wilson himself who proposed a continental treaty along the lines of the League Covenant four years before the Versailles treaty was signed."

2 From Area Win in Bridge At Frederick

By Marian H. Barre

Frederick, Md., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Robert S. DuBois, of Washington, and Mrs. L. D.Johnson, of Arlington, Va., won the women's pair championship with 171¼ match points today in the annual Cumberland Valley matches of the American Contract Bridge League.

The defending champions, Mrs. C. W. Boyce and Mrs. W. S. Athey, both of Washington, were fifth with 150½ points.

Other places in the women's contest were taken by Mrs. J. R. Belt and Mrs. Rose Robins, both of Washington, second with 160 points; Mrs. Frederick Eberson and Mrs. H. G. Campbell, both of Washington, third, 158½ points, and Mrs. T. L. Donn and Mrs. James Prince, both of Baltimore, fourth, 153½ points.

Tomorrow the mixed pair championship will be decided. Teams of four will play through two rounds on Sunday.

Report Deat Dead Denied by Berlin

Berlin, (Saturday), Sept. 13 (AP).—A proclamation issued by Marcel Deat, French editor wounded by the same assassin who shot Pierre Laval, to the anti-Russian French Legion departing for the eastern front, was read over the Berlin radio last night.

Deat is believed to be on the way toward recovery, and no responsible source could throw any light on a broadcast heard in New York to the effect that he was dead.

Authoritative sources denied any such broadcast originated in Berlin, although a New York radio station reported hearing it from the official German radio.

'Policemen-in-Trouble' Report Proves False

Three police scout cars crews and several foot policemen converged on a cafe at Eighteenth and Swann Street Northwest last night to aid a fellow policeman and a plainclothesman "in trouble" there.

Meanwhile a crowd of several hundred persons, attracted by the police sirens, gathered.

But there was no policeman and no plainclothesman within, and no trouble. It was a false report, the work of a prankster, apparently.

Japan Won't Act, Roosevelt Reported Told

By James B. Reston.

Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt was reliably reported yesterday to have had reasonable assurance of peace in the Pacific before he ordered United States planes and warships to shoot on sight any Axis submarines found in the defensive waters of the United States.

This was clearly indicated yesterday by a high Japanese official who said he was convinced that the Roosevelt-Nomura-Hull conversations had produced "a sound basis" for an agreement, which, he admitted, would be of a limited nature and probably would be delayed for some time, but which would keep the peace between the two nations.

There was nothing in the conversation of this official to indicate that the Japanese government had in any way given a specific guarantee not to take action in the Far East while the United States was engaged in the Battle of the Atlantic, but he did say that the Japanese government would not interpret the new orders to the United States Navy as an American "attack" on Japan's Axis partners.

Bound by Treaty

Under Article 3 of the tri-power accord between Japan, Germany and Italy, Japan is obligated to "assist" its partners "with all political, economic, and military means" if either Germany or Italy "is attacked by a power at present not involved in the European war or in the Chinese-Japan conflict."

Japan would probably discuss with Germany and Italy the possibility of invoking this clause in the agreement "if the American Navy were to cross the Atlantic and cooperate with the British navy in any direct attack on the German coast," this Japanese official said, but he doubted whether his government would even consider such action if the United States Navy merely followed President Roosevelt's orders to fire first on any Axis war machines found in waters "the protection of which is necessary for American defense."

"Japan wants peace with the United States in the Pacific," this official said. "President Roosevelt has said that his new orders are purely defensive, and I am convinced that he too wants to keep the peace in the Pacific."

Not a Commitment

It would be a mistake to interpret the remarks of this official to mean that any "agreements" or "commitments" had been given by Japan to the United States. Indeed, there are some observers in Washington prepared to belive that Japan would not hesitate to give the impression that she would remain inactive in the Pacific in the hope of getting the United States preoccupied in the Atlantic. But the majority opinion here is that Japan is not prepared either to invoke article three of the tri-power pact or to undertake any adventures in the South Pacific until it is clear that the Germans are having their own way with the Russians or the British Empire is about to collapse.

Work Gets Radio Post With USO

Martin Work, of Loyola University, was yesterday appointed radio consultant of the National Catholic Community Service, one of six USO agencies.

Work, who is a professor of radio at the university, will work out broadcasts for and by service men. He has had experience as a Hollywood radio producer and was associated with several commercial programs.

Autumn Tang To Remain Today

More of the light of summer and tang of autumn are in store for Washington today, the Weather Bureau said.

The weather will be fair, with slowly rising temperature which is expected to reach a high of 78, 4 degrees above yesterday's peak recorded at 2:30 p. m.

No rain is expected in the District area until Monday or Tuesday, according to a long range forecast issued yesterday for the period ending Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

The bureau's extended forecast said that below normal temperatures are expected at the beginning of the period, rising to above normal Monday, followed by cooler Wednesday.

Gas Curfew Unjustified, Walsh Says

Declaring that curtailment of gasoline sales was "unjustified," Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, said yesterday the night sales curfew might force small dealers out of business and "that the major companies might gain "greater control of the retail end of the business."

The Massachusetts Senator asserted in a letter to Ralph K. Davies, acting petroleum coordinator, that he also had been informed shipment of gas and oil to Boston were at the rate of a tanker a day, while a year ago only four tankers arrived in the first week of September.

Latest information from the Maritime Commission, Walsh said, shows that 243 tankers are operating in the Atlantic-Gulf trade, compared with 244 operating in 1940.

He added that despite the transfer of 50 tankers to the British apparently there was increased capacity for shipping oil to New England States in contrast to reports of a shortage by Federal officials.

Auto Chiefs to Get Quotas on Monday

Members of the Automobile Defense Industry Advisory Committee yesterday were called to meet here next Monday to receive passenger car production quotas for December, and indications were that total output for that month probably will be limited to approximately 200,000 passenger cars.

The industry turned out 396,531 passenger cars in December, 1940, and if the indicated quota is put into effect, it will mean that the tentative 50 per cent reduction ordered several weeks ago by Leon Henderson, administrator of the Office of Price Administration, has been made final.

Automobile industry representatives were told at a meeting August 21 to cut production during the first four months of the new model year—August, September, October and November—an average of 26.6 per cent below last year and were warned to expect subsequent and sharper reductions with the expectation of a 50 per cent cut for the entire model year ending July 31, 1942.

Randolph Probes Sibley Hospital Dysentery Case

On the heels of complaints growing out of infant dystentery at Sibley Hospital, Representative Jennings Randolph, chairman of the District Committee of the House, has asked the District Health Department what regulatory measures may be enforced at the hospital.

Randolph wrote to Health Officer Charles C. Ruhland after conferring with Charles Dupee, 1346 Nicholson Street Northwest, whose infant was stricken with the disease while at the hospital.

Randolph wants to know what authority the District has over Sibley Hospital in an effort to determine what action may be taken by his committee.

Acting Health Officer Dr. Daniel Seckinger said that five deaths from the disease were reported here since September 1.

Twenty cases were reported in August and 30 since September 1.

"A preponderance of all reported cases originated at Sibley Hospital," Dr. Seckinger said. "Parents removed their children from Sibley and placed them in other Washington institutions for treatment. I know of 16 cases that went to Children's Hospital. However, the situation is now under control and Sibley Hospital has taken every precaution to safeguard future patients by temporarily closing the maternity and nursing department."

7000 Men of the 29th Division Establish Base Camp at A. P. Hill Military Reservation

By the Associated Press

A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va., Sept. 12.—Approximately 7000 men of the Twenty-ninth Division's Eighty-eighth Brigade combat team set up a base camp at this training ground today in preparation for two weeks of maneuvers.

The remainder of the division will make the 100-mile trip from Fort George G. Meade tomorrow and Monday.

The first regiment to arrive today was the 116th Infantry, followed by the 176th Infantry—both Virginia regiments—the Eleventh Field Artillery and the 104th Medical Detachment.

Headquarters trucks rolled into the camp area at 11:30 a. m., only a few hours after Pennsylvania's Twenty-eighth Division had evacuated the grounds, and moved their equipment into tents left standing by the Pennsylvania soldiers.

The Men Eat Anyway

The rear trucks of the 900-vehicle convoy trundled in by 4 p. m., arriving within a few minutes of the time scheduled by Brig. Gen. C. M. Alexander, commanding officers.

Their convoy couldn't pull into a curb station hamburger stand and field kitchens couldn't be erected in crowded trucks, but thanks to mess officers the men ate anyway. Tucked in their full field battle packs were sandwiches and fruit and strapped to their sides were full canteens of water.

The 100-mile long string of trucks was routed over highway 131 to avoid congesting traffic at Washington.

Shortly after the men and equipment were unloaded many trucks returned to Fort Meade to transport other troops tomorrow and Monday. A truck shortage necessitated the shuttle movement, Gen. Alexander said.

Leaving in Two Weeks

Early this afternoon field kitchens and headquarters had been erected and officers stated that by nightfall the camp would be fully prepared for occupancy, thus giving the men their last opportunity for weekend leaves before the division leaves in two weeks for mass war games of the First Army in North Carolina.

The men discarded summer uniforms last night and donned regulation winter woolen field uniforms for today's trip. They carried full field packs, including blankets, arms and mess kits.

The second battalion of the 176th field artillery, a Pennsylvania unit, and a signal detachment totaling about 900 men are scheduled to arrive tomorrow.

The remaining 11,000 men will leave Fort Meade Monday.

Second Army Units Due in Virginia Today

Richmond, Va., Sept. 12 (AP).—Advanced detachments of the United States Second Army, the main body of which will pass through Virginia between September 25 and 29 on the way to maneuvers in the Carolinas, will enter the Old Dominion beginning at noon tomorrow, the State highway department was informed today.

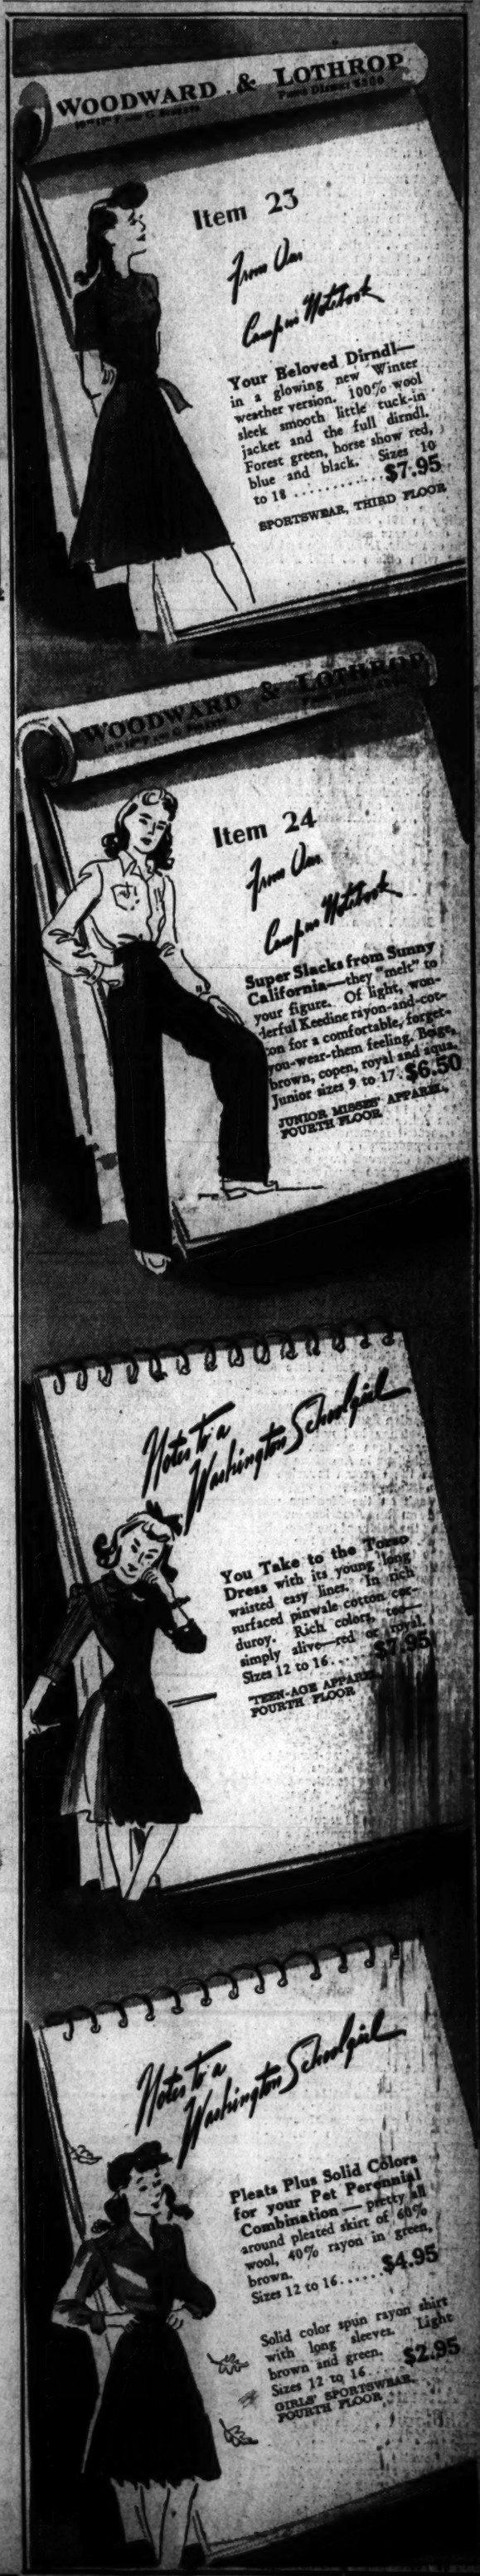
The advanced units will move in four columns. One detachment of 240 vehicles of the Forty-fourth Division will enter the State via Route 15 about noon tomorrow and will bivouac in the vicinity of Point of Rocks. Another column of 240 vehicles, also from the Forty-fourth Division, will enter on Route 15 about 7 a. m. Monday. Both columns will then move to a bivouac area in the vicinity of Buckingham Courthouse.

The main bodies of troops will begin movement into Virginia on Thursday, September 25.

Alexandria Club Asks Aid for Army

Officials of the Alexandria Defense Service Club have called for the cooperation of Alexandria residents in entertaining visiting service men, in an effort to expand the program now under way to provide recreation for selectees and regulars stationed at nearby bases.

With a series of dances and other entertainments scheduled at the service club, Director M. Cecil Meador said the defense service committee also is seeking to enlist residents who are willing to entertain small groups of soldiers when no events are scheduled at the recreation center. Prospective hosts are asked to telephone the service club and to furnish officials with their names, addresses, the nature and the hours of the entertainment they plan, and the number of guests desired.



S. C. Peelle Dies; Former Bar President

Stanton Canfield Peelle, former president of the District Bar Association, died unexpectedly yesterday while vacationing at Southwest Harbor, Me.

The body will be brought to Washington Monday. Members of his family, residing at 5900 Connecticut Avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., said that funeral services, probably to be private, would be held Tuesday or Wednesday.

Mr. Peelle was born in Indianapolis, Ind., on July 5, 1880, the son of Stanton J. Peelle, the late Chief Justice of the United States Court of Claims, and Mrs. Mary Arabella Peelle. He studied at public and private schools; was graduated from the Columbian Preparatory School here in 1895 and Columbian University in 1899. He married Julia F. Ravenel, of Washington and Charleston, S. C., on October 25, 1905.

He was admitted to the District Bar in 1902. He was professor of constitutional law at the Washington College of Law from 1904 to 1906, and served as First Assistant United States Attorney from 1910 to 1911, and as Special Assistant United States Attorney, 1911 to 1912. Mr. Peelle was a partner in the firm of Hoehling, Peelle and Ogilby in 1913 and at the time of his death was associated with the firm of Peelle, Lesh, Drain and Bernard with offices at 1422 F Street Northwest.

He was a director of the Mayflower Hotel Corporation, the Sterrett Operating Service and the Capital Construction Company. He was actively interested for many years in the Home for Incurables and the Chevy Chase Club. His affiliations included the American Bar Association, the Metropolitan Club, Friends of Law Library of Congress, of which he was a charter member and a former president.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Stanton Canfield Peelle, jr., and William Ravenel Peelle, both of Chevy Chase, Md., and two daughters, Mrs. James Parker Nolan, of Chevy Chase, and Mrs. Armistead L. Boothe, of Alexandria.

would shoot down trespassing Axis submarines and raiders, provided startling support for his charge that Germany has unleashed unrestricted U-boat warfare.

Immediate start of an undeclared German-American naval engagement in the Atlantic appeared entirely possible, especially in view of German boasts yesterday, after the speech, of having sunk 22 ships of a British convoy.

A test by force of the President's pledge to protect ships of "any flag" in American defensive waters was expected momentarily.

The torpedoing of the Montana, which was observed from a British plane, took place squarely inside the contested area proclaimed by Germany as a blockade zone, but declared free to the commerce of all nations by President Roosevelt.

The Montana, like the Sessa, was formerly a Danish ship requisitioned last month by the Maritime Commission and then transferred to the flag of Panama. Both were chartered to the Marine Operating Co. of New York. Also like its sister ship, the Montana was carrying to Iceland a cargo of lumber, consigned to the Icelandic government, when a torpedo crashed into her sides.

The Montana and the Sessa were both on their maiden voyages under the Panamanian flag when they met their fate. They had not been to sea for more than a year, having been immobilized in American ports ever since the German invasion of Denmark.

The attack on the Montana was the third on an American-owned ship flying the colors of the Republic of Panama. The first was the sinking of the tanker Charles Pratt off the west coast of Africa on December 21, 1940, and the second was the Sessa disaster, which is feared to have cost 24 lives, including the drowning of one American.

The incident added a sixth to the list of five attacks on American shipping cited by President Roosevelt in his address. It took place near the waters where the U. S. destroyer Greer was attacked by a U-boat May 4 and answered with depth charges.

On Lane to Iceland

There are 125 American-owned or American-controlled ships under Panama registry, the Maritime Commission said yesterday. About 30 of these are former Danish vessels that were among the 39 requisitioned from the Danish government by the Maritime Commission this summer under the new ship requisition law.

The attack occurred 260 miles south-southwest of Iceland, near the entrance to Denmark Strait, which separates Iceland from Greenland.

It was squarely on the sealane to Iceland that the President ordered the Navy to keep clear when the United States occupied Iceland in July.

This icy stretch of water has now seen three incidents, the attacks on the Greer, the Sessa and the Montana.

It was Secretary of Navy Knox, after the Cabinet meeting, who identified the observation plane as British.

The State Department last night was trying to secure further details about the attack on the Montana. Its source of information was apparently British.

Knox, when asked whether American warships had been ordered to the scene to hunt the marauder, said apparently no United States warships were in the vicinity. He did not know whether the British plane attacked the U-boat.

Mr. Roosevelt received the news when a State Department official, Howard Bucknell, jr., acting chief of the division of current information, rushed across West Executive Avenue from the State Department to the White House, bearing a dispatch from the Navy and a map showing the scene of the disaster.

Va. Attorney Killed In Shotgun Mishap

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 12 (AP).—Thomas Lovette Gilfoyle, 47-year-old Lynchburg attorney, was killed accidentally yesterday at his home, by a shotgun blast. Officers who were called said that Gilfoyle apparently had been cleaning the gun when it discharged. Dr. James Wilkins, city coroner, returned a verdict of accidental death.

New Process to Free Power For Aluminum Manufacture

By W. H. Lawrence

Copyright by New York Times

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 12.—A chemical process that will result in freeing millions of kilowatts of electricity for the production of aluminum and other strategic defense materials in which bottlenecks now exist because of power shortage was described here before the closing sessions of annual autumn meeting of the American Chemical Society by Prof. Arthur W. Mixson and Dr. Alvan H. Tenney, chemical engineers of Columbia University.

The new process makes it possible, it was reported, to manufacture chlorine and salt cake from salt and sulphur without electric power or any other fuel. This will free the large quantities of electric power now used in the making of these highly important chemicals for the manufacture of aluminum and for other defense industries, it was pointed out. The shortage in aluminum is not due to a lack of raw materials but to a shortage in electric power needed for its extraction.

The new process, the Columbia chemists added, will also make the United States self-sufficient in salt cake, which before the present war was imported from Germany in quantities amounting to 40 per cent of this country's total industrial consumption.

"The demand for chlorine, aptly named the 'green Goddess' of the chemical industry, already exceeds present productive capacity," the report pointed out. "Normal use of the chemical has been curtailed and the defense industries are clamoring for more. But with a bottleneck in electric power supply already apparent, there is little prospect of meeting these needs so long as present methods of chlorine manufacture are employed. This non-power-consuming process will make it possible to produce chlorine at the spot where it will be utilized.

"Salt cake, known chemically as sodium sulfate, is produced simultaneously with chlorine. Here again there is a decided advantage in being able to manufacture the product where it will be used. Heretofore, haulage charges have contributed heavily to the cost of sodium sulfate."

Rev. H. R. Severe, Hyattsville Native, Dies in Winchester

The Rev. Howard R. Severe, 37, pastor of the Capon Bridge (W. Va.) Methodist Church and native of Hyattsville, Md., died Thursday at the Memorial Hospital in Winchester, Va.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. James Severe, of Hyattsville, the clergyman was educated at Randolph-Macon Academy and West Virginia Wesleyan Theological Seminary. He served three years as pastor of Tallman (W. Va.) Methodist Church and four years at Capon Bridge.

He is survived by his wife and a son, Richard E. Severe. Funeral services will be held today at 12:30 p. m. at the residence of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Eunice Costinett, 11 Schley Avenue, Hyattsville, and at the Hyattsville First Methodist Church at 1 p. m. Interment will be in Washington Memorial Park Cemetery.

Rites Today For J. W. Wood, Of Clinton, Md.

Funeral services for Joshua W. Wood, 59, of Clinton, Md., will be held at the Chambers funeral home, 517 Eleventh Street Southeast, at 2 p. m. today. Interment will be in Christ Church Cemetery, Clinton.

Mr. Wood died at Providence Hospital here on Thursday after a week's illness. He was a native of Clinton, and had been a farmer there all his life.

He leaves his wife, Nellie V. Wood, four sons, Horace F. Wood, Berry J. Wood, Charles B. Wood, and John H. Wood, and three daughters, Gladys M. Wood, Dorothy Wood, and Mrs. Louise Mahaney, all of Clinton.

Arthur G. Brode, Attorney, Dies

Arthur George Brode, former Washington attorney, died yesterday at his home in Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. Brode, a native of that town, was educated at Christian Brothers College, Memphis; Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., and Catholic University. He was a former member of the law firm of Watson, King & Brode, this city, and assistant Federal district attorney in Memphis.

Mr. Brode is survived by his wife, Mrs. Clara Friedman Brode, who is a native Washingtonian; a son, Gerry Brode; a brother, Howard Brode, and two sisters, Mrs. Rae Albert and Mrs. Selma Goldberg.

Henry Fruit's Rites Today; Was Scholar

Funeral services will be held for Henry D. Fruit, well-known Shakespearean authority, at 4 p. m. today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Fruit, who was 86, died Thursday at Providence Hospital. He was a native of Grand County, Wis., and was a member of the first graduating class of Iowa State University in 1881. He later served as a probate judge in Iowa and for eight years was United States Commissioner of North Dakota.

Moving to Washington, he became employed in the Postoffice of both the Senate and the House. Then for 16 years, he was auditor of the Washington Gaslight Company.

Mr. Fruit was a keen student of Shakespeare and visited the bard's birthplace at Stratford-on-Avon several times. He lived at 226 East Capitol Street, across the street from the Folger Shakespearean Library and intently watched the ornate building during its construction. Just before the building was dedicated in 1932, Mr. Fruit was given permission by an attendant to enter the great hall. He carried a book under his arm. He opened the book and read the first lines from Shakespeare ever spoken in the library dedicated to the poet. The lines were: "Oh, opportunity! Thy guilt is great!" from "The Rape of Lucrece."

Mr. Fruit was president and librarian of the National Shakespearean Society. He was a member of Euclid Lodge, F. A. A. M.

A bachelor, he is survived by a nephew, John C. Fruit, of the Dodge Hotel, 20 E Street Northwest.

Group to Check D. C. Restaurant Health Standards

To protect the health of Washington's dining-out public—especially in "fountain-type" restaurants—a committee of local businessmen was formed yesterday after a conference with local public health authorities.

The committee includes:

Robert J. Wilson, chairman, executive secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association; Dr. J. W. Pollard, Peoples Drug Stores; H. R. Baesch, G. C. Murphy Co.; Ernest M. Fleischman, D. A. Schulte Co., and Alfred Ernest, Ewart's Cafeteria.

It was explained the committee would cooperate with Health Department officials in efforts to "elevate health standards" of eating places throughout the city.

Army Drops 3 D. C. Selects Among 136

Three District selectees were among 136 soldiers discharged from the Army at Fort Belvoir yesterday, the first inductees to be released in this area.

All 136 are 28 years or more and were discharged under the Selective Service policy of returning older men to civilian life.

The Washingtonians discharged were Corpl. George H. Willis, 32, of the Roosevelt Hotel, one of the selects who drew the numbers in the July 1 lottery; Private First Class Richard F. Deery, 33, of 200 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast; and private David R. Powers, 29, of 910 Seventh Street Northeast.

Corpl. Willis, an employe of the Federal Reserve Board in New York before his induction, has a job waiting for him as an economist in OPACS—at least he hopes "it's still 'waiting.'" It was offered to him several weeks ago, he said, before his discharge, which then seemed imminent, was delayed.

Asked his feelings about the service with the fighting forces, Willis was noncommittal, but indicated he had not found Army life displeasing. "Of course, as a practical matter, and one of finances" civilian life is preferable, he said.

Pvt. Deery said he had "no complaint at all about the Army" and had thoroughly enjoyed his tour of duty. He will return to a job as a furniture salesman here.

A tank driver, he had been stationed at Fort Knox until June when he was transferred to Fort Belvoir with a unit of three demonstration tanks and their crews.

Powers on the other hand was "very well satisfied" to be returning to civilian life, according to his father, Earl Powers, who was awaiting his arrival home from Fort Belvoir. The father, who was very enthusiastic about the return of his son, said the discharged soldier had no job awaiting him. He had been a railroad brakeman prior to his induction, the father reported.

Vacancies created in the ranks at Fort Belvoir will be filled quickly by new selectees. More men, either because they are 28 or over or have dependents, will be discharged in the near future at Fort Belvoir.

New Alexandria Residential Project Planned

Plans for construction of a $750,000 residential development in a section of Braddock Heights bounded by King Street Road, Braddock Road and Scroggin Lane were announced Thursday by officials of the Overlook Terrace Corporation, a newly chartered real estate concern in Alexandria. "DAY IS DYING IN THE WEST"
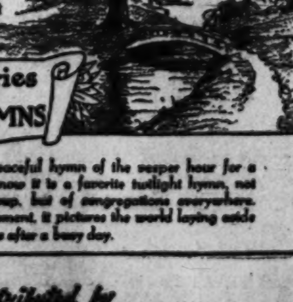
MARY A. LATHBURY

Day is dying in the west,
Heaven is touching earth with rest:
Wait and worship while the night
Sets her evening lamps alight
Through all the sky.



Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS

Mary Lathbury wrote this peaceful hymn of the vesper hour for a Chautauqua assembly—and now it is a favorite twilight hymn, not only of the Chautauqua group, but of congregations everywhere. With its soft and gentle movement, it pictures the world laying aside its cares after a busy day.

D. C. Churches Asked to Mark Religious Week

Invasion of America by "the wrong ideas, not armies or bullets," is what Christian leaders must fear, William R. Schmucker, secretary of the District of Columbia Sunday School Association, said yesterday in calling on all local churches and church groups to participate in Religious Education Week from September 28 to October 5.

"Religious education is the strongest bulwark we can erect to prevent the spread of ideas hostile to our religious, educational and social order," Schmucker stated. "Our form of democracy is based on Christian principles and the churches are looking to the strengthening of these foundations."

Religious Education Week has been observed since 1931 in communities, but 1941 will mark the first Nation-wide program to be set up to focus the attention of all America on the need for Christian education. The International Council of Religious Education is the sponsor of the week, and Dr. Roy G. Ross, Chicago, general secretary, said this organization hopes "to remarshal the missionary spirit of the church in the field of education and to complete the religious rearmament of America."

The forty-eighth annual convention of the D. C. Sunday School Association will be held October 20 and 21 at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, Ninth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, it was announced yesterday.

Principal speakers will include Dr. Charles B. Foelsch, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, and Dr. William R. Barnhart, Federation of Churches' executive secretary. Association President Dr. Charles E. Resser will preside.

Rev. Snape to Speak At Universalist Church

Tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Universalist National Memorial Church, the Rev. W. Harold Snape, director of Goodwill Industries, will conduct the service of worship and preach on "Dealing with Difficulties." The National Capital Choir will sing "The Lord Is My Rock" by Woodman and "Beloved, Let Us Love One Another" by Cobb. William Westmore, jr., will be the soloist.

Catholic Group To Hear Former G. U. President

The Rev. Coleman Nevils, S. J., former president of Georgetown University, will speak at the communion breakfast of the National Catholic Evidence Conference to be held here September 20 and 21, it has been announced by Harry J. Kirk, of Washington, president of the conference. The breakfast will be held at 10:15 o'clock in graduate hall on the campus of Catholic University.

Evidence guilds from many cities of the East and South will be represented at the conference, which is being sponsored by the Catholic Evidence Guild of Washington, one of the senior members of the group.

Another feature of the meeting will be a round table discussion on how best to put the Catholic message across to the man on the street.

Other nationally known figures participating in the round table will be James B. Carey, national secretary of the C. I. O.; Frank P. Fenton, director of organization of the A. F. of L., and M. X. Wilberding, all of Washington, D. C., who will contribute views on how best to reach both workers and employers.

Also on the program of the conference will be most of the leaders of the Catholic Evidence Movement—the Right Rev. Msgr. Edward A. Hawks, moderator of the Philadelphia Catholic Evidence Guild; the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Hart, moderator of the Washington Guild; the prominent lay readers, Frank Sheed, of London and New York, David Goldstein, of Boston, and many others from the guilds of Detroit, Buffalo, New Orleans, Baltimore, New York, etc.

Christian Mission for Soldiers Will Start Soon in Camps

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post Church Editor

A Christian Mission for soldiers in major troop concentrations, similar to the National Christian Mission of last fall and winter, will soon get under way under the sponsorship of the General Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains and the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

A limited-scale mission may be held at Fort Belvoir, Va., in the early autumn, and a national-scale mission later, according to Dr. S. Arthur Devan, commission director.

"It was our first plan to have a mission in the First Corps Area (New England) this autumn," said Director Devan, "and learn by trial and error how to do it on a national scale. This plan has proved impracticable because of summer and autumn maneuvers."

The formal mission program may begin in the late fall on the Pacific Coast, he said, since maneuvers then will be over there.

Dr. Jesse M. Bader, director of the commission on evangelism of the Federal Council, and who successfully promoted the other missions, is said to be very enthusiastic about the idea.

A group of conscientious objectors from Civilian Public Service Camp No. 3, Elkridge, Md., will attend a Young People's Christian Endeavor Society meeting tomorrow at 6:45 p. m. at Mount Rainier (Md.) Christian Church, and join in a discussion of "The Philosophy of the Pacifist."

Other service mens' programs arranged by churches with the cooperation of the Federation of Churches for this week-end and during the coming week, follow:

Today—3 p. m., Disciples of Christ young people meet at National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, to take soldiers on a sightseeing tour; picnic supper follows.

6 to 8 p. m., supper and dance at Fellowship House, 3863 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, arranged by League for Men in Service, Covenant - First Presbyterian Church.

8 to 10 p. m., service men's program, Mount Vernon Square, 900 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, under auspices of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

6 p. m., open house, St. John's Episcopal Parish House, Sixteenth and H Streets Northwest.

Tomorrow—All day, churches of all denominations invite service men to worship. See sermon column on this page, other church news.

6 p. m., Reformation Lutheran youths will lead music at Walter Reed Hospital vespers. B. Y. P. U. of First Baptist Church, Sixteenth and O Streets Northwest, invites soldiers to meeting.

Tuesday — Open house, Letts Building, Foundry Methodist Church, Sixteenth and P Streets Northwest.

Wednesday—8 p. m., game night, St. John's Episcopal Parish Hall, Sixteenth and H Streets Northwest.

Friday—Music night, St. John's Parish Hall.

Young Adult Leaders To Meet Tomorrow

Fifty leaders of young adult work in the Baltimore Conference, Methodist Church, will hold a planning session tomorrow at Western Maryland College, Westminister. They will be led by Conference Director Walter A. Graham. Miss Betty Conn, leader in Baptist young adult work, will visit the meeting "to see how the Methodists do it."

Emory to Present Evening of Hymns

The congregation of Emory Methodist Church, 6100 Georgia Avenue Northwest, tomorrow at 11 a. m. will present "An Evening With Hymns of the Church Universal."

"Hymns written by poets of the 12 historic branches of the Christian Church," said Emory officials yesterday, "will show how, in spite of the superficial differences, there is a great unity which binds together churches of every name and sign."

Paralysis Threat

Infantile paralysis cases in nearby Maryland counties are presenting a problem to health officers, parents, and the school boards. Because little is yet known about the transmission of the disease, the medical profession is handicapped in making recommendations. Some think it safer to keep schools open, so that children may be supervised and illnesses detected at once. Others feel that schools should close till the threat of an epidemic is over. Dr. John Byers, Prince Georges County health officer, lends support to the first theory by announcing that health figures do not show that infantile paralysis increases if schools remain open. However, it would be hard to comfort a family with such statistics if one of its members should contract the disease after attending school sessions. Perhaps the Montgomery County school superintendent, Dr. Edwin W. Broome, has found the only possible solution for authorities by placing the burden of decision upon parents. Children in that county who do not attend school because of their parents' fears of infantile paralysis will not have absence charged against them, provided they do not attend movies or other public gatherings.

Coming Home To Roost

The problem of higher living costs has been brought home to the Federal Government with special force by the American Federation of Government Employes. At its St. Paul convention, the A. F. G. E. has come out for a bonus of "at least $240 a year for all Federal employes except those whose salaries are fixed by wage boards. Legislation to prevent further rent increases in Washington is also sought. These Federal workers see their real incomes shrinking because of rising prices, and they propose to take the most direct method of bringing about an equitable adjustment.

Government employes have only to turn to the Department of Labor's cost of living index to find support for their demand. In the four months ended July 15 the cost of living in the average large city increased 4 per cent. Since the prices of many commodities have advanced sharply since these data were accumulated and higher wholesale prices are only now beginning to be reflected in retail trade, the actual increase in living costs is much greater than the Labor Department's latest report indicates. Indeed, as Secretary Morgenthau made clear the other day, we are already caught in the first coils of an inflationary spiral. Many private employers as well as the Government are forced to consider wage increases for their employes because higher living costs have brought about a shrinkage in real income. The Washington Gas Light Co. is meeting the situation by granting "defense emergency compensation" in accord with a sliding scale based on living costs.

It is particularly enlightening to note the chief sources of higher living costs today. There has been a sharp advance in household furnishings, such as washing machines, radios and many other durable goods now scarce because of the diversion of materials into defense production. Some increase has been registered, too, in the miscellaneous items including automobiles, soap and medical care. But by far the sharpest advance has taken place in the cost of foods. In the four months ended July 15 food costs leaped up nearly 9 per cent and the trend is still running strong. This fact is of the utmost importance because it shows that the Administration has failed to apply the brakes to run-away prices in a field where many brakes are at its command.

Secretary Morgenthau has again urged the release of surplus stocks of wheat and cotton as a means of holding skyrocketing food prices in check. When there is an abundance of purchasing power, he says, with obvious good sense, we should sell our surpluses to the people at reasonable prices. The first beneficial effect would be to help check the inflationary spiral and the second to recover the Government's investment in these surplus stocks so that new supplies could be accumulated in future periods of overproduction. But the Administration has not yet acquired the courage to follow this sound advice. Instead, it is permitting food prices to get out of hand, which gives workers good cause to demand wage adjustments. And, in turn, wage increases (since there is a scarcity of goods to buy) further kindle the flames of inflation. It is high time for the Administration to strike at the chief sources of this peril.

Words That Count

The sense of responsibility which our President has displayed toward the world crisis was admirably brought out in his great "shoot-at-sight" speech on Thursday night. There was no appeal to popular passion. Mr. Roosevelt explicitly enjoined upon the people a restraint toward particular incidents. What he wanted was a view of Hitler's sinkings in the light of Hitler's overweening ambitions. It was the "world pattern" of events that concerned our President—what an unchecked Hitler would mean to our destiny as an independent and sovereign Nation, what an unchecked Hitler would mean to our posterity. And his grave words were pitched to the subdued key of his admonitions.

Such an approach has been consistently maintained since the President began to take the people into his confidence about the true inwardness of Hitlerism. The record is clear for the historian. Mr. Roosevelt was among the first to realize that Hitler wanted war. He saw the war coming, and warned his countrymen of the peril. Those who did not accept Mr. Roosevelt's facts scoffed at him for his prognostications. Mr. Borah openly said that the President was acting upon false information. The Senator's data led him to believe just the contrary—that peace would remain unbroken. Events proved the President to be abundantly right. But the President has been justified in his historical sense as well as in his facts. He knew that this was not just another "intra-European war," as Mr. Lindbergh puts it, but a mighty revolution which aimed at sweeping over and engulfing the civilized world. Again he was regarded as a scaremonger. Yet how right he has been in this particular also! Two other continents besides Europe—Asia and Africa—have felt the impact of Hitlerism since Mr. Lindbergh talked about this "intra-European war." And on this continent only the purblind could ignore the handwriting on the American wall in the plots in Latin America and the subversion in North America.

Lecky says that "the success of any opinion depends much less upon the force of arguments, or upon the ability of its advocate, than in the predisposition of society to receive it." Our society, disillusioned by the last war, at first resisted the President's arguments that our American freedoms were endangered by the rise of Hitlerism. It insisted upon pledging in advance a neutrality toward any conflict which started abroad. There was a "predisposition" even against the evidence of one's eyes. But the basic common sense of the American people reasserted itself when events began to reinforce the President's arguments in showing the contours of Hitler's "world pattern." It was realized at last that our America could not continue to exist in this "world pattern." And once this realization was borne in, neutrality went by the board, and this country indorsed all the measures which the President began to take in defense of our country's security in this hemisphere.

The President on Thursday night brought these measures to a head with unassailable logic. If a pirate is engaged in sinking our commerce, in sealing the approaches to our hemisphere—a pirate who thinks of our America as his final booty—it is our elementary duty to give maximum aid to those who are opposed to him. If the pirate is sinking the weapons we are sending to those associates, then we must clear the sea lanes for those weapons, and insure our approaches into the bargain. If our friends are unable to shoulder the immense load of laying the piratical menace alone, then we must assist them, and neglect no means in our assistance. This is all simple logic. It is that attention to realities which, it has been said, is the beginning of wisdom. In the light of the record, surely, Mr. Roosevelt has displayed a wisdom in his foreign policy which cannot be gainsaid. Coupled with his patience and his forbearance and his restraint, this wisdom will, we feel sure, be reflected in the overwhelming support of the American people.

Two-Edged Terror

In reprisal for the wounding of a German sergeant last week, the German authorities in Paris have executed three Frenchmen chosen at random from among the large number they had previously rounded up and put in jail. It must not be assumed, however, that this shocking act represents any departure from the accustomed practice of the Nazi barbarians. They were only applying in France the same troglodyte tactics they had carried out many times before in Germany itself, in Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and other lands unfortunate enough to fall into Hitler's hands. Long ago the civilized world had come to recognize Hitler and his bloodstained gangsters as international outlaws who make the record of Attila the Hun look like an exercise in Grade A humanitarianism. None of the painfully acquired standards of the past are sacred to them; they would destroy all of them and build the "new order" on a mountain of corpses.

In this latest manifestation of savagery, however, the Nazis reveal themselves as badly rattled. France and particularly Paris are overrun with Gestapo agents, military police, troops, informers. Yet with all this elaborate apparatus of espionage the Nazi authorities in the French capital found it impossible to ferret out those responsible for the attack on a German noncommissioned officer. Instead, therefore, they are wreaking their vengeance on innocent individuals. But, far from cowing the French, such tactics are more likely to fan into brighter flame the spirit of resistance which has begun to develop in the conquered land. Proof of this is to be found in the circumstance that, far from ending the disorders in the occupied zone, the shooting of the three hostages was followed by further attacks on German soldiers as well as on those Frenchmen who have shown a disposition to do the bidding of the conqueror. Terror is a sword with two edges. In applying it against the conquered, the Nazis may someday find the weapon turned against them.

Bulwark Of Justice

It is good news that Senator McCarran intends to press for enactment of the local court reform bill. This is one of the most important pieces of District legislation to come before Congress in recent years. Its significance has been somewhat obscured by controversy as to whether the Municipal Court and the Police Court should be consolidated. That is only one constructive feature of a bill which has as its broad purpose the assurance of more speedy justice to the voteless residents of Washington.

All judges of the present Municipal and Police Courts would be carried over to the new Municipal Court and one additional judgeship would be created. These posts would be made more attractive in the hope that every vacancy in the future will be filled by an outstanding lawyer. In the past some competent judges have been chosen, along with some misfits. Even more important, the bill would give the chief justice of the new court strong administrative powers in order to keep the court functioning as an efficient unit. Lack of unified direction of judges in the lower courts is a critical weakness of the present set-up. With the court thus reorganized for more efficient service, its jurisdiction would be extended to cases involving claims up to $2000, instead of $1000 as at present.

Perhaps the greatest effect of the bill would be felt in the congested District Court. Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner of the District Court of Appeals says that the delay in trying cases in the District Court is "almost a scandal." Under the new division of cases hundreds of comparatively minor lawsuits that now go to the District Court would be heard by the reconstituted Municipal Court. Moreover, the District Court would be allowed to transfer to the lower tribunal claims for more than $2000 where it is obvious that final damages could not exceed that figure. The upper court would thus be left free to devote its full energy to clearing up the 6000 untried cases which now keep our timetable of justice a year and half behind schedule.

Additional protection of citizens' rights would be granted, moreover, by the creation of an intermediate court of appeals. At present there is no right of appeal from the decisions of the Municipal Court. Such cases may be carried to the United States Court of Appeals for the District only if they involve a new point of law or a public issue which, in the opinion of the court, justifies review of the lower court's conclusions. Appeals could be carried to the proposed intermediate court as a matter of right, and its decisions in turn could be reviewed in the highest court of appeals if the latter tribunal should see fit. The bill would thus fortify our entire judicial system, and enhance the quality of justice available to residents of the District. Its enactment should be delayed no longer than is necessary to make certain that its admirable purposes are couched in proper legislative terms.

NO SHORE

The winds that bore the tired ship north
Carry it south once more,
And north and south and east and west
It sails, but finds no shore.

It finds no cliffs, no trees, no beach,
Nor any sign of men;
And north it goes, and south it goes,
And east and west again.

One ship of all the ships that sailed
Remains upon the sea—
One straggler left to loneliness,
Forgotten and gone free.

Far out of port, away from call,
With business of its own,
It had no need of news, and so
These tidings went unknown:

How men, unmastered by themselves,
Grew mercilessly proud,
And ran so mad with war and hate
That dumb things cried aloud;

The trees rebelled, the grass withdrew,
The mountains fell in thunder;
Waves crept inexorably in,
And land and men slipped under.

Costume Morals

The writer of the letter headed "Nympha," in The Post of September 9, appears to fall in with the notions expressed in some newspapers which he quotes that there is an increase in sex crimes and that it is due to current fashions in women's wear, especially abbreviated shorts. This is an ancient error. There is no connection between sex morality and the average area of female epidermis exposed in public. Notoriously immoral periods in history were those of the Roman Empire, the Renaissance in Italy, the seventeenth century in England and the eighteenth in France. During all these epochs women in public went covered from neck to toe and in the latter times mentioned, they were swathed in voluminous petticoats. As to the prevalence of rape today, compared with the past, police statistics should be studied before hasty opinions are expressed. It seems likely that better police protection results in the reporting of a larger number of such crimes than formerly. Costume is a matter of taste, fashion and convenience, not of morality, which is rooted in far deeper motives and emotions.

Looking Backward

It is considerably confusing to hear these individuals who were telling us, a year or so ago, that the ways of Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln had been outgrown, now urging us to rekindle the spirit of those great leaders in our attitude toward the present threat to our national security.

Inconsistencies of this character could possibly be the cause for the lack of unity among our people.

Feminine Beauty

Feminine beauty is an endowment for which woman should be unceasingly grateful to her Maker, but if it is to be used in the future as in the past, for her despoliation, then, on the contrary, lack of beauty is indeed a blessing. Beauty was not bestowed upon womanhood for exploitation, and those responsible for the sad use girls of today are making of their physical perfection are not in their positions of power and authority by any fitness of moral superiority.

The charm of womanhood should be a cherished thing within the sanctity of the home (is there such any more?) held sacred by and to our dear ones—not made the object of the loathsome lust of degenerates through vulgar vaudeville, morally rotten films, public displays under most demoralizing influences, all of which are rapidly loosening for Americans their hold on any dignity, or even decency, of standard.

The girls themselves "know not what they do," as Jesus said of his betrayers. And there are many kinds of betrayers. However, their nonrealization presents a tragic picture with a tragic end.

May I appeal to all American mothers, as one of them who is blessed with a beautiful daughter, to countenance not this unholy thing which is despoiling our womanhood!

Formal Education

I have recently noted with much interest some comment on "Sheepskin" educated employes and "horse sense" education. Please understand me to be 100 per cent for education, whether it be formal or experience.

I am a Government employe with little chance for advancement only because my parents were too poor to buy me a "formal" education. My Government, for which I am ready to die, if necessary, almost forbids me the chance to prove that my services are equal or above many who have been more fortunate in obtaining a college degree.

For good examples and proof of my belief, may I refer to the man who is called the "Father" of this country, Washington, and the man who saved it from destruction years later, Lincoln. These two men with little or no formal education are proudly remembered by the two greatest monuments in this city and Nation.

Trend Reflection

Following newspaper accounts of the hearings investigating the motion picture industry's being accused of creating war hysteria, nothing has been said of movies produced during "The Era of Isolation." Such antiwar movies as "All Quiet on the Western Front," "What Price Glory," "The Big Parade," etc., were made by the very same men who today are being accused of creating war sentiment.

I think this helps substantiate the contention that moving pictures reflect the trend of the times.

'Guns For Soldiers'—An Exception And A Reply

The Washington Post, in its August 27 edition, carried a two-column spread on page 1 under the heading "Guns for Soldiers—150 Planes Ready to Fight—If They had Propellers." This article made numerous misstatements of facts in connection with the Curtiss Wright, Caldwell, N. J., plant, which we request be rectified by you at once.

First, the opening statement of this story states that on August 7 the NLRB certified the results of an election held in this plant. The NLRB has not certified the results of this election and no collective bargaining agency has been certified by the NLRB up to the present time.

In the second statement of this article you state, "The losers in the election, A. F. of L. Machinists, were soreheads. On August 8, the next day, they struck." This statement is incorrect for the facts show that:

On August 8 a committee of employes from the Caldwell plant attempted to meet with management to discuss grievances concerning wage adjustments and the failure of the corporation to make periodic increases which had been promised to the workers in the Caldwell plant. The corporation's representatives in a most ungentlemanly and arrogant manner refused to discuss the matters with the committee, or to indicate in any manner that the questions raised would be satisfactorily disposed of.

As a result, a spontaneous walkout of Caldwell employes occurred on August 8. The workers involved solicited the cooperation of the International Association of Machinists and picket lines were established that evening. The spontaneous walkout of 300 employes spread among the remaining employes of the Caldwell plant, so that on the morning of August 9 approximately 700 of the 900 workers in the Caldwell plant refrained from working.

The men returned to work on August 14 upon the assurance that the wage dispute would be certified to the National Defense Mediation Board. The Mediation Board has this dispute at present before it for its consideration

ERIC PETERSON.

Washington, Aug. 27.

In the article to which Mr. Peterson takes exception The Post erred only in one minor technicality.

On August 8, the National Labor Relations Board had not certified the results of the election, as The Post stated. However, an NLRB regional officer had announced the results—which showed that the A. F. of L. Machinists Union had lost.

The Post is unimpressed both by Mr. Peterson's statement that the result was a "spontaneous walkout" and by his denial that the strike was an A. F. of L. affair.

The facts are that the victors in the strike, the independent union, did not authorize the walkout and, indeed, sought to have the workers return to their jobs. Second, by the evening of the first day, A. F. of L. picket lines were thrown about the plant; a mass meeting was held under the sponsorship of an A. F. of L. Machinists Union organizer, and the strike was under the direction of S. L. Newman, acting A. F. of L. Machinists international vice president.

It appears to The Post more than a mere coincidence that immediately following the announcement of the election results, an unauthorized committee of employes sought to bargain with the management, and immediately thereafter a "spontaneous walkout" occurred. The deduction is, as The Post stated, that the losers in the election were "soreheads."

While it is true that the A. F. of L. complained of irregularities in the election, and filed charges with the NLRB, the fact remains that the NLRB subsequently dismissed the complaint and certified the independent union.

The Post further contends, however—and this was a basic point in the article in question—that even if there had been justifiable complaints, the union which felt itself aggrieved had legal recourse to two agencies, both of which were created for the specific purpose of meting out justice to the workers without the necessity of the workers going on strike and thus hampering national defense.

The first agency was the NLRB. The A. F. of L. had the right of appeal to it, which right was in no way enhanced by a strike.

Second, the union had the right of appeal to the National Defense Mediation Board on the question of adequate wages and working conditions. Again, the union's case was in no way strengthened or speeded by the union's striking.

As a matter of fact, the union did appeal to both these agencies. It could have appealed, and would have received the same consideration without striking.

The Post article contended that in many cases unions failed to utilize these agencies, set up for their defense and justice, in the regular and legal way, without use of the claw and fang method which, in any event, has no place in the present emergency, and particularly has no place when there are peaceful channels open to the union for adjusting its grievances.

In the end the dispute was adjusted by these two Federal agencies. But, in the interim, precious time was lost by a strike which had no justification legally or tactically.

In the face of an action by a responsible A. F. of L. union which was tantamount to putting the union above consideration of national defense, The Post is unable to concur that its article, deploring and condemning these tactics, was not "conducive to a full national defense effort."—Editor's note.

The Post Impressionist

The Calypsonians

While America is becoming more poetry conscious every day and anthologies bursting with the contributions from the rhymers of the land, their products are dry as dust in comparison with that of the unique and colorful Calypsonians, the troubadors of the Island of Trinidad.

The American poet sends his wares and trusts to the gods of chance for immortality. Not so, the rhymers of the Port of Spain. They eschew the printed word and take no risks with editors. They carry their rhymes a la Calypsonian direct to the public and await the encores. So they chant the news in jingle form whether it be the abdication of their king or mere village gossip regarding the faults of a prosperous planter.

Just how come this Calypsonian? Calypso was the goddess who aided and abetted the inconstancy of Ulysses whereby he remained on her island, keeping Ithaca waiting and Penelope knitting seven years longer. But the twentieth century Calypsonian is a Negro inhabitant of the Island of Trinidad with a curious sing-song way of speaking English, half Welsh, half Ulster. He celebrates historical, local and personal events in song. The rhythm is something like the rumba but it is a West Indian variant more like the French-influenced dance of Martinique than the Cuban Rumba.

Some of these Calypsonians have become so adept ferreting out gossip that they exact payment (sort of an NRA setup) just for not singing.

They pitch their tents in the open at Port of Spain about a month before Lent and fill the air with a sing-song said to be unsurpassed on any theatrical stage.

After chanting so long a time, the singer is given an official title, a nom de guerre, and literally so, as the legatee of such rhymes has no peace ever after. They are not at all particular as to rhythm or pronunciation as they stretch or cut the syllables to meet their own needs. Their chant is a satirical commentary and amazingly topical.

An unkind Calypsonian thus addressed himself to the departing governor:

I must be very frank to say
I was very glad when Sir Hollis went away,
He cared only for his own enjoyment;
And did nothing to help us find employment.

But what more employment could a worthy Calypsonian need than to create noble rhymes and sing them in front of a tent to the chorus of tropical katydids? But they cannot emulate a hero overmuch. This to an honorable captain who was a friend to everybody:

In politics he is very strong,
He knows the right from the wrong.

One lyric bears the imposing title of "From Hell to Luxury." Not the story of a poor man who had put up 10 shillings on Whirlaway but a friend of the singer who had to go to jail but it was a real pleasure to be in jail inasmuch as the black superintendent had been discharged.

(Anyone who knows right from wrong
Should be eulogized in song.)

If a Calypsonian decides on his man he is his hero at once and forever. One of many epics anent the Abdication:

Ah, is love alone
That cause King Edward to leave his throne?
On the tenth of December we heard the talk
That he give the throne to the Duke of York.
He says, "Am sorry, my mother will grieve
But I cannot help, am bound to leave."

That was the poetical achievement of the full-fledged Calypsonian, "Caresser." The nicknames of his Calypsonian cohorts are just as intriguing providing the audience can take the long leap from a throne to the jungle, and meet—the Tiger, the Gorilla, the Growler and Attila.

Smug ones of the "tight little isle" might think these singers in the sun do not know what it's all about but they do. Hear ya' hear ya' anent the visit of the King's brother and his Duchess:

In fact, everybody was BENT
On welcoming the Duke and Duchess of Kent.

But the name, Port of Spain—so easy to use in rhyme—rain, main, disdain, refrain, on the wane, Lancelot and Elaine, never, never again. But, alas! the Calypsonian is in no wise Miltonian. Windsor is more difficult to rhyme and they are still working on Simpson.

Although right in the lair of the dark troubadours in 1938, I did not see them, but talked with a friend of theirs on the steamer who was anxious to tip me off on anything I wished to know.

In the theater these Southern singers are as little self-conscious as they are in the midst of carnival spirit outside their tents. Their rhythm is magnificent and their style vivid and original. They cover the current topics of Trinidad in an amazing cross-fire of spontaneous wit. No doubt, our American engineers on the new airbase have had plenty of publicity in the melody and rhythm of their folk-music.

All through the tropical islands, if the steamer remains until late, there is always music coming from somewhere. Sometimes a lone singer, with a stringed instrument, sending out a plaintive melody from the quiet hills, and again, a group of young natives who gather on the lower deck to dance and entertain, their slim bodies moving in perfect rhythm to their song.

Recently, when on a trip to Guatemala, as our train stopped at a nondescript village, we were attracted by music, sweet music, at that. On a porch across the way sat a small boy pounding away on some sort of instrument. He never looked up, as he probably knew his confreres were just outside the train windows ready to catch any nickles we might drop. There was nothing a la chop-stick in this youngster's repertoire either, and he was working up into the classics when our train pulled out.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The American Record

LIPPMANN

THERE can be no true estimate of the present position of the United States except as we measure it by the position a year ago. Much has happened since the early summer of 1940 when, immediately following Hitler's conquest of France, the President and Congress decided to double the strength of the Navy, to create a huge aircraft industry and airforce, and to raise a large Army. Since that time the country has ceased to be neutral, has openly taken sides against the Axis powers, and has begun to take part in a quasi-war in the Atlantic Ocean.

Yet whatever the risks of the position today, the American position is notably stronger than it was 12 months ago. For we were faced then with every risk that we face today from the hostility of Hitler and his allies. But in addition we faced then the risk of having to encounter that hostility while we were unarmed, without allies, and with all of Europe and Asia against us. We have in fact made great progress during the past year in fortifying the defenses of the United States, and the perils which the country faces today are decidedly less than they were 12 months ago. The course which America has pursued has not given us immunity from all sacrifice or from every danger. But it has given the Nation a far greater degree of real security in the protection of its vital interests than most men dared to hope for.

LET us recall the position as it was in September a year ago when, by the exchange of the 50 destroyers for the Atlantic bases, the United States Government ceased in fact to be neutral. We had a good one-ocean Navy, somewhat stronger but not greatly stronger than the Japanese. We had almost no air force and such military aircraft industry as existed we owed chiefly to the British and French contracts made, for the most part, after Congress had repealed the arms embargo. We had not enough Army to protect the key points of North America.

In this unarmed condition we were confronted with Hitler's destruction of the French and other armies of Western Europe, the surrender of the French Empire, and the prospect of the capture of the French navy. The British Isles were under the immediate threat of invasion or of blockade and strangulation, which, had they succeeded, would have meant the destruction or capture of the better part of the British fleet. So grave was this prospect in July and August of last year that serious discussion took place as to whether, in case of a disaster in Britain, the government and any part of the fleet could retreat to Canada. In the negotiations about the 50 destroyers, our Government felt it necessary to ask from Mr. Churchill a solemn promise that the British fleet would never be surrendered to Hitler.

At the same time, with the French fleet out of action and in danger of falling into Hitler's hands, with the British Isles so threatened that the British navy was in the gravest jeopardy, with the Italian navy as yet untried and unscathed, with Russia tied to Hitler, there was formed just 12 months ago the alliance between the Axis and Japan. Thus it was evident that if Britain fell, and there were set up in Britain a Quisling or a Laval or even a Vichy government, the United States would stand isolated and encircled in both oceans by a stupendous combination of naval, air, and military powers.

THE AMERICAN PROBLEM during the past 12 months has been how to free ourselves from this dangerous position. Can anyone say that we have not made considerable progress? We have gained 12 months time during which we have laid the foundations of a great armament industry, of a considerably larger Navy, and of the beginnings of an Army. We have wasted a lot of this precious time. But we have not wasted all of it by any means.

We gained these 12 months because, sustained by our promises to send them supplies, the British refused to surrender and have made themselves immensely stronger. In these 12 months the Italian power has been disabled. In these 12 months the continent of Europe has become increasingly unmanageable and the New Order, which would have aligned Europe against the remaining free peoples, has been made unworkable. In these 12 months Hitler has felt himself compelled to attack Russia. This attack on Russia, besides the effects in Europe, has dislocated his alliance with Japan by bringing into existence a new combination of powers in the Pacific—Chinese, Russian, Dutch, British, and American—which renders further Japanese aggression extremely perilous if not impossible.

THUS in 12 months we have immensely increased our own power. Between the Americas and the Axis there stand the British Commonwealth of Nations, stronger today than they have ever been since the war began. There stand the Chinese, now recognized in Japan and everywhere else as a formidable military power. There stand the Russians, who only a few months ago were counted on to join with the Axis and divide the spoils. There stand the conquered peoples of Europe, now antagonized beyond hope of a reconciliation with Hitler. There stand the peoples of Central and South America, at last beginning to believe that Hitler's victory is not inevitable and that the defense of the Western Hemisphere is not a vain promise.

Let no one say that in this long, dark, and difficult year we have blindly drifted into danger or have been craftily maneuvered into it. The truth is that during this year Americans have in spite of obstruction, misunderstanding, many mistakes and shortcomings, followed a true course by which they have greatly increased the security of America. America is no longer unarmed. America is no longer in danger of losing all its friends and of having their weapons turned against it. America is no longer isolated by a hostile and victorious coalition. On the record of what has actually happened and of what has actually been achieved, we may go forward with confidence that the American policy is right, and with the resolution to pursue it to its final and successful conclusion.

Newsreel From S. A.

By Carlos Nagel

A United Hemisphere

A BIT of conversation overheard at the Chevy Chase Country Club. A South American diplomat asks a group of colleagues: "Do you think the Axis governments would have been so eager for world domination and destruction of the democratic system of government if our nations had not been so busy growing up? We have been utterly indifferent to any suggestion of closer cooperation between the republics of the Americas until now. Our past lack of contact with the United States equals only the comparative isolation which has existed between our own nations when confronting the rest of the world."

Quite true, but the proverbial apathy of the democracies has had some notable exceptions in the past. A century ago Bolivar advocated a union of the American republics and 50 years ago the Secretary of State of the United States, James G. Blaine, invited the independent nations of the Western Hemisphere to Washington "for the purpose of considering and discussing the methods of preventing war."

The question remains: What designs could Hitler have in America if American statesmen had followed the tracks of American engineers like Wheelwright and John Harmon, both of them revered in South America for their constructive work?

THE WASHINGTON POST published yesterday a South American news item which said that Chilean police had taken under custody 13 Nazi leaders, the group being headed by the Commercial Attache of the German Embassy, Herr Walter Boettiger.

It is interesting to notice that every one of these Nazi sympathizers is a German citizen, heads of German enterprises in Chile, a country where they have been allowed to live and prosper. Everyone also is a member of the German clubs and, of course, of the already famous German "Turnvereins." It is obvious that these so-called "sport associations" have in Chile other missions than just to develop body and soul for a constructive life.

Among those taken by the police is Werner Siering Salzman, 53 years of age and who has been in Chile since 1914, born in Germany and obviously very much of a German today. He is president of the Bayer Chemical Co., a corporation rather well-known in the States, and in spite of this also a director of the German chamber of commerce of Santiago. He also, and oblivious of his age, is an "active" member of the Turnverein of Santiago!

Then we have the interesting case of Herr Gustavo Vierling Orzechowski. Herr Gustavo Vierling has of a Chilean only the "o" of his given name, Gustav, since he was born also in Germany in 1890 and has been in Chile since 1922. He discarded highly paid positions with Folsch & Co. and the Philipps South American Export Co. in Bolivia and in Chile in order to accept in 1938 (note the year) the very modest position of representative of the Transocean News Agency, the well-known Hitler propaganda office, established in Chile in 1934 (again note the year). He is the proud bearer of the Iron Cross and the Cross of Honor of Germany, and naturally, is in spite of his 51 years, another "active" member of the Turnverein of Santiago!

Another one of those detained because of un-Chilean activities is Otto Barentin Kiene, born in Germany in 1900, who came to Chile from Bolivia in 1936. Herr Otto also left a position with great future in Bolivia in order to accept a job with Saavendra, Benard & Co. in Santiago. Saavedra, Benard & Co., incidentally, is the exclusive representative of the large American manufacturers, International Harvester, Inc., maker of trucks and farming machinery in peace time but today fulfilling large American Government orders for the defense of this hemisphere.

Since Herr Otto Barentine Kiene is also a conspicuous member of the Santiago Turnverein, it should be most interesting for the Chilean government and for all the South American governments to have a good look at the goings-on in the harmless sounding Turnvereins, so abundant in all the countries south of the Rio Grande.

PERU, the land of fabulous wealth, precious metals and the legendary Inca gold, relies for its main income on a quite prosaic industry.

Billions of sea-birds, living on the islands of Huanillos, Punta Lobos, and Pabellon de Picas provide the government the famous guano deposits with a yearly output of 40,000 tons. The white islands are seen from board ship while traveling down the west coast of South America.

THE A-B-C nations of South America, Argentina, Brazil and Chile, with a total of about 3500 miles of sea coast to defend in case of totalitarian invasion, have a total of five battleships, seven cruisers, six coast defense boats, 32 destroyers, 16 submarines, plus auxiliary vessels and an odd number of river patrol boats.

Among the battleships the Argentine vessels Moreno and Rivadavia were built in the United States and have each 27,940 displacement tons. Their armament is composed of 12 12-inch and 12 16-inch guns each. The Chilean battleship Almirante Latorre, built in England, with 28,000 tons displacement, carries 10 14-inch and 14 6-inch guns. This powerful ship is the only South American man-of-war that not only has been under enemy fire, but fought the Germans in spite of the fact that Chile was neutral during the last war and is very much neutral during the present. While about to be delivered to a Chilean crew when the first World War broke out, the British Admiralty suddenly seized and received the ship which served during the last war as the Canada. The Chilean government took over again the battleship after the war and received from the British government, as a token of gratitude, an additional flotilla of six submarines. It is claimed that the Chilean navy is in training as well as in sentiments as British as King George's fleet.

VENEZUELA, the one country in South America without internal or external debts, and where you pay no taxes, has been in the past more than once the proving grounds of the Monroe Doctrine. European powers have threatened its coastline with blockades and each time Uncle Sam was ready to reinforce President Monroe's principle of "hands off the Americas." A boundary question between British Guiana and Venezuela, right in the heart of the tropical jungle, made the irate British lion howl in the last decade of the nineteenth century. Then again in 1902 the queer combination of Germany and England together tried to collect past due bills by sending battleships. Each time the United States said nix and the Europeans had to back down.

SOUTH American army officers, assiduously watching the present American Army going through its growing pains, have nothing but admiration for its men, armament, barracks and equipment. The quality of material in uniforms makes them stagger when trying to calculate the cost. But what amazes these officers is the food the American soldier receives. A Chilean Lieutenant-Colonel, on seeing tons of eggs being delivered at Fort Bragg, remarked: "In my country a soldier never sees an egg, unless he is lucky enough in maneuvers to have time to wait for a chicken to fulfill its duty!" The standard ration of the army in most South American countries is beans, roasted meat, bread and coffee. No pie, no ice-cream and no eggs.

Perhaps the most rugged soldiers of South America are the Paraguayans and the Chileans. The former gave examples of endurance, stamina and valor in the last Chaco war and in the famous war of the past century when that tiny country fought the formidable combination of Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay. Paraguay fought for five years, its population declined from 1,336,000 to 220,000 when women were battling in the Sierra. The Chileans made a name for themselves in the war against Peru and Bolivia in 1879. A Chilean army marched for weeks and weeks across the desert of Atacama without seeing one tree, ever but stood, in a country where it never rains.

The Gallup Poll

Majority of Farmers Willing to Peg Crop Prices At Present Level if All Staples Are Fixed

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 12.—With Administration's price control bill scheduled for early consideration in Congress, two outstanding facts about the attitude of farmers toward price control are revealed in a Nation-wide Institute survey of farm sentiment.

1. Despite the efforts of the farm bloc to boost farm prices higher, a small majority of farmers polled in the survey say that the price they are now getting for their crops is a fair price.

2. The majority of farmers are willing to have the Government fix the price of crops at the present level, provided the prices of the things which farmers buy are also fixed at present levels.

The attitude of wage and salary earners toward price control was shown in a poll reported yesterday. It indicated that a large majority—82 per cent of those polled—were willing to have wages frozen at the present level if prices were also fixed.

How the farmers feel about the situation is shown in the following results of the Institute's survey among a cross-section of farmers the Nation over:

"Considering costs of production, do you think that the price you are now getting for your chief cash crop or product is a fair price?"

Consider Price Fair	52%
Consider Price Not Fair	34
Undecided	14

"Would you be willing to have the Government keep prices where they are now on the things you sell, provided the Government also fixes the prices of the things you buy at the present level?"

YES	55%
NO	28
UNDECIDED	17

8000 American Volunteers Serving With Canadian Army

By the Associated Press

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—The Yanks have been coming into Canada's armed forces for some time now, and the latest authoritative estimate is that there are about 8000 United States citizens in the Canadian active army.

Precise figures are not given; for in the earlier stages of the war, when it was technically unlawful for a United States citizen to join a foreign army, many a volunteer from south of the border gave his home town as Winnipeg or Toronto or Vancouver and became, statistically, just another Canadian soldier in training for overseas duty.

Now the volunteer from the United States has an openly recognized status on both sides of the line. He is not required to swear allegiance to the King, and he knows that his Canadian uniform will carry, in plain sight, the identifying letters U. S. A.

They're Still Coming

In the Royal Canadian Air Force about 10 per cent of the air crew personnel and an undisclosed percentage of ground crew are citizens of the United States. That could be anywhere from 2000 to 10,000 men. How many there are in the Royal Canadian Navy is not disclosed, but the number is said to be very small compared to the other services.

They still are coming across the border, as the casual observer can see from the increasing number of uniforms with the U. S. A. identification, and from newspaper stories about individual volunteers.

They are not, however, coming over in sufficient number to make up the deficit in strictly Canadian recruiting.

The midsummer recruiting campaign was successful enough. The army asked for 32,000 men for replacement purposes in the overseas forces, and the campaign ended with 34,625 signed up for service. For a while the volunteers were coming in at the rate of as high as 750 a day.

Army Men Uneasy

In the last month or so, however, the stream has dwindled to the point where army men are becoming uneasy and, in private at least, definitely express their dissatisfaction.

They mention three principal reasons for the recruiting slump:

1. The fact that the Canadian forces overseas have not yet participated in any land battles.

2. Overemphasis of the urgent need of weapons rather than men. Young men read the recruiting posters urging them to enlist, but at the same time they read or hear speeches suggesting that every available man is needed in war production.

3. Dispatches from the Russian front, telling of the many millions of men involved in the far-flung carnage, and usually emphasizing the thought that Russia has more than enough men to win, if only war materials enough can be shipped from this side to keep her going.

Appeal to Employers

The Ministry of Defense has appealed to employers to encourage workers to enlist, even if that means irksome problems of readjustment and replacement added to the other worries of management.

Advocates of conscription, however, argue that such appeals are only postponing an issue which has to be faced sooner or later.

An editorial in the Gazette, Montreal, suggests that employers are being asked to function as a sort of unofficial selective service organization, taking upon themselves a responsibility properly belonging to the government.

"Employers of labor are being asked, almost in so many words," says the newspaper, "to determine what men can be spared and then, virtually, to send them into the army."

From the beginning of the controversy over conscription for overseas service, opponents of the volunteer system have contended it is unfair to let the more patriotic sections of the population carry all the burden which should be shared by the whole community.

This argument, of course, is given added weight by the revelation that some Canadian families have as many as four sons overseas, while others have none in uniform, even at home.

Burma's Defenses

British Fears Eased

By F. Tillman Durdin

Copyright by New York Times

Rangoon, Burma, Sept. 12.—British military strength in Burma and civil defense preparations are very rapidly being brought to the level of those of other British territories in the Far East.

Neither the Sino-Japanese nor the European war had seriously affected Burma, nor even stirred deep Burmese interest, until France collapsed and the Japanese marched into northern Indo-China. This bulwark buffer territory between Burma and a potential enemy suddenly disappeared and Burma faced the threat of a Japanese attack that might have the double purpose of cuting China's main traffic artery with the outside world and striking a blow for the Axis.

The recent Japanese occupation of southern Indo-China has increased that threat and indeed has created a possibility the Japanese might open an assault on British and Dutch territories in southeast Asia by invasion of Burma. Thus the least prepared of all British Far Eastern possessions recently found itself the most threatened.

THE BRITISH worked rapidly to improve the situation. Troops have now been moved in from India and the near East—crack Australian and Indian units—the native forces have expanded their military equipment of all kinds, more airdromes have been constructed, and Royal Air Force contingents have been brought in. Under the Singapore command Burma can readily be reinforced from Malaya, India, and even the near East, and British authorities here are now beginning to feel easier about the Burman position.

The biggest teak producing country in the world, Burma is rushing its shipbuilding, not only for general empire war use, but, for its own recently created naval force of minesweeping patrol vessels manned by native crews. The evacuation program in Rangoon is thinning the population, government departments are being decentralized and dispersed to the suburbs, antiaircraft defenses are being reinforced, and the civil population is being organized and trained for air raid precaution work.

BURMA'S eastern frontiers are marked by rugged mountain and jungle terrain, inhabited for the most part by primitive tribes and people. The only highway from the east and its only dry-weather road runs from Chiengal to northern Thailand. The British are giving special attention to defenses against attack on this route. With the 400-mile frontier running through successive ranges of mountains and malarial valleys from the railhead to Nowi Gen. G. K. McLeod, commander in chief in Burma, has a transport problem on his hands equally as tough as have the Chinese with their Burma Road.

Trucks, private cars and taxicabs in Rangoon and Mandalay are being commandeered to help move up supplies and men. Hardy Texas mules, especially brought in for the purpose; elephants and wiry little Burma ponies are doing a job that cannot be done by mechanical means. Gen. McLeod is expecting 1600 American lease-lend trucks soon to help him along with his transport problem.

Burma is no longer an easy mark for any invader and will soon be as hard, in proportion, as any other part of the British Empire.

Refugee Tells Of Seeing Thyssen Abducted in Cannes

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 12 (AP).—Robert Plaisance, a refugee from Cannes, France, said here today he had witnessed the capture of Fritz Thyssen and was told later that the onetime German industrialist and his wife had committed suicide while in prison.

"Two motor cars of French police drove up to the hotel (Mont Fleury)," he related. "We were told later that the cars flew swastika flags, though we could not see them from our home.

"Mr. and Mrs. Thyssen were moved without being allowed to take any of their personal belongings. Later, someone came for their toilet articles and night clothes.

"The Thyssens were known to keep the means of committing suicide on their persons at all times. Later, the manager of the hotel, a man named Tamn, said the Thyssens had killed themselves."

Thyssen left Germany November 15, 1939. His whereabouts since that time has become one of the major mysteries of the war.

Two Phases Of The Movie Scrap

THE SCRAP in Washington over the inquiry into the movie industry can be divided into two phases.

PEGLER

First, does the sly and dishonest procedure by which this inquiry moves into action, disguised as a preliminary inquiry to determine whether a formal, full-dress investigation should be made, consist with New Deal morals and custom?

You bet your sweet life it does.

It is a rotten, Hitlerian subterfuge but, unfortunately for the Administration, and for all of us, it is solidly based on a recent precedent set by the Administration itself in the preliminary investigation of the relationship between newspapers and radio stations under common ownership. That clever little scheme has now turned on the cunning tricksters who thought it up and fanged them good. In the radio case the Government highbinders weren't going to investigate the main proposition. No, they were only going to do a little preliminary questioning, insinuating and smearing and get over the effect of a full inquiry anyway, just in case there should be no full inquiry.

NOW the so-called isolationists who may not be pro-Hitler but couldn't help Hitler half as much if they admitted that they were, have adopted the same unprincipled method of approach and, although it is still a nasty and depressing example to beset the people by an agency of their Government, the Government itself is in no position to denounce the trick, because the Government's own hands aren't clean.

Second, should the movie industry be investigated at all?

Well, there is no rule on that. Congress just investigates on its own authority and any person or institution which goes under investigation by a hostile committee gets a fairly good preview of Hell. These investigations are not anything like court inquiries, for the defendant has no rights and can't defend himself. Nevertheless, they are an established custom and there is no more reason to protect the movie industry than there was to protect those individuals who were disgracefully persecuted by Presidential order in the income tax inquiry as punishment for their political opposition to the New Deal.

EVERYONE who has ever had any relations with the movie industry knows that in spots it is unimaginably foul. Some of its business ethics would shame a dope peddler and it reeks of nepotism, discrimination and favoritism.

A few stray hints of its relationship to the underworld came out in the income tax trial of Joe Schenck in New York, as witness those on the employers' side of the bargaining table who bought out the unspeakable Willie Bioff, the union racketeer.

Incidentally, the newspaper reporting which has come out of Hollywood in the last 20 years under the names of shabby sycophants, party moochers and outright grafters has been a sad reproach to journalism. With the exception of the scandalous sex stuff which welled up out of Los Angeles and broke over the country in a slimy wave after the Fatty Arbuckle, Desmond Taylor and Wallie Reed incidents, the real news of the moving picture trade has been smothered in cheap publicity served in the guise of gossip, mostly under subsidy in one guise or another.

THE COMMUNISTS have burrowed into all departments except the finance management, and the retention of Jimmy Roosevelt at $33,000 a year, ostensibly by Sam Goldwyn but actually by God knows whom, when the heat was rising was typical of the brassy nerve of those who think they can buy anything and haven't been far wrong many times.

There is plenty of reason to investigate the whole industry and plenty to be learned by investigation but Wendell Willkie certainly was right when he made the point that nobody need apologize for opposing Hitler.

But the investigation should look for crookedness and for the spoor of the Communist and Nazi and the chiseling politician, and not for the hidden meaning in films which speak for themselves to people who are highly intelligent unless our enrollment of almost two million students in nearly 1400 colleges is just an idle boast.

Big Radio Networks Again Challenge Authority of FCC

The Nation's two largest broadcast networks, National and Columbia, challenged again yesterday the power of the FCC to promulgate regulations governing them.

John T. Cahill and John J. Burns, counsel for NBC and CBS, respectively, appeared before the commission to argue against putting network regulations into effect and asked the commission to join with the networks in asking Congress for a "comprehensive" radio law.

The arguments were in connection with the petition by the Mutual Broadcasting System for some modifications of the commission's regulations. Mutual, while generally supporting the regulations, is asking particularly for a modification to permit a network-station affiliation contract of two or three years instead of one year as provided by the commission. The commission issued its network regulations last May, but they have not been put into effect. It said recently the industry would be given reasonable time to make necessary adjustments before the regulations become effective.

Describing the regulations as "arbitrary and unreasonable," Burns reiterated Columbia's position that Congress had not given the commission power to regulate network-station regulations and practices.

"The language of the act makes it clear that the only power to make regulations with respect to chain broadcasting which Congress intended to confer upon the commission is that dealing principally with the physical operations of stations," Burns said.

"The record before the commission demonstrates that the commission has founded its regulations upon speculation. It has drawn on its imagination to find evil without adequate appraisal of the confusion its 'reforms' will bring to radio broadcasting. We repeat that these regulations are not justified by any existing or threatened evils. They are not founded upon adequate demonstrable facts or upon common knowledge or experience."

"The effect of the commission's order," Cahill said, "will be the destruction of Nation-wide broadcasting."

Leningrad-Moscow Railroad One of Most Vital in Russia

One of the most important of the regions around Leningrad is that lying southeast of the besieged city, the area through which runs the railway to Moscow, points out a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"Here is one of the most valuable railways in Russia," says the bulletin, the "October Railway," named after the October, 1917, revolution. "The line formerly was named the 'Nicholas Railway.'

"The territory southeast of Leningrad along the railroad is rocky and thickly forested," the bulletin continues. "Three large hyro-electric plants there support its claim to being the most abundant water-power area in Russia.

"Southeastward from Leningrad the October Railway passes through industrial suburbs of the city. Not far beyond it enters seemingly endless rolling lowlands dotted with swamps and forests. Still farther from Leningrad the rails reach the Volkhov River. This stream and the Neva, just east of Leningrad, are the principal members of a system of rivers and lakes that covers the entire area.

"Agriculture dominates the lives of the people of this region. Russian writers assert that scientific methods of farming have resulted in a 50 per cent crop increase over prerevolutionary days. Here, the finest flax in the U. S. S. R. is grown. Wheat is raised in abundant quantities and dairy farming has developed rapidly. As long as the Russians hold this territory they need not worry about aluminum for airplanes; for bauxite ore is one of its chief natural resources. Cellulose, paper pulp and fertilizers are the principal others."

Females Again Battle For Male in 'Our Wife'

Ruth Hussey Wins Douglas in Earle Comedy; Coleman Clark's Table Tennis Stage Novelty; Odds and Ends Before the Week Ends

By Richard L. Coe
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

"OUR WIFE." Columbia picturization of a screenplay by P. J. Wolfson, adapted from the play by Lillian Day and Lyon Mearson, costarring Ruth Hussey, Melvyn Douglas and Ellen Drew, with Charles Coburn, John Hubbard, Harvey Stephens and Theresa Harris. Directed by John M. Stahl. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

FOR ALL THEIR CIVILIZED VENEER, filmland evidently believes the ladies are primitive to the marrow. For the second time in as many days, a new picture has arrived in which a lone and not particularly dashing male is fought over and for by two charming, up-to-the-instant females. The newcomer in question, "Our Wife," arrived yesterday on the Earle screen with Melvyn Douglas as the prize for which Ruth Hussey and Ellen Drew battle.

RUTH HUSSEY

Far less serious in its underlying thought than "When Ladies Meet," "Our Wife" is amusing once it gets its conflict under way. There is a lot of piddling about in the early reels, but once woman meets woman the battle rages brightly enough—though not spectacularly.

That hesitant early portion reveals to us just how Susan Drake, Ph. D., comes to meet Jerry Marvin, orchestra leader, and take charge of his life. Jerry is a drunkard, almost as tiresome as a real-life drunkard. But anyway, her brother, father and herself come to mean a lot to this sot who has taken to drink to get away from a pretty, but dull, wife. He's one of those cinema chaps who writes wonderful modern composition that are expected to please everybody. Susan leads him on in this regard and the music critics go overboard. At this point his wife shows up. She still hasn't got her divorce and when she discovers Susan, her brother and father are living in her erstwhile home (but not sponging, dear me no), "Babe" gets a fake case of paralysis. Susan knows, Babe knows Susan knows and the kampf wages around how to spill the truth.

Acting Honors to Ruth Hussey

You'll note that unlike "When Ladies Meet," this illustration of marriage versus the third party ends up with Divorce Triumphant, but since Susan is pretty much at home in Gerry's house, the real, and despicable, wife becomes the interloper. It's a subtle variation. Another sidelight on this latest in Columbia's marital farce series is that it's practically spotless. There's not a double-entendre on the sound-track, or not so we could entendre.

In the casting, the honors go to charming Ruth Hussey, whose reserve is belied by her acidulous line-reading. Melvyn Douglas, as the musician with the lovely house, is thoroughly at home in the role of baffled masculinity and Ellen Drew is pretty enough as the annoying wife. Comedy is handled, and nicely, by Charles Coburn and John Hubbard, father and brother to Miss Hussey.

There's distinct novelty on the Earle stage, what with Sharkey, the Seal, and Coleman Clark, the table-tennis whiz. Mr. Clark's novelty is swell watching. With his collegiate partner he sketches a few notions of pingpong in the Nineties, concluding his act with a set whose outcome, if preconceived, is reached with action the variety stages don't often present. Sharkey, of course, is wonderful as ever, doing his tricks with one eye on food, the other on his audience.

Something new in ventriloquism is essayed, and very successfully too, by Parker, whose "Porthole" sits in stage center and tells what people in the audience have in their pockets. This one will keep you guessing.

For dancing there are the pretty taps of raven-haired Sunny Rice and two pleasant routines by the Roxyettes. First of these is a colorful Spanish number, "Dolores," with the curtain coming down on the suspenseful "Toytown" routine on stilts.

Altogether pleasant and it doesn't matter a whit if you're late for the feature. You'll probably like it better if you are.

AS THE WEEK ENDS: The Newsreel boys got the President's Thursday night talk from the White House to the screens in nothing flat . . . The Capitol, Earle, Palace, Keith's, Metropolitan, Columbia and Trans-Lux all had them at yesterday's first show . . . Tonight Miss Washington, Jean Cavanaugh, who placed third in the Nation-wide competition for Miss America, will make two personal appearances on the S. S. Potomac's Moonlight Cruises. Ralph Hawkins' and Bob Simpson's orchestras are both aboard for the two sailings, first at 8:45, second at half after midnight . . . Tomorrow night's cruise at 8:45 spells finale for the steamer's summer . . . Tragedy of this column's existence yesterday was missing that luncheon for the "Navy Blues" Sextette at the Carlton. From all reports the girls should be lasting influences on the film they're promoting. There was a late invitation from the Naval Academy to the young ladies for a visit and, while their tour is thoroughly accounted for, the powers that are were trying to work it out somehow. Good luck, boys . . . And, in case, N. B. B. is turned in, that wasn't the only tragedy around here yesterday. They took down a couple of walls. "The Passing of the Third Floor Back?"

And the Old Dash Still Seems to Be There

GLORIA SWANSON surely one of Hollywood's most astonishing personalities, Miss Swanson will be along at RKO-Keith's soon in "Father Takes a Wife," with Adolphe Menjou as the gentleman of the title. Though her last film, "Music in the Air," was released in 1934, it's evident from the recent portrait above, that the Swanson glamour remains untarnished

War-Monger Charge Kills Title, Not Plot

By Frederick C. Othman
United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, Sept. 12.—Paramount had a first-rate title for a movie thriller: "Air Raid."

Came the Senatorial investigation into charges of war mongering by the movie makers. The experts began to worry about that title. Maybe the Senators might think wrong thoughts about Paramount. So the movie makers thought and thought.

Yesterday they came up with a new name for the same picture, a title which makes the film sound like another one of those quickies. The picture now is called: "Midnight Angel."

People will think they're going to see a movie about the Salvation Army rehabilitating gents on skid row, or maybe about the cabaret girl who clips the rich lad and after seven reels is sorry for it. Actually, this film is a little rip-snorter which starts with an air raid on a great American city. Comes the black out.

Robert Preston, the hero, escapes from the Black Maria which is taking him to prison to face murder charges. Only he's got on handcuffs, and the night is mighty black.

So he bumps into Martha O'Driscoll, a telephone girl, who feels sorry for him. Then begins the chase through the blackened streets, with the cops after Preston and Miss O'Driscoll, and them after the real murderers. Its a melodramatic theme, all right, with the excitement heightened by the blackout and the drone of enemy planes. That's all it is, Paramount insists. Entertainment only.

Soviet Films Open

One of the reasons Adolf Schicklgruber thought he could mop the Red army off the map in a clean sweep is possibly such "propaganda" films as opened a three-night run in the Press Club auditorium last night. Central feature of the all-Soviet program is its army's occupation of Bassarabia a year ago. A descriptive short of army life and folk dance sequences fill out the bill.

While the sound track (in English) makes the event something of world-shattering importance, the camera's record is more like an amateur performance of "The Chocolate Soldier." The planes are comparatively few, most army trucks are wood, tanks are ancient, Rumanian resistance is nil. Compared with either German or American, the film technique is pathetic.

And yet the Russians have withstood Hitler's blitz. Behind their Slavic, rugged masks must lie the answer. R. L. C.

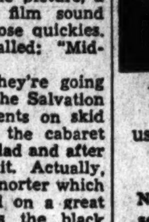
New York, Sept. 12.

Prince Mike Romanoff now has become Hollywood's foremost restaurateur, and his place is patronized by the most distinguished members of the film colony. But Mike's rise to this state of eminence was not achieved without tribulation. And when, in those earlier days, creditors beset him, demanding their due, Mike's depression was most apparent . . . Harry Crocker, the West Coast columnist, arrived at Romanoff's laden with $1000 he had saved for a trip to New York. He saw the gloomy proprietor, and asked: "Why are you so troubled?" . . . Romanoff explained—about an $850 debt which had accrued and must be paid forthwith . . . "In that case," said Crocker, foregoing his New York trip, "here—here's the money. You'll owe it to me" . . . Mike was appreciative, thanked his newest creditor, and used that $850—for a trip to New York.



ORSON WELLES

Judith Anderson, who is in the new picture, "All Through the Night," was about to make her entrance before the camera. The set was that of an antique shop . . . The technicians heard her scream and rushed to her assistance. They found Miss Anderson shivering in fright and pointing to a portrait on the wall . . . "I—I thought," she stammered, "he was going to jump right down at me." The man whose cold stare sleeted from the portrait was the producer for whom Judith Anderson had starred in many plays—the theater-loving, movie-hating David Belasco.

Marc Blitzstein, two-time winner of a Guggenheim Fellowship, went to Hollywood for a vacation and to raise funds for the production of his opera, "No For An Answer." He visited Orson Welles and Dolores Del Rio and prepared to play his composition for them . . . In the rare gardens of this Bel-Air estate, with Miss Del Rio's mother in formal black lace attire, making her quiet entrances and exits, Blitzstein seated himself at the piano and gave lusty voice to the labor lament of his left-wing opera . . . He reached the middle passages—a crescendo wherein he banged heavily and shouted hoarsely—when Orson arose and said: "This would be a wonderful moment to tell you to go on. But right now," he reminded, rushing the ladies to cover, "there's an earthquake."

George Jessel is rehearsing his new show at the Belasco Theater. Yesterday, when he and Sophie Tucker arrived there, they met Morris Gest, the producer who married Belasco's daughter . . . "Whenever a show played here, Mr. Belasco used to give the producer a 25-cent piece," said Gest. "I have two of those Belasco quarters with me now—so here they are—one to you, Sophie, and one to you, George" . . . "Say, if Belasco could've made it 75 cents," said Jessel, "I'd sell him a piece of the show. But with only a quarter, all it will pay for is the No. 2 road company."

In Puebla, Mexico, a few days ago, a birthday party was held in honor of Maximo Camacho, brother of the President of Mexico. It was a completely informal party, attended by the dignitaries of the nation as well as the folks in the neighborhood . . . One of the guests —Richard Gully, cousin of Anthony Eden—was startled by this informality and left as quickly as he could . . . shaking his head and muttering sadly: "This never could have happened at the Duke of Devonshire's."

The New York State Legislative Committee now is deciding upon permission for the insurance companies to invest their funds in common stocks, as protection against inflation.

—HEDDA HOPPER—

Not Toil, But Trouble

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 12. In most every village there's a gossip, a no-good lowdown drunkard, a town crier. But we have in our village the champion worrier—Jack Benny.

JACK BENNY

With nothing on his mind until his show opens in October, he going slightly screwy. Now he doesn't know whether to put his first show on from New York during the World Series, or from here. So daily he shows up at 9 a. m. on the set of "Johnny Eager" to watch Mervyn Leroy direct, 'cause Jack says that's what he'll eventually be. In other words, the lad is restless. Incidentally, when he was back east and Rochester was making a personal appearance, Jack stopped off in Chicago and did three shows for his ace houseman. Another slight case of cooperation.

While Edgar Bergen was East, Katharine Hepburn has been enjoying the hospitality of his hillside home. Sure, for pay! The other night Producer Gabriel Pascal went up and cooked her a Hungarian goulash, which Katie said was out of this world. She wrote down the recipe, sent it on to her newlywed sister, and said, "Feed this to your husband and he'll never leave you!"

With Ida Lupino turning down one of the finest parts of the year because they wouldn't put her husband in the leading role, I was reminded of those other wedded combinations that did the same thing. Remember Ruth Chatterton, who insisted upon having hubby George Brent in her picture. George is still a star, but she's no longer making them. It all but finished Mary and Doug Fairbanks when they did "Taming of the Shrew" together. So before Ida does it again, I'd advise her to stop, look, and listen.

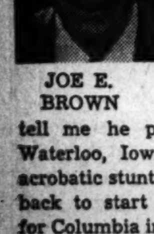
"Rags" Ragland, the toughie, had been handing Skelton one. Finally Skelton opened up, said, "Listen! Everybody knows you were in Burlesque. I just want you to know I've been in lower 'burlycue' shows than you have." Hollywood may look down its aristocratic nose at burlesque, but believe me, there's no training in the world like it. Every comic comes out a star. And don't overlook the strip teasers, either.

Chester Morris, Jean Parker, and Rose Hobart, working late on "No Hands on the Clock," wanted a fourth for a bridge game, so called a Western Union boy. The kid took them for 500 points and left smiling. Gives you an idea, wot? . . . I asked Monty Woolley what he intends doing after finishing "The Man Who Came to Dinner," in which he's the lecherous, disagreeable, but charming old man. He said, "Hedda, after 110 weeks with this sly old devil, believe it or not, I'm going vacationing." And believe me, he's earned one.

—LOUELLA O. PARSONS—

Iowa's Waterloo Is Another Thing

Hollywood, Sept. 12 (INS).—Joe E. Brown couldn't have been prouder of receiving the Carnegie medal than he was over being able once more to do a somersault. He was incapacitated for so long following his automobile accident that he called long distance to tell me he pitched ball at Waterloo, Iowa, and did his acrobatic stunts. Joe E. comes back to start "Cowboy Joe" for Columbia in October. With the demand for these comics and the wide-mouthed comedian's popularity, he should get a royal welcome from his many fans.



JOE E. BROWN

His mother lives in Toledo and you can imagine his happiness at the way the home town welcomed him. He'll be master of ceremonies at the Governor's dinner in Milwaukee at the American Legion convention and he stops at Dixon to take a part in my day. From Milwaukee he goes to the Louis-Nova fight to be joined by his son, Don, an instructor at a government flying school at Ontario, Calif.

Ketti Frings' "Hold Back the Dawn" has been a sensation whenever it has been previewed. Apparently it has established her as an author. Now she has written a comedy called "Husbands Are Funny People," about a middle-aged man who falls in love with a young girl and then decides to get a new husband for his wife. Miss Frings is certainly versatile when she can turn from as somber an epic as "Hold Back the Dawn" to as funny comedy as "Husbands Are Funny People."

RKO has bought Pearl Buck's new novel, "China Sky," the first fiction to reflect at length the Chinese-Japanese war. Well, no other woman writer knows the Orient as well as Mrs. Buck, whose "The Good Earth" was a sensation with Luise Rainer. The new story is a romantic-adventure about a man and woman doctor in love who are working in a place which is constantly bombed by Japanese. The man is married to another woman—a Japanese spy. So far there is no cast—but if Luise Rainer could be made up to look as Oriental as she did in "Good Earth," any American actor or actress could play the roles.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Jane Withers' new boy friend is Robert Cornell, her leading man. She has been out with him five times chaperoned by Mrs. Withers; Robert Preston says it isn't true that he and Mrs. Preston have dated the stork, but hopes that it will be true some day; Lucille Ball is out of the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital after a minor operation.

RKO-Keith's

Keeping track of "Citizen Kane" needs a statistician more than a detective. The Orson Welles creation yesterday began the third week of its second run at RKO-Keith's, chalking up seven in all, to equal the staying qualities of "Snow White," the record holder at the Fifteenth Street playhouse. Supporting the Actor-Author-Director in the role of the controversial newspaper publisher are his own Mercury Theater Players, headed by Joseph Cotten, Dorothy Comingore and Everett Sloan.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Reader Charges This Column With 'Falling Down On Job' of Helping Young Divorced Mother Find Solution of Her Problem of Domestic Enslavement

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a constant follower of your column. Sometimes when I read your replies, I think, "Three rousing cheers for Mary!" But other times, I would like to shake you until your teeth rattled. Such was my reaction on reading your reply of September 9 to "Confused." This was the case of the 23-year-old divorced mother of two small children, who scarcely dares call her soul her own since returning to her parents' home to live. Her parents take charge of her alimony income, to spend as they see fit; expect her to do "most of the housework, as well as all the washing and ironing, in addition to caring for the children," and then take angry issue with her desire to "go out once in a while" of evenings, after her babies are in bed.

You devoted six full paragraphs to berating her parents' attitude,—calling it "unjust, unreasonable, non-cooperative, outrageously tyrannical, greedily despotic," etc.,—but only one paragraph to corrective suggestions. I think you fell down on the job. If she had asked me (which, of course, she didn't) I would have advised her to talk to her pastor.

I assume she is a Protestant, since she obtained a divorce. Therefore, she might be interested in placing her babies at the Swartzell Methodist Home for Children,—which I understand is splendid. If she is a Methodist, she should be able, with the aid of her pastor, to enter her children there. I know two girls, placed there at an early age, who stayed on from choice after their father remarried. In fact, they were later married from there.

If she is a Catholic, her attention should be called to St. Vincent's Home School, of which I hear good reports. Her parish priest would be her logical adviser in that case. In any event, whatever her religious affiliation, I am sure her church would gladly cooperate with her in placing the children in an environment where they would receive good physical care and Christian training, and be taught to respect her for the sacrifices she is making in their behalf.

She mentioned that she was taking a job with the telephone company and added: "I am wondering how to cope with the (home) situation." If she is to be a telephone operator, her hours at first will be irregular and the compensation small. She will not be in a position to give her children systematic personal supervision; and she will be able to do a much better job if she goes to work with her mind at ease about their welfare. Since their father contributes $30 a month toward their support, she can easily make arrangements for boarding them in a home of the type suggested.

Supposing the children cannot qualify for enrollment in any church schools, I would advise her to investigate the possibilities of the Children's Village—formerly the Washington City Orphanage. Surely, when it turns out such distinguished citizens as James E. West, chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America, no parent need be embarrassed or dubious about placing his children there.

Out of her $80 a month alimony allowance, she may conscientiously allocate $50 a month ($25 each) for the children's institutional care, keeping back $30 to supplement her modest wage, in order to maintain herself in a respectable neighborhood. Pleasant surroundings are an asset in rehabilitation. In her leisure hours, she may regularly visit the children and also take part in church or Y. W. C. A. activities, where she will have opportunities to make friends of good character. And now, Miss Haworth, if you lack the courage to publish this outburst, will you please see that my suggestions come to the attention of "Confused" by some other means? L. C. M.

Calls Doctor's Aversion To Women Abnormal

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I read your column frequently and more often than not, I am in accord with your analyses of problems and advice thereon. However, your answer of September 10 seemed to me to be inadequate and even unfair to the woman concerned, as well as to womanhood generally. Here is a doctor's wife, who deplores the fact that her husband cannot endure women socially, despite the fact that he is "rather well known for his work with women." She says she "must know whether his condition can be corrected." She wonders if it is a "normal attitude," or whether she is the one whose attitude is wrong—for feeling vaguely unhappy about his behavior.

You tell her that his attitude "obviously stems from the fact that, on the subjective side of his existence, he is a happily married man; and, on the worldly side, in the realm of friendships, distinctly 'a man's man,'—a fact which Women in general should have the perception to see and the good sense to respect." But for my part, I cannot imagine a man of scientific mind being unable, or absolutely unwilling, to converse with women on those subjects which you describe as having "a preponderantly masculine flavor,—such as science, politics, finance, sports, philosophy, religious theory, etc."

It is true your correspondent admits to being "over 35 years of age," which may mean that her doctor husband is middle-aged, and hence imbued with a different view of womankind's mental caliber than prevails among men of my generation. I happen to be 36 years of age, and my friends of both sexes grew up participating as equals in every discussion I went to a woman's college, where, during the week, girls engaged in "bull sessions" covering such topics as religion, philosophy, politics, economics etc. But on weekends, men were included, and the element of sex (if it made any difference) only rendered the discussions more stimulating. The difference of viewpoint and experience implicit in being female (as versus male) should be of special interest and value to the scientifically inclined man's intellect, it seems to me.

Which brings me to the point I wish to make, namely: I think this doctor is not a well rounded personality. It occurs to me that he may have deep-seated homosexual leanings; and that he may have married for purely conventional or expedient reasons. I realize, of course, that such speculations should properly come from the trained psychiatrist; that they savor of impertinence when voiced by the layman. But I think they have sufficient potential relevance to be considered.

Furthermore, I disagree with your conclusion that the husband's attitude, "properly appraised," leaves his wife nothing to complain about and much to be proud and thankful for. I think it is a mistake for her to be "content with crumbs of his companionship,"—as she says she is. I should have advised her to try to make herself a suitable intellectual companion to him, in addition to being his gracious hostess. If their sexual relationship is reciprocally satisfying, then perhaps the wife is to be chided for frivolously concentrating on social ambitions and a round of parties—rather than commended for having a husband who is stonily disinterested in women and intellectually responsive only to men. Sincerely yours,

FRIENDLY READER.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

These 'Designing Women' Show How Dress Tricks Can Aid Figure

For the woman whose waistline is not so slim, the two-piece outfit above, that looks like a one-piece dress is more flattering than a suit. It is made of green wool with sunburst tucking that outlines the torso. Note that the outfit is all one uninterrupted color

With a good pair of shoulders, the dolman sleeved dress, as worn above by actress Gene Tierney, is becoming. The small waist and flaring skirt off-set fullness at the sleeves. The new dolman is also good to conceal plump arms

If you are on the flat chested side, choose a dress like the one above. Vertical tucks in the bosom, and short sleeves give above-the-waist emphasis. This version is of Eastman rayon—a smart shirtwaister for town and country

Deanna Durbin, who has a round, full face, has chosen a V-neck, rather than a high, buttoned-up collar, to give a slenderizing line.

In Choosing a Fall Wardrobe Follow Cues From Hollywood

By Ida Jean Kain

NOT ALL the movie stars have beautiful figures but from where we sit they look well-nigh perfect. That in spite of the camera's trick of exaggerating bulges and angles! There's just one answer: It is the dressing.

The Hollywood designers are a clever bunch and follow the lines that will flatter a star's figure. Some of the sights we never expect to see in pictures are Myrna Loy in a waist and skirt combination, Loretta Young in a strapless evening gown without a net swathing, or Mae West in adirndl. Such styles are not for them and no designer would think of suggesting them.

You and I can't have a personal designer. But there is no reason why we can't follow some of their cues. The next time you go shopping forget about the silk stocking shortage and concentrate on the lines that will do the most for you.

Chic Shoulderline

Unless your waistline is on the svelte order and you have no stomach to speak of, a skirt and jacket will not do right by your figure. Not unless you always wear the jacket. The fat that doesn't fit is twice as conspicuous in a waist and skirt. A much more flattering style is the one-piece dress with separate coat which can be worn either as a dress or a suit and which looks well either way. But above all, if you have broad hips don't buy a coat of one color and a skirt of another.

The new sloping shoulderline is very chic on the girl who has a good pair of shoulders and who stands erect, but not on the girl with a tendency to round shoulders. Of course, what's needed in this case is apt to be corrective exercise and more sleep as well as a bit of shoulder padding.

Flattering Sleeves

The dolman sleeve is back and it is wonderful for concealing plump arms. If you are a stylish stout, you must take care not to buy sleeves that are too tight through the armholes and the dolman sleeve may be the solution.

Sleeve lengths are quite important. Short sleeves, in line with the bust, are especially good on the girl with the small bust. This length should be avoided, however, by the girl with the large bust as it exaggerates the measurement. For her, sleeves that are three-quarters or wrist length are better. If the arms are long, the most flattering sleeves are long and fairly loose.

Necklines can add length or curves to the face. The girl with the thin face does not look well in the plunging neckline drawn sharply down in a V. The girl with the round face adds pounds when she wears a high round neckline. The same holds true for tight, chunky necklaces.

When the waistline is on the ample side, it is accentuated by bright, shiny or broad belts. A fairly narrow belt of the same color and fabric as the dress is much better.

The new dark shades of hose like navy blue or black—if available—make large legs appear slender, but should not be worn by the girls with tin legs. Lighter shades make thin legs appear larger and so do full or pleated skirts. Skirts that are straight and not too full are a help to large legs.

When buying a dress or suit, step out where you can see yourself coming and going past a full-length mirror and study your best lines.

The Designing Woman May Better Figure

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

WITH mahogany shortages imminent, because of the war, it looks as if walnut were coming into its own during the coming seasons. For it's a wonderfully fine cabinet wood that grows plentifully on our own continent. But though it is native in the new world, it's a wood that's old in tradition, for it grows in most sections of the world where man has centered his settlements.

It is hard, not too heavy, adaptable for carving and polishing, highly resistant to disintegration from insects and climatic changes, beautiful in color and versatile in markings.

It has been used for furniture since ancient times . . . all through the Italian and Spanish Renaissance, in France and Germany and the Netherlands when the Renaissance swept them, in England from the time of the Restoration on. Furniture developed into an important possession when man gave up his nomadic life and settled permanently in homes, and ever since walnut has been used more or less continuously.

Favored More in Certain Periods

Of course, fashion has favored it more in certain periods than in others. In England the Age of Walnut is commonly regarded as lasting from about 1689 to about 1730—when walnut was the first vogue and when many of the most beautiful walnut styles were originated, notably certain William and Mary pieces and most Queen Anne furniture.

But walnut was used more or less even throughout the Georgian period, which is regarded as the Age of Mahogany. And it has been known in England even before the dates mentioned . . . though oak was the familiar wood in Queen Elizabeth's time, some one brought her a few pieces of walnut furniture from Italy. She was so thrilled with them that she ordered walnut trees to be planted throughout England.

Widely Used in France

Maybe she thought she'd have the wood in her own time for furniture, but the truth is that some of us today, possessing a modern English walnut piece, may well own wood from those trees planted at the order of the Regal Bess. These fine trees were a treasured part of her heritage to the future.

In France, many of the most beloved styles were made of walnut, particularly in those wonderfully beautiful eighteenth century pieces. And French provincial furniture has always been partial to this lovely wood, which grows abundantly in France . . . back in the seventeenth century the rule was that a man must plant nine walnut trees before he could get married.

How to Finance A New Home

"IF ONLY we could afford a home of our own!" Is that your plaint, too? Sitting down with pencil and paper—and information on Federal Housing Administration insured loans—may show you can afford a home.

How do FHA loans work? What type of house to get? Your answers may be here.

Q. How big a down payment does an FHA loan require?

A. If you wish to borrow $2500 or less you can get a "Title I" loan which requires only a 5 per cent down payment ($125 on $2500), but must be retired in 15 years. Or for a property valued at less than $6000 you can get a "Title II" loan requiring a 10 per cent down payment and taking 25 years to pay.

Q. We need the room of a two-story house, but most of the smaller two-story houses look so boxy—how can this be overcome architecturally?

A. A story-and-a-half house gives you a second floor and has pleasing lines.

Q. Is insulation really a saving?

A. The cost is more than offset by lower heating bills and the smaller heating unit required.

Buy Cotton Hose In Large Sizes

One important thing to remember about cotton stockings, advises the American Institute of Laundering—they are subject to more shrinkage than the silk ones. And the manufacturers back up this statement, by advising women to buy cotton stockings about a half size larger to take care of this expected shrinkage.

Cotton stockings, like the silk and nylon affairs, should be laundered after each wearing.

Women Big Buyers Of Life Insurance

Nearly one-fifth of all new ordinary life insurance policies issued in 1940, or more than 900,000 were purchased by women, it is estimated by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, based on a study of the records of 25 life insurance companies.

Slightly more than half of the women buyers of life insurance are business women and nearly one-third are housewives.

It is found that women buyers are more frequently under age 30, while the greatest number of male buyers is over 30. Women do not make as many repeat purchases as men, but they hold on to their policies even more tenaciously than men.

Mission Gets Foretaste Of Soviet Hospitality

Envoy Entertains Men Who Will Attend Moscow Conference to Discuss U. S. Aid

By Dudley Harmon

The whole town was talking yesterday—well, if not exactly "the whole town," at least the hundred or so Capitalites who were present—about the large and dramatic dinner given on Thursday evening by the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Oumansky. Guests of honor were members of the American mission to the forthcoming tripartite conference in Moscow.

Any dinner at a European embassy these days is likely to be charged with drama, and the Oumansky party was no exception. Just the fact that the Soviet diplomats are giving big dinners again in their magnificent embassy is significant of the latest trend in the international situation. It has been quite a while since elaborate functions have been held there. Then, too, Thursday night's fete was arranged so that guests could get through dinner in time to listen to the President's speech.

The dinner was set for 7:30 p. m., an hour earlier than is the rule for big diplomatic dinners. Cocktails were served in the drawing room, and guests were speedily ushered into the mammoth dining room where the large company was seated at a table extending the entire length of the room.

"I was fascinated by the perfect mechanism of the dinner," said one guest. "We had soup, fish, a meat course, salad, and an ice cream mold, all served with the appropriate wines. Yet there were so many waiters, and they moved so fast, that before we knew it we were back in the living room again."

At that point in the evening Ambassador Oumansky called the guests to attention and made a brief talk. "It was a V for Victory speech" said another present at the party. The envoy expressed appreciation of moral and material support which the United States is giving the Soviet Union in its fight with Germany.

Soviet Fliers Are Introduced

After his little talk Mr. Oumansky introduced the Russian fliers who recently returned from an inspection of our aircraft factories in California. It was time then to tune in on President Roosevelt. Guests frequently expressed their approval by bursts of applause during the Chief Executive's speech.

Significant of Washington in the late summer was the way the men outnumbered the women at the dinner. Many of the guests came without their wives, who are still at resorts.

Harry Hopkins, whose flight to Russia made last months' headlines, sat at the right of the hostess. Mrs. Averill Harriman was on the Ambassador's left, wearing a dark blue dinner dress with blue sequins on the sleeves and front. Mrs. Oumansky had chosen blue chiffon over a watermelon-colored slip and wore a necklace to match.

Genial "Pa" Watson, the President's aide and secretary, came without his talented wife, pianist Frances Nash, who is visiting in Maine. The general wore several glittering medals. Other temporary bachelors ineluded Edward Stettinius, jr., William S. Knudsen, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morhenthau and Sir Ronald Campbell, British Minister.

Noted Playwright Among Guests

The Undersecretary of the Interior and Mrs. Oscar Chapman were guests, she wearing a black gown with a becoming white frill. Representative Sol Bloom was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Vera Bloom. Senator Tom Connally was another present from Capitol Hill.

Ralph Davies, assistant oil coordinator, who has been testifying at hearings on petroleum rationing, was there; also, Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Ray Atherton and Mr. and Mrs. Loy Henderson. A special center of attention was Miss Lillian Helman, the noted playwright, down from New York especially for the occasion.

In the course of the evening the guests saw films of fighting at the Soviet front. Mr. and Mrs. Harriman left shortly after the movies were shown and the other guests said their good nights immediately afterward.

Others there included the remaining members of the American mission—Maj. Gen. James H. Burns, Admiral William H. Standley and William L. Batt, who was accompanied by Mrs. Batt. Among others present were Hume Wrong, Canadian Minister-Counselor; Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy, Rear Admiral and Mrs. John H. Towers, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. James F. Byrne, Commander and Mrs. Clinton E. Braine, Commander and Mrs. Frank P. Thomas, Brig. Gen. S. P. Spalding, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Charles W. Bundy, Mr .and Mrs. Edward Page, jr., Philip Young, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Petty, Robert P. Meiklejohn, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cox, and a number of representatives of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, as well as the visiting Russian fliers and several members of the embassy staff.

Miss Biggers To Be Feted At Luncheon

Miss Mary Sherret Biggers, whose marriage to Dr. Sprague Gardiner will take place in October, will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given today by Miss Martha Belle Moore at the Shoreham Hotel. Miss Biggers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Biggers.

Guests will include Miss Jane Biggers, Miss Louise McNutt, Miss Isabella Hagner, Miss Marie Regan, Miss Achsah Dorsey, Miss Ann Turner, Miss Marion Norris, Miss Mary Theresa Norris, Miss Edith Hood, Miss Elvina Rowe, Miss Eleanor Flood and Miss Betty Burton.

Anne Perrin Entertains

Miss Anne Perrin entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon at her home on R Street. She recently returned from a vacation in Rhode Island, and is all set for a winter of real estate work.

Among the guests were her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling jr., Mrs. George Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert Train, Miss Laura Tuckerman who went on to a dinner party; Miss Elsie Ekengren, who wore a black and white print; George Agnew, whose marriage to Miss Althea Eldredge will take place next Saturday in Glen Cove, Long Island; Thomas Boucher, Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Peet, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dominick and several others.

J. L. Houghtelings Return From Illinois Sojourn

Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling have returned from Winnetka, Ill., where they have been spending the summer. Mrs. Houghteling left in July and has been joined from time to time by Mr. Houghteling.

Coming back a day or so earlier than his family was James Lawrence Houghteling, jr., who also summered in Winnetka. Miss Margaret Houghteling returned September 1 from Mexico, where she took a summer course.

Elizabeth Bliss Hostess at Lunch

Miss Elizabeth Goring Bliss, debutante daughter of Col. and Mrs. Edward Goring Bliss, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Army-Navy Town Club in honor of her house guest, Miss Jane Plate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Plate, of New York.

Miss Plate, who arrived in Washington Wednesday, will visit Miss Bliss for about a week or ten days. Others among the guests at the luncheon were the Henderson twins, Miss Floranne Henderson and Miss Josephine Henderson, debutante daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Henderson; Miss Betty Lee and her cousin, Miss Carol, and several more.

Mrs. Howard, Daughter Return

Mrs. Herbert Seymour Howard and her post-deb daughter, Miss Maisie Howard, have returned from a stay in the North and are settled at their home in Georgetown for the winter. Capt. Howard was recently transferred back to Washington from Philadelphia.

Miss Howard spent the early part of the summer tutoring a young friend at Murray Bay, Quebec. During August she visited friends in New England.

Parties Planned For Miss Richards

Several pre-nuptial parties are being planned in honor of Miss Katherine Richards and Larry Davis Gibson, who will be married on Saturday, September 20, in the garden of the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Richards, on Linnean Avenue.

Mrs. Aloysius Sheehan and Mrs. Walsh Richards will be hostesses at a cocktail party on Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. Richards' home on Audubon Road. Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Moffett will give a supper party in honor of the couple. A rehearsal party will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Richards on Thursday night at their home for members of the bridal party.

The bride will have her sister, Miss Genevieve Richards, as maid of honor and Miss Nancy Sheehan will serve as flower girl. Last week Mrs. Warren Wells was hostess at a cocktail party and shower in honor of Miss Richards.

Sangers Leave For Weekend at Williamsburg

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sanger left last night to spend the weekend in Williamsburg. Accompanying them were Mrs. Sanger's brother-in-law, Harold Pomeroy, of Claremont, Calif., and Paul Moody, of Los Angeles, who are their guests until Tuesday.

Mrs. Sanger, who recently returned from a vacation in the West, and her husband were hosts at a cocktail party for the visitors prior to their departure for Williamsburg. Among the guests were several couples whom defense has brought to Washington, and the talk was chiefly of the housing and servant problems.

Guests gathered in the long living room of Ringside, the modern home of the Sangers in Westmoreland Hills. Some wandered out onto the terrace overlooking the reservoir and the woods beyond, where the trees are just beginning to turn. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Straus, of New York—he's in Export Control; Mr. and Mrs. Bergon Herod, the John Wards, of Chicago, and the Bayard Schiemins, of New York, were among the defense couples present. Mr. Schiemin, a cousin of Mr. Sanger, is with the War Department and they have taken a house in Alexandria.

Maj. L. Corrin Strong said that Mrs. Strong is still at Gibson Island and John Borton came without Mrs. Borton, who is enjoying late season sailing at their home in Galesville, Md. Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Peet, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr., Leonide Ourusoff, Mr. and Mrs. Metcalfe Walling, Mr. and Mrs. Cutherbert Train and Mrs. Robert Grosjean were others present.

Mr. and Mrs. Thacher Winslow, also guests, told friends they were busy doing over their cottage on the estate of Mrs. Winslow's mother, Mrs. Randolph Leigh, near McLean, Va.

Dean Achesons To Reopen Their Georgetown Home

The Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Dean Acheson and their daughter, Miss Jane Acheson, will reopen their Georgetown home on Monday. During the summer they leased the house at 2805 P Street to friends and occupied their country place at Sandy Spring, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Acheson have been visiting friends in Massachusetts and their daughter has completed a round of visits. She stayed in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., for a while and then went to Philadelphia. Invitations for her marriage on September 27 to Dudley Brown have been issued by her parents. The ceremony will take place at 4:30 at St. John's Church in Georgetown and will be followed by a reception at the Acheson home on P Street.

Goldings Hosts At Cocktails

Gathering in a few friends informally, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. A. V. Golding were hosts at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon at their home on Thirty-fourth Place.

Col. Golding, who is Assistant Military Attache of the British Embassy, will leave soon for Canada where he is assigned a new post. Mrs. Golding will remain here. The Goldings were hosts at a similar party on Thursday afternoon.

Protocol Dropped at Berle's Party for Dominican Envoys

By Elizabeth Hennev

"My four wild children," was the subject of the stories with which Senora de Troncoso regaled a fascinated group yesterday afternoon at the cocktail party, given by Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, jr., at the Berles' new home at 4000 Nebraska Avenue.

SENORA DE TRONCOSO

The party, in honor of both the retiring Minister from the Dominican Republic Andres Pastoriza and Senora de Pastoriza and also in honor of the incoming Minister J. M. Troncoso, and Senora de Troncoso, broke all rules of protocol entirely, as Mr. Berle explained gently to each incoming guest.

For some reason it is definitely "out of order" to have an incoming and outgoing envoy meet "en post." It is supposed to diminish the prestige of one or the other. At any rate, brushing regulations aside, Minister Pastoriza requested that the event honor his successor also. The result was an informal and completely delightful party.

Senora de Pastoriza, gowned in a pink and black print, had pinned a large orchid to her shoulder and had topped her silvery hair with a wide-brimmed straw hat in a soft shade of pink. She was receiving best wishes, and pleas to "return soon" from clusters of friends as she stood on the terrace overlooking the spacious gardens of the Berle home.

At another corner of the terrace Senora de Troncoso, gowned in powder blue, wore a large bright red cartwheel hat atop her jet black curls and accented her costume with red accessories. An exquisite cameo bracelet set in Italian gold filigree excited comments from a number of the guests.

'Four Wild Children' Worry the Senora

Vivacious and sparkling-eyed, Senora de Troncoso was explaining to guests that she was worried at having to keep her "four wild children" confined to an apartment until they found a house. According to a neighbor, though, the Senora has no cause to worry about the behavior of the well-mannered, though spirited four, Francisco, Josefina, Manuel and Clara.

It was the Berle's three children, incidentally, who were in a measure, responsible for Mrs. Berle's absence from the party yesterday. She had planned to have their summer home in Great Barrington, Mass., closed in time to be back for the event, but found that the task of getting Alice, Beatrice and Peter outfitted and ready for school took a bit longer than planned. However, Mrs. Laurance Duggan and Mrs. Fletcher Warren acted as official hostesses and saw that everyone met the guests of honor and enjoyed himself. Mrs. Duggan had chosen an outfit of soft turquoise blue with a hat to match and Mrs. Warren was in all black, relieved only by a gold bracelet.

Many Other Notables Attend

Others noted at the party were the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera, the latter gowned in a black and white costume; the Ecuadorean Ambassador Capitan Colon Eloy Alfaro who will entertain at luncheon today for the Pastorizas; the Brazilian Ambassador and Senora de Martins; the Chilian Ambassador and Senora de Michels, the Bolivian Minister and Senora de Guachalla; the Nicaraguan Minister, Dr. Leon DeBayle; the Honduran Minister and Senora de Caceres; The Haitian Minister Fernand Dennis; Mme. Espaillat, sister-in-law of Mme. Pastoriza; Mrs. Philip Bonsal, Dr. and Mrs. Charles McInerney, Mrs. Elsa Lopez McGuire, Frederick Lyon and many more.

Col. Nulsen And Wife Due Here Today

Col. and Mrs. Charles W. Nulsen, who will arrive here today from Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex., will be guests for the weekend of Col. and Mrs. J. Duncan Elliott at the Elliott's estate, Dun Mar, in nearby Maryland.

Col. and Mrs. Elliott have issued invitations for a cocktail party in honor of the Nulsens, which will be given on Sunday. The invitations read, in part: "Sunday, September 14, Treasure Hunt—Try to find Dun Mar, 4 o'clock, beverages and biscuits, clew inclosed." The clew proved to be a small, detailed map of the route to the house.

Col. and Mrs. Nulsen will return to Washington on Monday and will be at the Brighton Hotel for about a week before returning to Texas. When they leave they will take with them their daughter, Mrs. J. Duncan Elliott, jr., and her small child. Mrs. Elliott, jr., has been at Dun Mar since her husband, Ensign Elliott, has been away on sea duty. On the trip up here, Col. and Mrs. Nulsen left their son, Robert, at school in Virginia for the winter.

Notes of Society

Mrs. Dwight Davis is spending a few days at the Ritz Tower in New York. She has been sojourning for several weeks in Southampton, Long Island.

Plans for the institute were discussed at the party, held at the home of Mrs. Fannie Foster in Georgetown

World Organization Institute Sessions Here Will End Today

A group of women of international outlook, who have been participating in the Institute on World Organization at American University, will scatter today to a variety of tasks which they have set for themselves in the building of the postwar world.

Dr. Sarah Wambaugh, of Cambridge, Mass., an authority on plebiscites, will return to Cambridge to write a book on "An International Police Force." Dr. Wambaugh was technical adviser and deputy member of the Saar Plebiscite Commission.

Dr. Marguerite Thibert, head of the women's and children's work section of the International Labor Office in Geneva since 1930, will go to Mexico to make a study on the work of women and children there.

Mme. L. Dreyfus-Barney, a member of the Institute's organizing committee, will go to Havana in November to a meeting of another organization—the Institution on Intellectual Cooperation, of which she is a member.

Miss Henriette Hart, chairman of the international affairs committee of the National Council of Women and also chairman of the Woman's League for a Free and Democratic Europe, will return to her headquarters in New York, where the league is planning an institute on the role of women in the evolution of international affairs.

The Institute on World Organization closes today after having been in session at American University since September 2.

Group Entertained By Dr. Douglass

Members, lecturers and their guests were entertained at a party last night at the home of the University's president, Dr. Paul F. Douglass, after the final public lecture of the series.

Miss Mary A. Dingman, who has traveled to 46 countries investigating economic conditions and the status of women, attended the Institute here as a member. From here she will start on a lecture tour across the country.

Miss Ruth Shirley, publicity director for the Institute, has crossed the continent four times lecturing on the American Youth Odyssey. She has now established headquarters in Washington for the Odyssey.

Among other women attending the Institute were Miss Emily Hickman, chairman of International relations of the Y. W. C. A. of the United States, who returns to her work as professor at Bryn Mawr College; Miss Ruth Woodsmall of the World's Y. W. C. A., who is now staying in Washington; Dr. Deborah Ellis, professor at Mount Holyoke College.

Lectures Given By Mrs. Morgan

Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, who was secretary of the organizing committee, gave lectures on The Problem of Armaments and "Measures of Enforcement." As the "possible approach to the next effort toward disarmament," she pointed out "a system of supervision and control by a permanent disarmament commission, publicity for national defense expenditure internationally supervised and the regulation and control of the manufacture and trade in arms."

For 20 years Mrs. Morgan has worked in the field of international relations, first with the National Council for Prevention of War; later, with the National Peace Conference, and, finally, with the Geneva Research Center in Switzerland.

Dr. Helen Dwight Reid, since 1939 lecturer in politics at Bryn Mawr College, spoke at the Institute on "Danzig: An Experiment in International Supervision."

Thus woman's voice made itself heard at the institute, where men were numerous, both as members and lecturerers.

The organizing committee of the institute included Dr. James Brown Scott, honorary chairman; Mrs. Morgan, secretary; Mr. Herbert E. Walter, treasurer; Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, Dr. William E. Armstrong, Mme. Dreyfus-Barney, Rev. William R. Barnhart, Dr. Philip Marshall Brown, Dr. Paul F. Douglass, Miss Elizabeth Eastman, Dr. W. M. Gewehr, Dr. Jan Hostie, Miss Ethel M. Johnson, Dr. Ellery C. Stowell and Dr. E. Ranshofen-Wertheimer.

Crittenton Home Board Meets

Plans for dedicating the new living room at the Florence Crittenton Home at the "open house" program October 31, were discussed yesterday at the first fall meeting of the board of managers.

The living room, in an annex completed this summer, was made available by a legacy from Clementine Farr Duff. The board held its meeting yesterday in the new room, which has been outfitted with maple furniture. Mrs. John C. Freeland, president of the board, was in charge of the business session which was followed by a luncheon.

All States Club Dance To Honor Missourians

Missourians will be honored at the dance of the All States Club at 9:30 tonight at the Hotel Washington.

Del Collins, chairman of the dance, is being assisted by a committee of former Missourians, Sam Julian, Sam Dowdy, C. W. Clem, Miss Dolores Bowen, Miss Olga Sianis, Miss Doris Bealmear, Miss Margery Doran.

Charity Ladies to Plan Party for Shoe Fund

The Ladies of Charity of Washington Parish Groups, will meet at 1:30 p. m. Monday at Catholic Charities, 1441 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest, to make plans for the annual card party October 16 at the Willard Hotel, it was announced by Mrs. F. V. Schwoerer, president. The party will be for the benefit of the organization's shoe fund.

George Washington Unit Of Phi Mu to Give Tea

A preseason "rush tea" for freshmen women will be given by the George Washington University chapter of Phi Mu Sorority at the home of Mrs. Kelvin Shivers, 3915 Fulton Street Northwest, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. William Bradford, president of the Washington Alumnae Chapter, will pour tea assisted by Mrs. Leighton Johnston. Hostesses will be Miss Agnes Rossbacher, president of the active chapter, and Miss Joan Boyd, summer rush chairman.

Girl Scouts Take Larger Headquarters

District Girl Scout headquarters will move to a larger building Monday, to have room for the organization's expanded defense program, it was announced yesterday.

The offices will be transferred from 1325 to 1906 M Street Northwest. In the new location there will be more space for meetings of committees and of the increasing volunteer workers who are being prepared in the defense training courses.

The new quarters will be in readiness for the heavy October schedule of council and committee meetings and training courses, it was announced by Miss Eleanor Durrett, local Girl Scout executive.

The scout offices will occupy two floors at the new address, with reception and board rooms and a study on the first floor, and with offices of the director, the three field advisers and other staff members on second floor. The building at the old address has been sold, but the necessity for the move came at a time when larger quarters were needed, it was pointed out.

The third of a series of training courses, conducted by Miss Durrett, will be concluded on September 28 at the Girl Scout camp at Rockwood. Eighty adult workers have been prepared for leadership of girls in Scout troops and for service on Scout committees.

Miss Anne McLean, field advisor at Scout headquarters and director of Camp May Flather, will lead another training course for adult workers, opening October 4 at Rockwood. Miss McLean is now taking a training course for professionals, at Camp Edith Macy, Pleasantville, N. Y.

Round Table Group Opens Fall Season

Ladies of the Round Table, a group of wives of members of the Washington Round Table, held their first fall meeting yesterday with an informal luncheon at the Highlands.

Mrs. Charles G. Lueck, secretary, reported on the group's camp project—the sending of an underprivileged child to camp this summer. An informal review of summer vacations by members completed the program. Mrs. Thomas Gilbert, president of the group, presided.

Director to Entertain Cynthia Warner Faculty

Mrs. Harold E. Warner, director of the Cynthia Warner School, will entertain the faculty at a tea tomorrow at her home, Maple Manor. Honor guests will be the new members of her school staff: Miss Margaret Jones, kindergarten teacher; Miss Suzanne Scofield, nursery teacher; Miss Joan McKennon, nursery school assistant, and Mr. Bill Stevens, riding instructor.

Assisting Mrs. Warner will be the music teacher, Mrs. George V. Thompson, and the dancing instructor, Miss Adelaide Quinn.

Jewish Center Plans Meeting and Luncheon

An open meeting and luncheon for next Tuesday at the Jewish Community Center were planned at the board meeting of the National Home for Jewish Children this week, with Mrs. Doris Samakow, president, in charge.

Plans were also discussed for the annual dance to be held November 5 at the Shoreham Hotel.

Knudsen to Address Women's Press Club

William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, will speak at the first fall luncheon of the Women's National Press Club Tuesday at 1 p. m. at the Willard Hotel.

W. C. T. U. to Meet

The Emma Sanford Shelton Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet at 8 p. m. Tuesday with Mrs. Jessie G. Elker, 433 Hamilton Street Northwest. Mrs. Richard Meadows will speak.

Church Women Make Mission Institute Plans

Around a tea table set under a "raining gold" tree in a Georgetown garden, mission study leaders of the Washington Council of Church Women yesterday discussed plans for the annual Missionary Institute in October, at which an attendance of 1000 women is expected.

Mrs. Fannie Foster, chairman of the council's missionary department, was hostess at the tea at her home, 3519 O Street Northwest.

Mrs. J. Luther Frantz, program chairman for the institute, announced plans for the sessions, which will be held October 28-30, at Calvary Baptist Church. The 24 State directors of mission study in various denominations in the District, presidents and other representatives of missionary societies in the individual churches came to the party to get information for promoting a large attendance at the institute.

Mrs. George A. Ross, president of the council, assisted in greeting the guests. Among board members present were Mrs. Joy Elmer Morgan, first vice president; Mrs. J. Gould Wickey, second vice president; Mrs. Charles G. Lueck, secretary.

The committee chairmen for the institute include Mrs. W. H. Everhardy, tickets; Mrs. J. W. Graves, registration; Mrs. A. N. Feelmeyer, luncheons; Mrs. Malcomb Seates, music; Mrs. J. H. Rush, literature; Mrs. A. H. Blakeslee, ushers.

Hadassah to Hear Mrs. Carl Alpert At First Meeting

Mrs. Carl Alpert will speak on Hadassah's work in the Palestine at the opening fall social meeting of the business and professional division of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah, at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Rebecca Shuman will give the opening prayer and Lillian Lichtenberg will lead the group singing.

Officers for the coming year, who are planning the season's activities, are Jessie Breier, president; Dorothy Streett and Elise Livingston, vice presidents; Dorothy Berman, recording secretary; Mary Lewis, corresponding secretary, and Rebecca Levitan, treasurer. Mrs. Streett is chairman of program and education.

Zontians Prepare For Philadelphia Regional Session

Miss Mabel Strider, member of the Washington Zonta Club and regional chairman of the organization, is making plans for a regional conference on "Service Clubs in a Democracy," in Philadelphia October 11 and 12.

Delegates from the local club will be Miss Kathryn Fox, with Mrs. Marion Hines Taylor as alternate.

Miss Jessie Heathman, who writes the home economics column in the Public Ledger, is president of the Philadelphia Zonta Club, which will be host to the conference.

The region includes Zonta clubs in States on the East Coast.

P.-T.A. Meeting Set On Student Aid

Mrs. L. S. Brooks, student aid chairman for the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, will preside at the first fall meeting of student-aid representatives from local P.-T. A.'s at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday, September 24, at the Gales School, First and G Streets Northwest.

Mrs. P. C. Ellett, District president, and Mrs. B. W. Costenbader, fourth vice president, will attend. The shoe and clothing budgets and other phases of the work will be explained.

In the student aid room at Gales School, children are outfitted with school clothes.

Kentuckians to Begin Fall Activities Nov. 18

Officers of the Kentucky State Society of Washington have announced plans for the opening of its season November 18 with a program, "Harvest Time in Old Kentucky," at the Willard Hotel.

William M. Temple will head the society for the coming year, with Robert H. Lucas as first vice president; Mrs. Albert J. Kraemer, second vice president; Mrs. A. O. Stanley, jr., third vice president; Miss Frances S. Cooper, secretary; G. B. Likens, treasurer; A. H. Tackett, financial secretary; Walter R. Powell, assistant financial secretary.

Glamour Girl No. 1 At Debutante Ball

By Walter Logan,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 12.—Blonde Betty Cordon, 18, of Park Avenue, Garden City, L. I., and Roanoke Rapids, N. C.—cafe society's "glamour girl of 1941"—tonight was launched into the social swim with 145 other debutantes at a mass coming-out party in Municipal Auditorium.

Miss Condon, who spends her summers at the beach where she just loves to swim and sail, paid North Carolina's $25 debutante fee for the privilege of being introduced at the $10,000 debutante ball sponsored by the Terpsichorean Club, sole judge of family and prestige in the Tar Heel State.

Miss Condon was named 1941 glamour girl at a party at the Stork Club and was "absolutely surprised to death when they announced I had won." The vote was taken among 120 New York debs and the result was announced by Cartoonist Peter Arno.

The young blonde, her hair shimmering in the spotlight turned onto each of the 146 North Carolina debutantes as they were introduced in alphabetical order and without regard to glamour, was swathed in 37 yards of white tulle, which contrasted sharply with her suntan and her deep red lipstick.

A few hours before the ball—at which all debuts in North Carolina are made simultaneously—Miss Cordon held her very first press conference in a hotel suite here. She wore comfortable old white kid sandals, no stockings, and a white crepe dress with a red and green belt, and 10 pearl buttons down the front. She was sitting on a suitcase and discussing the ball over the telephone when reporters arrived.

"How does it feel to be the No. 1 glamour girl?" a reporter asked.

Miss Cordon flashed a wide smile and obligingly crossed her trim legs for the photographers. "Oh, I just knew you would ask me that," she said. "Really I don't know. I'm thrilled and excited and just can't believe it yet. I'm so thrilled."

Mr. and Mrs. Cordon entered the room then—Cordon is a New York banker—and stood by smiling while their diminutive blonde daughter (102 pounds, height 5½) answered questions for the press and posed for the photographers.

"Why, you feel flattered, don't you, darling?" Mrs. Cordon said.

"I just don't know," said Betty.

"She feels flattered."

"Now, mother, don't put words in my mouth."

Would she please pose for a picture in the coming-out dress? A photographer asked. Or maybe pose with her mother helping her into it?"

"Why, yes, of course," said Mrs. Cordon.

"It's wrinkled, sort of," Betty said, "but I suppose the wrinkles won't show, especially."

"No," said Mr. Cordon. "No pictures of the white dress until the ball."

Hollywood Beauty Shows Impromptu Daily Dozen

By Genevieve Reynolds.

It's make-up on the go and exercise when they can. That's the life of the pulchritidinous members of the Navy Blues Sextet, who arrived in Washington yesterday for a one-night personal appearance at the Earle Theater.

Members of the sextet are: Lorraine Gettman, Georgia Carroll, Marguerite Chapman, Kay Aldrich (from Richmond, Va), Peggy Diggins and Alice Talton—all starring in a Hollywood picture soon to be released here.

This matter of making up in a hurry doesn't worry the sextet one whit. In fact, the true, red lipstick (a new fall shade), mascara, and a little powder are all the cosmetics they use. And these are applied so deftly that you aren't conscious of any make-up. They all have that healthy, well-scrubbed, natural look Dame Fashion prescribes for fall.

Titian-haired Lorraine Gettman, the youngest member of the group, uses no fingernail polish. Kay Aldrich, Georgia Carroll wear soft pastel shades of fingernail polish. If it weren't for signing autographs, Kay Aldrich confessed, none would wear polish. But then—it's difficult to keep the nails immaculate when traveling, and polish does hide the dirt.

"There isn't much time for exercise," said Miss Gettman, "but we all do a few waist benders daily to keep the waistline trim."

She Didn't Want to Be a Sweater Girl

By Gladwin Hill
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 12.—A small, winsome, dark-haired girl slipped shyly into a back seat 15 or 20 stories up in the Radio City Music Hall the other night.

The picture was "The Little Foxes," with Bette Davis and the new actress discovery, Teresa Wright.

The shy, dark-haired girl watched the picture through with interest. When "the end" flashed on the screen, two well-upholstered women beside her got up.

"Hmmmm," said one. "That's a funny ending . . ."

"Well!" welled the other one, appraising the new discovery, "I didn't think much of her.

The dark-haired girl, whose name was Teresa Wright, cringed a bit as she slipped out, but then she smiled.

"People had wanted to take me," she says, "but I wanted to sneak in alone and hear the reaction—I asked for it."

She had other reasons to smile. The fat lady can have her opinion, but nearly everyone else thinks Teresa did a marvelous job as Bette Davis's daughter in a family of hateful, avaricious neo-carpetbaggers. People have even said she "stole" the picture.

Also, if the fat lady had raved about her, it would have been too pat. Her jarring remark was a reassuring indication that Teresa was really alive, awake and not dreaming. For everything that had happened to her up to then was almost too good to be true.

Teresa, 22, never even saw a play until six years ago. The daughter of an insurance man, a widower, she lived out in Maplewood, N. J., and it was difficult getting to New York and difficult paying Broadway box-office prices.

Then in 1935 Teresa saw Helen Hayes in "Victoria Regina" and had the thrill of going backstage and shaking hands with the star. Even today when Teresa speaks of Miss Hayes, misty adoration fills her eyes.

With that inspiration, she was no time at all in getting up a good head of theatrical steam. For two summers she toiled at the Wharf Theater in Provincetown, Mass., and in the fall of 1939 understudied Dorothy McGuire in "Our Town" and played the part on the road.

The next year she summer-theatered again at Tamworth, N. H., that fall landed in the hit "Life With Father," and bang! was signed up by Sam Goldwyn for movies.

She got several contract offers, but didn't want to go to Hollywood and just be a "Sweater Girl," so she held out for a bona fide acting contract.

Since "The Little Foxes" clicked, Teresa has been mentioned for half a dozen parts, among them Mrs. Lou Gehrig in Goldwyn's biography of the famous ball player.

Meanwhile she's rehearsing for Ferenc Molnar's new play, "All The King's Men"—her contract with Goldwyn stipulates that she can get back to Broadway for one play a year—and worrying about getting a piano into her little apartment down in Greenwich Village.

CAMPUS AND BUILDINGS AT AMERICAN UNIVERSITY SHOWN FROM AIR

Going to College Here This Fall . . . ?

A. U. Students Graded by Carnegie Exams

By Robert R. Rand
Post Staff Writer

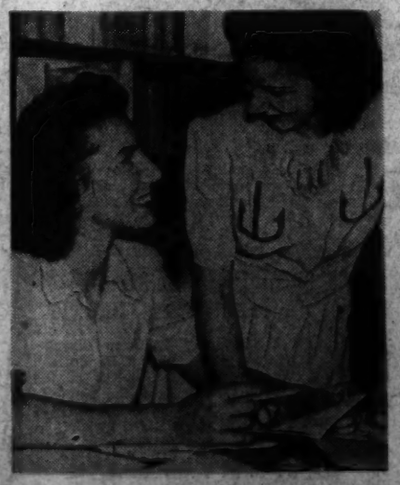
"There'll be no old-maidish education here. We're going to surround our students with youthful enthusiasm, and encourage them to develop full personalities," is the promise of 37-year-old Dr. Paul F. Douglass, new president of American University.

"Modern times seem to demand a total war. Well, we demand a total education—not just a list of courses to take," says the youthful educator.

Dr. Douglass gives two points in evidence.

First, he has just appointed a new Assistant Dean of Women. She is young Jeanne Geither, recently graduated from Columbia University's Teacher's College. And Helen Zentmyer, young Swarthmore graduate, is now the university's tutor. "They won't be snoopers or policemen," states the college president. "Their job will be to live among the students, and guide them."

Second, American University is now using the Carnegie Graduate Record Exam method to grade its students. "Just because someone gets high marks in his classes, and wins a Phi Beta Kappa key, doesn't mean he is the brightest," asserts Dr. Douglass. "We give the Carnegie exam, covering general information on all subjects, and we can tell more accurately what our students are doing."



JEANNE GEITHER, HELEN ZENTMYER

The American University is divided into two schools, the College of Arts and Sciences, at Massachusetts and Nebraska Avenues Northwest, and the School of Social Sciences and Public Affairs, 1901-1907 F Street Northwest.

The College of Arts and Sciences offers a full-time program leading to the bachelor's degree. Registration there opens September 19, and tuition is $10 per semester hour.

The School of Social Sciences, on the other hand, offers late afternoon and evening courses, leading to bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees. A special program, called "In-Service" Training has been prepared specifically for Government workers, interested in taking part-time courses. Tuition per semester course ranges from $8 to $10.

As important as its academic program, are American University's extra curricular activities. About the latter, especially football, the college president is very enthusiastic. "Whatever educators may think of football, it is a needed phase of collegiate community life," he asserts. "And what's more," he adds, "we're going to win every football game this year—we hope."

Judge's Car Is Shy a Tag

Judge Hobart Newman of Police Court drove his automobile home last night with only one license plate—the other dropped off his car on the way to the courthouse yesterday.

A lookout was broadcast by the police for the tag—No. 210—but it had not been located last night.

*X SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1941 17

It's Col. Young, Now

A luxuriant blue grass accent sprouted suddenly on Commissioner John Russell Young yesterday. "It all came as a terrible big surprise," said the District's head Commissioner. "You all know how highly honored I feel."

The honor was bestowed by Kentucky's Gov. Keen Johnson. Yes, suh, the Commissioner's a colonel now.

ABC Asks Funds for 10 New Aides

More Inspectors Would Relieve Police of Extra Duty, Board Declares

The Metropolitan Police Department, overburdened with extra duties, would be relieved of patrolling licensed liquor establishments under budget estimates of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1942.

In a financial report from ABC Board Chairman Thomas Lodge, the Commissioners yesterday were asked to provide ten additional liquor inspectors for the coming year. The board asked for a total of $72,800 as against $45,560—the present budget.

Of the increased sum requested, it was explained, $23,000 would be used to defray salary expenses of the new beverage board inspectors.

"The inspection work," the Commissioners were informed, "is not as complete as it should be. The Police Department assists the board in many ways, but only at a heavy sacrifice to regular police duties, a condition which should be rectified and could be if the board has a sufficient number of its own inspectors."

The board report further explained that inspectors must purchase "samples" when visiting licensed liquor establishments and requested $1,000 for the purpose, adding:

"It is obvious that the investigators, to frequent the premises of the licensees without being conspicuous, must spend money while observing conditions. It also is obvious that the investigators cannot be expected to spend their own money for these purposes."

The Commissioners were admittedly surprised to receive a 1943 fiscal year estimate from the Municipal Architect's office asking for $3200 less than current appropriations. The architect's new figure was $65,260.

The report explained that it is planned to eliminate the $3800 position of engineer in charge and give a $600 salary boost to a junior administrative assistant.

The Department of Insurance contended that money provided in recent years for its operation have not kept pace with the unit's development. The Commissioners were asked to approve a sum of $35,600 for the coming fiscal year. The current budget is $11,400.

Major item in the estimates of the Department of Weights and Measures is $70,000 to provide a new shelter for farmers using the Southwest Produce Market. The total requested is $155,605—$86,350 over present budget figures.

$1,183,162 Requested for Street Lights

Admitting that certain suburban areas of Washington are lighted by street lamps "only good for alley lighting," the District electrical department yesterday requested the Commissioners to provide $1,183,162 to help improve the situation during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943.

The figure represents $146,770 more than current appropriations. In addition, the electrical department, citing the rapid population growth, asked fo ra new appropriation of $48,450 to expand the fire alarm and police telephone systems.

The estimates said that street lighting costs actually would be increased by $80,500. In addition to expansion of service, the sum also will go to replace 5656 lamps of 60 and 100 candlepower with lights of 250 candlepower, the Commissioners were told.

"There have been many complaints," said the budget report, "about poor and insufficient street lighting in suburban areas where 60 to 100 candlepower lamps are used. It is believed that these complaints are justified as such lamps are only good for alley lighting."

Under the fire alarm estimate, 100 new fire alarm boxes would be installed in newly developed sections. The time has come, said the report, when "something should be done about the insufficient number of fire alarm baxes in Washington."

Money requested for the police telephone system would be used to replace at least 50 patrol boxes, many of which are now "broken beyond repair."

A $20 reduction in its budget for the coming fiscal year was requested by the Tax Assessor's Office—the only municipal agency thus far to submit estimates lower than current appropriations. The tax assessor asked for $266,720.

Another tax unit—the Board of Tax Appeals—said it would get along next year on its present budget—$14,040.

The Tax Collector's office asked for an additional $4,440 to hire a senior assistant cashier and a clerk-cashier.

The Dog Pound boosted its estimate by $4,130—$16,550 as against $12,420.

The Auditor's office asked for $3,240 over current moneys and an item of $35,000 was submitted to replace Pier No. 2 at the Municipal Fish Wharves.

Four Children, Man, 71, Hurt In D. C. Traffic

Traffic accidents here yesterday resulted in the injury of a 71-year-old pedestrian, two 12-year-old bicyclists and two other children, 3 and 5 years old, struck by automobiles as they crossed the street.

John W. Carper, 71, a transient lodging at the Gospel Mission, was seriously hurt by a truck at Seventh Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. He was taken to Emergency Hospital with a compound fracture of the leg and head injuries and later transferred to Gallinger Hospital.

Marshall Knott, 34, of 315 Seventeenth Street Southeast, was listed by police as driver of the truck which struck him.

Bicyclists Injured

Bicyclists injured were John P. Logan, of 831 Fifth Street Northeast, struck by an automobile at North Capitol and K Streets, and John Pierce, of 656 G Street Northeast, injured by a car at Seventh Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northeast.

Logan was treated at Sibley Hospital for bruises and dismissed. George J. Boyle, 28, of 1412 Chapin Street Northwest, was listed as driver of the car which struck him.

Pierce, admitted to Casualty Hospital with a fractured wrist and a head injury, was struck by an automobile driven by Private Sherman P. Johnson, 26, of Arlington Cantonment, police reported.

Runs Into Car

Jerry D. Moore, 3, of 1712 Davis Street Southeast, became confused by the heavy traffic as he crossed Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast in the 2300 block, police said, and ran into the side of an automobile driven by Lester E. Hornis, jr., 19, of Nokesville, Va. The child was given first aid at Gallinger Hospital for cuts and bruises.

Walter Layne, 5, was struck by an automobile as he ran across the street near his home 1015 Eighth Street Northwest, and treated at Emergency Hospital for bruises. Edgar L. Kloten, 29, of 1347 Newton Street Northwest, was driver of the car, according to police.

Bail Revoked, Child Attack Suspect Jailed

Frank W. Jacobs, 43, yesterday was ordered jailed until he could be brought to trial on an indictment charging that he criminally attacked a 6-year-old girl last April 26.

Jacobs has been free since May 2 on a $2000 bond, which Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue revoked, with the comment:

"I cannot decide this question on the basis of what was done in the Police Court. This court is now confronted with an indictment. In a case like this, which, like first-degree murder, carries the death penalty, I do not believe there should be any letting loose on bail."

To Ask Death Penalty

Assistant District Attorney Bernard Margolius, who asked that Jacobs be locked up, told the court that he had no doubt of the identity of the defendant and that the Government would ask for the death penalty when the case comes to trial, probably September 29. Co-prosecutor with Margolius is Assistant District Attorney Charles B. Murray.

Defense Counsel Harry T. Whelan urged that Jacobs be allowed to remain at liberty. Whelan described Jacobs as a reputable citizen, with a wife and three children, employed for seven years as a pressman at the Government Printing Office.

Jacobs was arrested the night of April 26, an hour after a Negro mother complained that her child had been taken into a woods and outraged. Police said the child identified Jacobs in a line-up.

Two Sentenced to Death

Formally sentenced to death yesterday after being denied new trial were two men found guilty of rape last Monday. William Isaac Robinson, 36, Negro, was convicted before Justice O'Donoghue of attacking a 15-year-old girl in Rock Creek Park. Bernard Lee Williams, 21, Negro, was convicted before Federal Judge Thomas B. Kennedy of assaulting a 17-year-old Negro girl. For attacking both the girl and her boy friend with a brick, Williams was also given tw oprison sentences of 3 1-3 to 10 years.

Both men were ordered to be electrocuted on Friday, November 14. This date also has been set for the death of James R. McKenzie, 21, Negro, convicted before Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson last month of attacking a clerk in a Fourteenth Street laundry. All three executions are likely to be postponed because of appeals.

Quartermaster's Depot Site Chosen

The War Department yesterday announced selection of a site near Lunt, Va., 2 miles west of Alexandria on the Southern Railway, for construction of a Quartermaster depot.

The depot, which will occupy 169 acres and contain 500,000 feet of storage space, was to have been built at Columbia Road and the Richmond Highway, but President Roosevelt later selected that site for the War Department's proposed "dream building."

The War Department gave no further details on plans for the Quartermaster depot, but other sources reported the site formerly was a railroad freight yard. It is understood to be located at Cameron Lick, in Fairfax County.

Four Seized In Pay Roll Holdup Here

One Prominent In Boxing Circles; Two Are Found In Philadelphia

A well-known figure of the boxing ring was arrested last night and held "for investigation" in the $3200 Valley Forge Distributing Co. payroll holdup of August 2.

His arrest and that of another Washington man, also for investigation, followed by a few hours the apprehension in Philadelphia of two men charged with actual execution of the holdup.

Police said the Philadelphians, named in Federal warrants as Harry Roth, alias Harry Miller, and Samuel Goldstein, alias Samuel Green, implicated the two Washington men.

Plotted Here, Police Say

Lieut. A. M. Winfree, chief of the Detective Bureau's robbery squad, quoted Roth and Goldstein as saying the local men plotted the holdup, provided the automobile in which it was carried out and shared the spoils.

The automobile, abandoned, was recovered after the robbery and traced to an auto sales company where one of the Washington men was a salesman at the time. He had reported it stolen.

The other Washingtonian under arrest, widely known in the boxing world, formerly worked for the establishment whose payroll was stolen. A hat found in the back of the abandoned automobile bore the initials of his first and last name, as well as a middle initial which he disclaimed.

He denied any connection with the holdup, telling reporters: "I don't know these men arrested in Philadelphia. A lot of people know me who I don't know. I don't know what I've done for these two men to frame me."

Asked about the hat, he said, "I have lots of hats, and I give them away. The one I have on now is the only one I own."

Stopped on Street

The holdup occurred at 10 a. m. as Samuel Felkner, manager, and Mrs. Pearl Baum, cashier, drove to the Valley Forge Distributing Co., 1515 South Capitol Street, from a bank at Seventh and E Streets Northwest.

In the 800 block of South Capitol Street, they were forced to the curb by an automobile carrying two men in smoked glasses, who held them up and took the payroll.

Detective Sergts. Harry Britton and E. E. Thompson, of the Washington Police, who arrested Goldstein and Roth, are expected to return with them today.

Hotel Union Seeks Wage Rises For 3000 Workers

Wage increases affecting more than 3000 hotel employes here have been asked in proposals to Washington hotels by the local joint executive board of the Hotel and Restaurant Alliance.

William Blake, secretary of the executive board, said the board is seeking a standard wage for workers in various classifications in the industry. These include 1300 service men, 2000 in the catering department and 70 bartenders. Waiters seek $18 a week, countermen and barboys, $24; waitresses, $13.50; hostesses and cashiers, $30; headwaiters, $36, and bartenders, $1 a day increase. They now get $8.

Blake said the board will receive proposals from the hotels at a meeting next Friday night. The present contract expires September 30.

District Taxing Power Challenged

The District's power to levy taxes against local real estate firms for transactions outside the city limits was challenged yesterday by Weaver Bros., Inc.

A ruling on the question is expected early next week by Jo Morgan, the city's sole member of the Board of Tax Appeals. The real estate firm contended it was forced to pay District taxes on property sold in nearby Maryland and Virginia—after State taxes already had been paid in those jurisdictions.

Heurich, 99, Celebrates 100th Birthday

Probe to Weed Out Detectives

ing captain while serving as assistant chief of detectives, though he received captain's salary.

The Commissioners first made him a full captain and then appointed him an inspector. He will receive $4,500 annually in his new post while Barrett will receive $3600.

Takes Over Second District

Keck will take over the supervision of the second inspection district, embracing Precincts 6, 8, 10, 12 and 13 and the police radio station.

The board to inquire into Detective Bureau personnel probably will be Capts. John H. Fowler, Clement P. Cox, Eighth Precinct, and Clarence Talley, Seventh Precinct.

All three of the men were promoted for their work in the Detective Bureau. Fowler formerly was chief of the robbery squad and is the department's ballistics expert. He recently was transferred from the Thirteenth Precinct to headquarters to organize a school for detectivs.

Cox, as a lieutenant of detectives, was supervisor of a detective district and an assistant of Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, former chief of detectives. Capt. Talley was a detective sergeant bn the check and fraud squad and was later a desk lieutenant.

Maj. Kelly declined to discuss the pending investigation.

The Post's informant said the board probably will be named the first of the week and will begin its probe immediately. It will work in conjunction with the Commissioner's committee investigating the Police Department and will report any deficiencies to Maj. Kelly and the Commissioners.

Linked to House Probe

A recent Congressional investigation of the Police Department, during which the Detective Office was repeatedly termed "the weakest link," is believed to have prompted the investigation of detectives.

It is a well-known fact at Police Headquarters that many detective sergeants were promoted because of pressure from Capital Hill.

Records show that at least 10 per cent of the detective sergeants have not closed a single felony case in six months. Some haven't made so much as an arrest for three months.

Capt. Keck, 56, was appointed to the Police Department in December, 1908. He served as a patrolman until the United States entered the World War, at which time he resigned to accept a commission as a lieutenant in the Quartermaster Corps.

He served overseas for 16 months and when he returned to Washington in 1919 was made a detective sergeant. In 1930 he was appointed aide to the Commissioners and was promoted to lieutenant in 1932.

He became assistant chief of detectives in 1936 when Inspector Thompson was made chief of detectives. He is married and lives at 6019 Utah Avenue Northwest. He has no children.

Lieut. Barrett, with 16 years police work to his credit, has won more than 40 commendations from his superiors and citizens. He recently periors and citizens.

The lieutenant was largely responsible for the arrest of John Eugene Eklund, who was convicted of the "sniper" slayings. For his work in this case he was commended by District Attorney Edward Curran to Commissioner Young.

Joined Force in 1925

He was appointed to the force in 1925 and was made a detective three years later. In 1930, he was promoted to detective sergeant and organized the city's first pickup squad.

He aided in the solution of the Landis murder and brought to justice Thomas Jordan, now serving a life term for the Garden T Shoppe murder of Mrs. Jaynes.

Before he was promoted to lieutenant in 1939, Barrett led the Detective Bureau in closed felony cases for nine months.

He is married and has one daughter. He lives at 526 First Street Southeast.

Inspector Keck and Capt. Barrett will assume their new duties Monday.

Irish-Americans Organize To Urge Action Against Hitler

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

To offset the "discredit" that has fallen on some Irish societies that have "swallowed Hitler propaganda," a group of Americans of Irish descent have organized in Washington to urge close cooperation between the United States and Ireland against the menace of Nazi Germany.

The new organization is called the American Irish Defense Committee, and its chairman is Rossa F. Downing, well-known District attorney, who led the fight here for Irish independence 20 years ago.

Secretary of the committee is Helen Herbert Peck, of 3012 Thirty-second Street Northwest. A relative of Victor Herbert, famed Irish-American composer, Mrs. Peck is an author and student of Irish affairs.

Joint Menace Seen

Other members of the committee are Henry Grattan Doyle, of George Washington University; Mary O'Sullivan, a Gaelic teacher; Hilda Vonstockum Marlin, author of "The Cottage at Bantry Bay" and other books on Ireland; Thomas R. Henry, science editor of the Evening Star; John Mac Cormac, of the New York Times, author of "Canada: America's Problem;" Louise G. Downing, L. Jean Henry, Louise McGuire, and James K. Boyland. Boyland was a soldier in the "trouble" in Ireland 20 years ago.

In a declaration made public yesterday, the Irish-American defense committee said that the interests of Ireland and the United States coincide, and that both countries are now threatened by the same menace —Nazi ambition for world conquest, backed by brutal Nazi force.

"To win the world Germany must first win the seas," the declaration said. "We believe that submarine and air attack on our North Atlantic shipping will soon be redoubled to that end. We have the assurance of our President that he will take every step necessary to deliver American aid to those nations which are fighting against our common enemy."

Partnership Urged

The committee urged that the United States and Ireland enter into close cooperation to preserve the freedom of the seas. Such a partnership, the committee members said, was urged for two reasons: First, as friends of Ireland, they saw her suffering the fate of Poland if the Nazis win; and, second, as Americans, they were pledged to one cause—liberty; one hope—victory; and one country—the United States.

Mrs. Peck, in explaining why the committee was organized, said it was "to offset the discredit that has fallen on some Irish societies in the United States that have swallowed Hitler propaganda." Many people thought these particular Americans of Irish descent were not patriotic, she said, but she explained that it was not so much that they were pro-Nazi as that they were blinded by the memory of England's record in Ireland.

Mrs. Peck observed that the parliamentary system of England, while slow, was infinitely better than Nazi concentration camps.

Dances, Fireworks Arranged For Servicemen in Capital

No less than nine dances in various parts of the Capital tonight await servicemen who spend their weekend furloughs in Washington.

While the dances occupy the major part of the weekend entertainment program, other activities open to soldiers, sailors and marines range from a fireworks display at Hains Point at 8 this evening, put on by the President's Cup Regatta Association, to the association's sailing races today and tomorrow. The latter will start at 11:30 p. m. today and at 9:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Another weekend attraction for the fighting men will be open house at the National Capital Service Men's Club, 606 E Street Northwest at 7 p. m. today. A number of hostesses will be on hand and game facilities are provided.

The dances are scheduled as follows tonight: Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, 1015 L Street Northwest, 8 p. m. Hostesses: National Catholic Community Service Club, 918 Tenth Street Northwest, 9 p. m.; street dance, E Street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets Northwest at 8 p. m.; Jewish Community Center, Sixteenth and Q Streets Northwest, 8 p. m.; Y. M. C. A., 1736 G Street Northwest, 9 p. m; hostesses; Y. M. C. A., 1812 Twelfth Street, 8 p. m.; Banneker Field House, Georgia Avenue and Howard Place Northwest, 8 p. m.; Phyllis Wheatley, Y. W. C. A., 901 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest, 8 p. m.

Lawyer Sues Mrs. Drier For $250,000

Harold G. Aron, New York lawyer who claimed that he recovered $850,000 worth of property taken from Mrs. Katharine Drier by Germany in the World War, sued Mrs. Drier in the District Court yesterday for a $250,000 fee.

Mrs. Drier was reported ill at her home at Hotel Twenty-four Hundred Sixteenth Street Northwest.

A music student at Dresden, Mrs. Drier was married in 1889 to Baron George Von Rosenberg. When he died in 1911, she inherited his castle and estate at Pirna, Saxony, which were valued at $1,000,000. The baroness in 1913 married John C. L. Drier, of the American consular service. Her property was seized after they left the country at the outbreak of the World War.

Aron said in his complaint that he recovered $850,000 for the property, saved Mrs. Drier a $100,000 income tax claim and won a $25,000 civil suit for her. This work, he said, kept him busy for 14 years in the courts of New York, Germany and Czecho-Slovakia before the Mixed Claims Commission, before committees of Congress and before the German and Czecho-Slovak foreign ministries. He contended Mrs. Drier agreed to pay him a reasonable fee for his services but failed to do so.

Aron's complaint was filed by Attorney Herman J. Galloway.

Peace Outlook In Truck Strike Termed 'Hopeful'

Some progress was reported in Washington's truck drivers' strike as it entered its sixth day. A joint conference was held yesterday at the Washington Hotel between representatives of the strikers and the truck companies.

Frank J. Sheehan, Labor Department conciliator, who has been acting as mediator, said no settlement of the wage dispute was reached, but that another conference was expected to be held today. A spokesman for the carriers reported that the situation now looks "hopeful."

The 600 strikers, members of the A. F. of L. Teamsters Union, Local 639, are demanding $35 a week for drivers and $30 for helpers, plus a 44-hour week. Union scale is now $31 and $25.50, with a 48-hour week. The truck companies have offered a compromise of $33 and $27.50, respectively, for drivers and helpers.

Meanwhile, the railroad embargo on Washington freight remains.

Girl Saved by Respirator Says She's Daughter of Reynolds

According to the Associated Press, the girl left the hospital with her mother, now Mrs. Frank G. Haley, wife of a New York broker. The daughter told hospital officials her mother's name was Mary Bland. (According to Who's Who in America Reynolds married Mary Bland in 1914 and had one daughter, Mary.)

The Military Affairs Committee chairman was reported in Rochester, Minn., undergoing his annual physical checkup. At his office employes refused to comment on the accuracy of the identification. However, they said Miss Mary Bland Reynolds is an attractive young blonde. They declined to say whether or not she was in New York.

Police were summoned to the woman's apartment Thursday night after the building superintendent smelled escaping gas.

Patrolman William J. Smith, who investigated, said the windows and doors of the apartment were sealed and the crevices stuffed with paper. He said that when he banged on the door the young woman opened it and ordered him away, then protested when he called a hospital ambulance.

"You don't know who I am. Get out of here," she tried and when he persisted she added:

"I'm Mary Reynolds, daughter of United States Senator Reynolds."

An ambulance emergency crew worked on Miss Reynolds with an inhalator despite her protests. She was then taken to Bellevue Hospital where she was treated and remained overnight.

Patrolman Smith said he found a number of penciled notes in the apartment, one of them to Mrs. Haley.

Senator Reynolds, 57, recently announced his engagement to Miss Evalyn Washington McLean, daughter of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, of Washington.

Roosevelt Blesses Committee On Inter-American Music

President Roosevelt yesterday approved the appointment of ten prominent musicians and musicologists to a committee that will advise the State Department's division of cultural relations on inter-American music.

Among other duties the committee will plan activities for artists on good will tours in the 21 American republics. Committee members who serve through next June will meet in Washington periodically, it was announced last night.

Aaron Copland, one of the United States' most widely recognized composers, is one of the appointees, as is Carleton Sprague Smith, of New York, who has been active in efforts to stimulate the interchange of music among the Americas for the last year.

William Berrien, adviser on Latin American studies of the American Council of Learned Societies in Washington, is a third member.

Other members are: Warren D. Allen, Stanford University music professor; Marshall Bartholomew, director of the Yale University Glee Club; John W. Beattie, music dean at Northwestern University; Evans Clark, Twentieth Century Fund, New York; Earl V. Moore, University of Michigan music school director; Russell V. Morgan, director of public school music, Cleveland; and Davidson Taylor, assistant to the vice president of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Capital News In Brief

Mechanical Salesman Grabs Coin, Buyer, Too

John A. Thomas, 14, of 1509 Buchanan Street Northwest, reached into a penny arcade vending machine for a cup of ice cream at 4624 Fourteenth Street Northwest, yesterday and it took two policemen and the fire rescue squad to get his hand out.

The mechanical salesman clamped down on the youngster's hand and wrist. Policemen H. H. Prince and C. R. Roberts, Sixth Precinct, and members of the rescue squad had to dismantle the contraption before freeing John.

His wrist was bruised and stiff when it was finally released. A crowd of about 100 children watched the rescue.

Blazing Boxcar Gives River Area a Thrill

A blazing boxcar passing over the railroad bridge across the Potomac River gave spectators a thrill and traffic cops a headache last night as firemen fought the blaze.

Ralph Carle, 19, 5425 Connecticut Avenue, an employe at the Washington tourist camp, ran to Fourteenth and D Streets Southwest, and turned in the alarm.

"I saw the train coming over the bridge," Carle said, "with flames shooting up in the air. I rubbed my eyes as I thought I was seeing things. It was the first time I had ever seen a boxcar on fire coming over a bridge. I didn't know what was happening."

The train was stopped near the intersection of Fourteenth Street and the entrance to the tourist camp. Automobile traffic was ensnarled beyond the Highway Bridge into Virginia.

Firemen soon extinguished the blaze. Its origin was not determined.

Flying Glass Cuts Fireman In Paint Shop Blaze

Fireman Robert Gibbs, 26, of No. 12 Engine Co., was cut on his hands yesterday by flying glass while fighting a fire in a paint shop at 1112 O Street Southeast. He received first aid at Providence Hospital.

Fire began in a resin pot at the paint shop, it was said, and the glass showered down on Gibbs when a skylight was broken. The blaze did damage estimated at $200.

2 Jury Branches Set for Police Court

With 737 cases awaiting trial in the jury branch of Police Court, Judge John P. McMahon, presiding judge, announced that in October, two jury branches will be in session at the tribunal.

Judge McMahon said the second jury branch will begin operation when he returns from a month's vacation, about October 13. In the meantime, Judge George D. Neilson will be on vacation and jury court will be suspended, adding many additional cases to the already overloaded docket.

Cards Edge Dodgers, 4-3, Cut Deficit to 1 Game

6th-Inning Rally Evens Big Series

Crabtree Hogs Show With Fine Throw, Crucial Triple; Pollet Runs Into Trouble

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 12 (U.P.).—The plucky St. Louis Cardinals fought and scratched their way back to within one game of the National League lead today by sneaking through to a 4-3 triumph over the pacemaking Brooklyn Dodgers in the second game of the vital series.

Estel Crabtree, veteran 37-year old outfielder who is on the Cardinal roster solely through the generosity of his buddy, Manager Bill Southworth, was all kinds of a hero today. He saved the game by throwing a strike to the plate in the sixth to cut off a run and won the game with a triple in the same inning.

With Brooklyn leading, 3-2, in the sixth, Billy Herman singled to right and Mickey Owen, Dodger catcher, tried to score from second but was nipped at the plate by Crabtree's throw to Catcher Gus Mancuso.

Into Heights

Then in the Cardinal half of the sixth Crabtree reached even greater heights. Don Padgett, who came near being a Cardinal goat with two damaging errors in the fifth, walked to open the inning. After Johnny Mize had flied out, Crabtree tripled off the right field wall, scoring Padgett with the tying tally. Then Crabtree scored what proved to be the winning run after Crespi's fly to Medwick.

As on the opening day of the series, the Cards were again jittery in the field and committed four errors—two by Padgett and one each by Hopp and Marion.

Howard Pollet, the Cards' 20-year-old kid southpaw who is only a month out of the Texas League, had the Dodgers blanked, 2 to 0, going into the fifth. Then disaster overtook him. Reese singled to left center and went all the way to third on Padgett's error. Herman walked and Reiser popped to Marion. But Medwick singled to left, scoring Reese. Herman advanced to third and Medwick to second when Padgett made his second error. Lavagetto grounded to Marion and was out at first, Herman scoring and Medwick moving to third. Dolph Camilli singled to center, scoring Medwick with the run which put Brooklyn on top, 3 to 2.

Pollet Injured

Pollet was taken out after he walked Mickey Owen to start the sixth. It was announced that Pollet was suffering from a groin injury. Max Lanier, another southpaw, came in and held the Dodgers to a single the last four innings. After Herman's hit, on which Owen was nailed at the plate, the Dodgers couldn't solve Lanier's delivery and he was credited with his first victory since July 20.

Lanier was twice in minor jams but double plays extricated him each time. He walked Medwick and Lavagetto in the seventh but Camilli hit into a double play. In the eighth he walked Owen and Whit Wyatt, pinch-hitting for Davis, grounded into a double play.

Rookie Pollet Signs Autographs First, Then Stops Dodgers

X-Ray Shows Chipped Bone In His Ankle

Doctor Says Star Out Rest of Season; Loss of Slugger Is Heavy Blow to Yanks

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 12.—The Yankees' World Series prospects suffered a blow today when it was found that their slugging leftfielder, Charley Keller, had incurred a chip fracture of his right ankle and probably would not swing a bat again this season.

Keller's ankle was placed in a cast after x-rays disclosed the extent of the injury. Dr. Emmett Walsh, Yankee Club physician, shook his head emphatically and declared there "wasn't a chance" that Keller would be able to play in the championship series, now less than three weeks away.

Hurt Sliding at Second

The injury occurred in yesterday's game here with Detroit, when Keller, already hampered by a "charley-horse" in his left leg, made an unsuccessful effort to slide safely into second base. His spikes caught in the dirt, wrenching the ankle. There was a sprained ligament or two, in addition to the fracture.

The loss of Keller is about as serious as anything that could have happened to the American League champs, short of an epidemic. "King Kong," as he is called affectionately by his teammates, is leading both major leagues in runs batted in, with 122, and his 33 home runs were only one less than had been banged by the leader, Ted Williams, of the Boston Red Sox.

Manager Joe McCarthy was too crestfallen to discuss the misfortune and its possible effect on his chances of winning another world championship. It is virtually certain he will nominate the veteran George Selkirk to take Keller's place in the line-up. Selkirk, also a left-hand batter, is far from being the hitter that Keller is. The only alternative is Frenchy Bordagaray, a right-hand batter, who was with Kansas City last season.

Yankees Downcast

Keller's teammates were downcast when the news reached the bench just before the start of today's tussle with Detroit.

"We've been trying to get him to take a rest and let that charley horse heal before the World Series, but he wouldn't listen," one of them said.

"He wanted to win that home-run race."

Mrs. Newell In Women's Golf Finals

By the Associated Press

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Betty Hicks Newell, a pert 20-year-old bride who learned to play in ten lessons four years ago, moved to within one step of the women's National golf championship today.

The comely California champion ruled a heavy favorite to gain the crown tomorrow over blonde Helen Sigel, of Philadelphia, in the 36-hole final of the forty-fifth annual tournament at the Country Club.

The 5-foot newly wed from Long Beach, Calif., looked every inch a champion as she came from the brink of defeat to eliminate Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Greensboro, N. C., 1 up, in a dramatic 19-hole semifinal clash.

Miss Sigel, personable Pennsylvania stylist, advanced to the final with a 3 and 2 victory over the veteran Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, of Fort Worth, Tex., who has won nearly every important championship except the National in 14 years' campaigning.

The 30-year-old Mrs. Page, thrice a semifinalist in the past five years, grimly held to a one-hole advantage at the start of the eighteenth hole and seemed assured of entering the finals for the third time due to the erratic putting of her brunette opponent.

But the picture changed abruptly. Mrs. Newell, who had been the most consistent performer in the tournament, regained her putting touch and sank a 15-footer to win the eighteenth with a par 4, as Mrs. Page's ball rested less than a foot from the pin.

Bolstered by the applause of a partisan gallery of about 1500 Mrs. Newell's second wood shot stopped only 30 feet from the cup on the play-off hole, while Mrs. Page was in front of the green 75 feet away. Mrs. Page's approach landed 5 feet from the pin.

Mrs. Newell tried for an eagle, but the long putt halted inches from the cup. Mrs. Page missed her short putt and then conceded Mrs. Newell the hole and match.

Loan and Trust Team Wins Softball Game

With Bob Berry hurling two-hit ball, the Washington Loan & Trust softball team yesterday took a 2-1 decision over National Metropolitan, capturing the 1941 Bankers' Softball League title. All runs were scored in the first inning. It was the third straight time the Loanmen had measured their foes this season.

Ortiz Helps Wynn Beat Indians, 7-4, for Nats

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The Washington Ball Club's Youth Movement paid off in the form of a 7-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians yesterday to the shrill delight of 5000 Ladies' Day guests and customers. It was a triumph of two rookies, Early Wynn and Roberto Ortiz.

Young Mr. Wynn held the Indians in the grip of some five-hit pitching until he buckled slightly in the ninth before completing an eight-hit game, and Senor Ortiz belted the daylights out of 'em with three consecutive and important hits.

The Nats unloaded 12 hits against Jim Bagby, Joe Krakauskas and Harry Eisenstat and by the time the Indians got around to banging Wynn with some fervor in the ninth, the rookie was operating with a comfy 7-1 lead.

Wynn in Rare Form

Until that ninth inning, Wynn was considerable pitcher, displaying a talent he had exhibited in his maiden start for the Nats last week when he beat the Athletics with a six-hit job. He was throwing up a curve ball with a deep break, and a fast ball that sang, and he walked only one man until the ninth.

Ortiz's contribution was potent He lashed a line drive triple into the left field corner in the third inning that was the pivot blow of two runs at that time, and in the seventh he banged his third line drive of the game to score one run and put another in scoring position. That last blow was against Ex-Pal Joey Krakauskas.

For the first time during the three-game series with the Indians, the Nats got a look at something other than left-handed pitching yesterday and they made short work of Bagby. They raked him for a run in each of the first two innings and blew him out of the box with a three-hit, two-run burst in the third.

Bloodworth Is Helpful

Jimmy Bloodworth went hitless, but he was no drawback to the Nats in that ninth inning, when Wynn was faltering and trying to get the side out after three runs had crossed the plate. Wynn thought he had the game won when Weatherly fouled to Evans, but the catcher dropped the ball and he had to go to work all over again. Bloodworth helped him out by scampering behind first base for Weatherly's grounder, and Wynn helped himself out by racing over to the bag to take the throw on a clever play of his own.

George Case almost got the Nats'

Whirly Set For $25,000 'Jinx Race'

By International News Service

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 12.—Whirlaway, the "horse of the year," was ready tonight for the running tomorrow of the $25,000 Narragansett Special, the "jinx race" for champions.

The chestnut champion faces only three opponents over the mile-and-three-sixteenths course. But for all the limited size of the field it rates as one of the best to run at Narragansett Park this year.

War Relic, winner of the Massachusetts Handicap, who lost to "Whirly" by a nose at Saratoga, is the chief contender. Probably it will be the "Relic" who will keep alive the tradition that this is the Waterloo race for reigning turf kings.

Seabiscuit and Discovery are two notables that defied the 'Gansett jinx and lost.

Completing the field are Haltal and Equifox, both good but rated outsiders in what looms as a two-horse race between the winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont and the little son of Man o' War.

Alfy Robertson will be riding Whirlaway this race. Atkinson is up on War Relic, McCreary has Haltal and A. Craig is the jockey for Equifox.

Whirlaway was a 1-to-2 favorite, War Relic was 3-1, Haltal, 8-1, and Equifox, 12-1, 24 hours before the 5:30 p. m. post time.

Jeffra Will Fight

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—John Nash, Venezuela fight promoter, announced today he had signed Harry Jeffra of Baltimore, former featherweight champion, and Oscar Calles, Venezuela titleholder, for a 10-round match around the middle of October.

Three Injured Players Watch W. & M. Drill

By the Associated Press

Williamsburg, Va., Sept. 12.—Three injured players watched from the sidelines today in William and Mary's two football drills, featured by punting and passing scrimmage.

Don Ream, sophomore tackle candidate, who suffered a recurrence of an old knee injury during Thursday's scrimmage, was the most recent casualty. Two others, Capt. Bill Goodlow, guard, and Newell Irwin, end, have been out of action for several days.

Punts 'Em Long

Lexington, Va., Sept. 12.—Senior End Preston Brown, a converted fullback who will do much of the kicking this year for the Generals, got off several long ones in today's full-speed punting practice in which Washington and Lee coaches stressed blocking for the kicker and covering of punts.

V. M. I. Drills Hard

Lexington, Va., Sept. 12.—The first stringers handled defensive assignments today as Coach Allison (Pooley) Hubert sent the V. M. I. football squad through an intensive afternoon scrimmage.

Hubert praised the work of Barney Skladany, veteran center, and William Ward, newcomer to the Keydet backfield, in backing up the line.

What a Dilemma!

Richmond, Sept. 12.—The University of Richmond gridders performed so dismally in an intrasquad passing scrimmage today that one of the teams actually finished with a minus score.

The scoring worked liked this. Each team had 12 passes. Completions counted 1 point and touchdown passes 6 points, but intercepted passes subtracted 3 points.

Final score: Reds, 1; Blues, minus 4.

Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite was very unhappy about it all, but perked up in the dressing room long enough to say that he didn't know whether the score indicated "that our passing offense was bad or our defense was good."

Warwick Practice

Members of the Warwick A. C. football team are requested to report on time for a practice at 6 o'clock this afternoon at Union Terminal Market, Sixth Street and Florida Avenue Northeast.

Yanks Pound Tiger Hurlers To Win, 8-2

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 12.—The champion New York Yankees raided three Detroit pitchers for 13 hits today to overpower the Tigers, 8 to 2, after learning that Slugger Charley Keller would be lost for the rest of the year because of an injury yesterday.

The Yankee bombardment was concentrated for five runs in the fourth inning, when Frank Crosetti singled with the bases loaded for a pair of runs and Joe DiMaggio drove in two more with a double.

This uprising chased Hal Newhouser and Johnny Gorsica and Earl Cook finished up.

Ernie Bonham gave the Tigers a dozen hits, but kept them scattered, and easily coasted to his ninth triumph.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

In defeat, Joey Archibald made more friends among Washington fight customers the other night than he had accumulated in all those 20 consecutive victories he won in District rings before he met up with Chalky Wright. At last, a Washington fight crowd got around to liking Archibald, and it happened while he was getting licked.

POVICH

For ten rounds Archibald was ducking the dynamite that caught up with him in the eleventh and doing it like a gamester. As he was led out of the ring by his manager, Al Weil, Archibald, shorn of his title, mumbled, "I want him again," meaning, of course, that he wanted to fight Wright again; but he shouldn't. He can't lick Wright.

Time was when Archibald might have licked Wright, but that was a couple of years ago before the sting left his punches. The other night he was in there merely pawing at the hard-hitting Negro lad, who shook him up continually. Three years younger than Wright, Archibald was nevertheless firing duds. Wright took his Sunday punches and was unbothered.

Never a great champion, just a tough sort of kid who could bully the second-raters he met, Archibald scarcely had a chance against Wright. He bounced the Negro lad around on occasion, but he was outclassed. From the start Wright was measuring him for the knockout that finally occurred in the eleventh when a light left hok pulled Archibald's chin into range of the terrific right cross that followed. Archibald, in the dressing room, confessed he never knew what hit him.

"What did he hit me with?" he asked his manager, "How did I go down? Did I try to get up. I know I didn't quit, but what happened?" Weill charitably told him to forget it, with the words, "Don't worry, you didn't disgrace yourself."

Wright Not Breathing Hard

Scarcely breathing hard was Wright at the finish. He made Archibald do all the footwork, merely stalking Joey around the ring with measured steps until he could paste him in the corners. He missed a dozen rights that bore the knockout label before he caught up with Archibald in his own corner in the eleventh. Wright worked harder in his training sessions than he did during the fight. He didn't bother about piling up points. From the start he was intent on a knockout.

In the dressing room, Wright explained his tactics. "I didn't want to take any chance on any decisions. I was 'skeered' Archibald might get one of them Washington decisions I 'heer'd' about. I was looking for a spot where I could clip him so there wouldn't be no voting. I like to do the voting myself, with my right."

For 13 years Wright has been campaigning for the title he won the other night, but at 29 he does not figure to hold it long. There are featherweights around who are stiffer punchers than Archibald, and Ritchie Lemos, the N. B. A. champion, is one of them. Archibald has burned out before his time, but the Archibald of a couple of years ago would have probably licked Wright the other night. It was a pipe for Wright, who could walk into Archibald without fear and bang him some rough licks whenever Archibald wasn't ducking.

The Finish Is Apparent

Before the first round was over the finish was apparent. The odds that had been 2 to 1 against Archibald at ring time zoomed to 5 to 1 among the gambling gentry during round 2 when Wright was slugging Archibald almost at will with only feeble returns. By the end of the third round 3 to 1 that Wright would win by a knockout was freely offered. The betting folks had the fight clocked early.

It was the third time a featherweight title had changed hands in Griffith Stadium ring. Petey Sarron lifted Freddy Miller's title six years ago within the same ropes, and it is a caution to think what either Sarron or Miller might have done to either Archibald or Wright. Sarron would have made either of them look exceedingly silly with his torrid pace and unorthodox punching, and Miller would have boxed the ears of Archibald or Wright to win the decision. Archibald beat Harry Jeffra last May to regain the crown.

But Promoter Ray Alvis is entitled to take a bow on the show, nevertheless. It was strictly a customers' show with the action Archibald and Wright provided. Alvis proudly stood at the exits, beaming his satisfaction at the proceedings. He had threatened to duck under the stands and hide out if it were a poor show, but there was no cause for that. The customers loved it. "Just another Alvis production," said the promoter, expansively, as he raised his batting average from .000.

Pieces of Haight:

Los Angeles, Calif.

Dear Boss:

You know, sometimes I think this Dick Todd is kidding about "that little old boy down to school," who is the hero of every story he tells. Take today; we were out on the field and we were talking about blocking. Todd piped up with, "You should have seen that little old boy down to school block. One time he was playing in the backfield and three men charged in. He forgot which one he was supposed to block so he blocked all three of them.

HAIGHT

Well, Boss, I'm still trying to make the team. Coach Ray Flaherty isn't showing me any favors but I've become a favorite with Sammy Baugh. I wrote you the other day about showing Baugh how to throw a pass. It's a pass we used when I played with the Little Potatoes (we're hard to peel). One day when we were playing the Cowtown Chargers, we only had 10 men who weren't hurt, so I began throwing passes myself. If Baugh gets on to the knack of it, he may be a star in this league yet.

Another reason I have become a pal of Baugh's is the fact that I have ambitions toward the movies. It's only a stone's throw from this Riviera Country Club where we are staying to Hollywood. Baugh made a picture last summer, cowboy stuff, and he knows the right people. Of course, I don't want to be a cowboy in the movies but I could go for one of those heavy love roles. I'm going to put on my hemstitched polo shirt with the mother-of-pearl buttons tomorrow and saunter around Aset Boulevard and see if some movie director doesn't want me as a coming star.

Now I am not sure as yet whether I would forget playing with the Redskins to take a job in pictures. However, this football business has become less attractive to me since I found out something. You wouldn't believe it, Boss, but these football players have to work on Sundays. Furthermore, they can't eat their dinner until after a game.

The other night, after Trainer Doc Mauro put the football babies to bed as usual at 11 p. m., we looked around for a little action. We were watching the floor show, and a well-lit guy staggered out on the dance floor. There wasn't anybody within 20 yards of him and he suddenly slipped, his feet went up in the air and he landed on his head. Of course, we laughed. He jumped up, rushed over to our table and took a swing at me. I put up my dukes, Boss, and rubbed my nose with my thumb, as I generally do, but he had his luck with him; somebody grabbed him.

I asked him what was the trouble and he said, "You're Haight of the Redskins aren't

Bogart Retains D. C. Amateur Golf Title, Beating Nolan

Magnificent Short Game Wins, 3 and 2

Champion Outdriven On Almost Every Hole In March to His 3d Washington Crown

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Post Staff Writer

Ralph Mathews Bogart, the 21-year-old husky who is still the District amateur champion, will always believe in golf's age-old axiom, they don't pay off on the drives.

For yesterday at Kenwood Country Cub the youngster equalled city links history by winning his third consecutive District championship although outmaneuvered and outdriven off the tee on all but three holes by his final-round victim, M. Parker Nolan.

Bogart's victory margin was 3 and 2 as he pulled out of a two-hole deficit with a magnificent chipping and putting demonstration which ended the match with two consecutive birdies, his third and fourth since the ninth hole.

Thus Ralph puts his name along side of George Voigt, most famous of all District amateur golf figures, who, when on top of his game which won international recognition, captured the District title in 1925-26 and '27. Voigt is now working in Washington and plays an occasional round at Rock Creek.

When yesterday's gallery-pleasing match was over on the sixteenth hole and Bogart walked in he needed two pars for a 70, and it was no final round "newspaper" score at that. He holed every putt, two or three which must have broken Nolan's stout heart as for ten holes yesterday the tournament veteran from Congressional looked like an upset victor.

Both breezed through the morning semifinals which lacked the color of that well-played title match, over a well-kept course and under perfect weather conditions.

Skinker Finds Trouble

Bogart and his buddy, Earle Skinker, were on almost even terms for nine holes, but the latter found trouble on almost every hole of the back nine and lost to Bogart's 2-over par golf, 4 and 3. Nolan was having a fairly easy time with Jock Olmsted, leading 3 up at the turn and winning by the same margin with 2-over par golf.

When several hundred spectators, were surprised by Bogart's wicked slice, nearly out of bounds on the first hole of the final, they had just an inkling of what was to come. For on nine of the 12 holes where he used a driver and on all the par threes Bogart's long, wild tee shots sought out Kenwood's deepest rough.

Meanwhile, Nolan, who several years ago earned the "siege-gun" sobriquet, was belting them right down the middle, usually in perfect position but in the late stages of the match he must have realized it was not his day for Bogart would scramble out of trouble and up to the cup for wins or halves.

The boys who were laying modest wagers at 7 to 5 on Bogart were a disconsolate lot when Nolan won the first two holes and held his early lead through the seventh, where he holed a 20-footer to protect his lead.

Bogart played the first of those perfect approaches on the eighth to gain a halve and he won the ninth with a 30-footer for a birdie to turn, one down. Nolan missed a three-footer on the tenth to give Bogart a halve and then came the eleventh hole, which will be talked of for years.

Bogart hit a wild hook which was out of bounds, only to hit a tree and drop in the rough. He hooked a five-iron out of bounds for just a second, until it hit another tree and dropped back inside. Then he played a great approach and halved the hole. Still one down, things happened quick from there to the end on the sixteenth.

Champ's Putter Obeys

Bogart won the twelfth with a birdie when a short putt went around the cup and dropped back in. The thirteenth was halved as Nolan missed a short putt for a birdie but the champion won the fourteenth with a par when Nolan three-putted and took the next two with birdies, dropping second shots putter-length from the stick and holing both putts for threes. Bogart one-putted eight of the last 11 greens.

Bogart reported to his draft board for a physical examination at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and doctors found his blood pressure up 40 points. However, after those two fine victories he'll probably be back to normal today.

Don Dudley pulled the major upset of the entire tournament in the second flight, beating Roger Peacock, 1 up, with a 72 in the semifinals. He then went on to defeat Kenwood Clubmate C. Henry Cohen in the finals, 2 and 1.

Championship Flight

M. Parker Nolan (Congressional) defeated Jock Olmsted (Indian Spring), 4 and 3; Ralph Bogart (Chevy Chase) defeated Earle Skinker (Columbia), 4 and 3.

Nolte and Penn Are Standouts At Anacostia

One week of viewing his 1941 football candidates has revealed little to Coach Rolland Lund of Anacostia High other than that he has two brilliant players.

"We had people around town talking about our Art Faircloth and Bob (Flash) Gordon," the genial former Illinois U player said yesterday, "well—they'll also be talking about our Bob Nolte after this season. And John Penn, my veteran guard, also promises to make quite a name for himself."

Nolte and Penn stand out on a squad which numbers only five lettermen, Lund reveals. Nolte is a rugged 170-pounder, a real triple-threater who will probably handle the signal-calling job. He will share the plunging and ball-carrying assignment with Eddie Hoffman, a 185-pound veteran who will be the heaviest man in the backfield. Though Penn weighs only 170 pounds, his aggressiveness and speed will be welcome.

Other lettermen out for twice-daily workouts are Dick Faircloth, brother of Art, at end, and Bruce Hulett, a 190-pound tackle.

Lund's plans so far call for the following men to fill out the line-up: Frank Burbach and Paul Blaine, backs with some experience though very light; Elmer Leukhardt, all-Metropolitan baseball player, and David Ross at end; George Durham, 195 pounds, at tackle; Eddie Bailey, Billy Pilkerton, William Sweeney or Ralph Ballard at guard, and Tom Yahraes at center. Reserves at the latter position will be Harry Collins and John Shallcross.

"We could do quite well with these," says Lund, "but we certainly could use Gene Crawford, back, and Guard Francis Cox. They're both tied up with jobs now, so their status is doubtful."

Novikoff Hits .370 To Gain American Association Title

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Lou Novikoff, Milwaukee outfielder, won the American Association batting championship after all.

Figures compiled by Howe News Bureau revealed today that the Brewer slugger hit .370 for 90 games as compared to Lou Klein's .367 mark for 111 games. Klein was rated the hitting champion at the season's end last Sunday, but a check of the box scores disclosed an error in a game at Minneapolis July 13.

Klein, Columbus shortstop, was cerdited with three hits in that game, but actually got only two hits. This inadvertent slip had boosted Klein's average to a fraction of a point above Novikoff's.

The corrected figures give Klein 362 times at bat and 133 hits, as against Novikoff's 365 times at bat and 135 hits.

Tony Willman Gains Lanham Speed Victory

Before about 3800 shivering spectators West Lanham Speedway gave a new deal in midget auto racing under the three A's last night and everyone got a hand—that is the drivers were well applauded for a series of good races.

The 25-lap feature went to Tony Willman, Milwaukee, who piloted his white Offenhauser to a fairly easy victory over Charles Miller, Linden, N. J., who twice before during the evening had eaten fumes from Willman's spittin' machine. The feature was merely a repetition of the second qualifying heat and the second semifinal events, both of which were taken by Willman, with Miller's noisy outboard a creditable second.

Third in the main event was "Shortly" MacAndrews Wilmington, in a V-8; fourth Johnny Peterson, Great Neck, Long Island, in an Offenhauser; fifth, Johnny Ritter, Detroit, V-8, and sixth Johnny Pierson, Buffalo, N. Y., V-8. Ten cars started in the feature, but after the first few laps the race had developed into a series of three individual duels between Willman and Miller for first and second, Pierson MacAndrews and Peterson for third and fourth, and Ritter and Pierson for fifth and sixth. This order was generally consistent from the sixth lap until the finish, with Ritter's and Pierson's alternating in the fifth and sixth spots alone marring the even tenure of the contest.

Willman Comes Back

Best race of the seven-event program from the spectator standpoint was the second semifinal in which Willman jumped off to a comfortable early lead, only to be forced from the track into the infield dirt when he skidded on a turn. As Willman skidded from the lead, Miller took over the front position, about 20 yards behind the pace-setter. He then began his thrilling comeback, which culminated in his overtaking Miller on the next to last lap and then fighting off his rival's closing bid which brought him up on almost even terms as the pair flashed across the finish line . . . J. M.

First qualifying heat (ten laps)—First, Dave Randolph; second, Johnny Peterson; third, George Fonder; fourth, Walter Fair. Time, 2:31.78.

Second qualifying heat (ten laps)—First, Tony Willman; second, Charles Miller; third, Shorty McAndrews; fourth, Dee Horan. Time, 2:31.08.

Third qualifying heat (ten laps)—First, Johnny Ritter; second, Johnny Pierson; third, Ralph Sheeler; fourth, Red Bailey. Time, 2:35.31.

First semifinal (15 laps)—First, Shorty McAndrews; second, Johnny Peterson; third, Elmer Sefcik; fourth, Dave Randolph.

Second semifinal (15 laps)—First, Tony Willman; second, Charles Miller; third, Johnny Pierson; fourth, Johnny Ritter.

SEMIFEATURE (12 laps)—First, Red Redmond; second, Walter Fair; third, John Darson. Time, 3:48.27.

FEATURE (25 laps)—First, Tony Willman; second, Charles Miller; third, Shorty McAndrews; fourth, Johnny Peterson; fifth, Johnny Ritter; sixth, Johnny Pierson.

Ford Frick Lays Down Law To Pilots of Cards, Dodgers

Tells Managers That Bickering Will Not Be Tolerated

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Sept. 12.—Taking notice of the many hot arguments with umpires yesterday, Ford Frick, president of the National League, called the two managers and four umpires together before today's Cardinal-Dodger game and laid down the law.

"This is not an argument," Frick told Managers Leo Durocher and Billy Southworth, "we're telling you that we're going to run the ball game.

"We're going to treat you as though you were eighth-place ball clubs and if a man's actions call for his dismissal from the game, he'll be dismissed and if it hurts either club, that's just too bad."

Frick came here from New York to witness the crucial three-game series.

Mangrum's 65 Paces Atlantic City Tourney

By the United Press

Atlantic City N. J., Sept. 12.—Lloyd Mangrum, Monterey Park, Calif., commanded the first qualifying round of the $5000 Atlantic City open golf tournament today by flashing home with a seven under par 65.

Mangrum's card, which missed by one stroke the course record set by Corpl. Ed. (Porky) Oliver of Fort Dix, N. J., was featured by two eagles on the first nine. Smashing his sensational eagles on the first and seventh holes, Mangrum went out with a 32 and in with a 33.

Big Horton Smith, Pine Hurst, N. C., the Nation's leading putter, trailed Mangrum by one stroke. He birdied twice and eagled on the seventh for an out 34, and came home with three additional birdies for a 32.

Ben Hogan, Hersey, Pa., who ranked among the favorites to take the $1200 first prize, tied with Frank Commisso, Rochester, N. Y., and Jack Grout, Pittston, Pa., for 67's. Hogan three-putted two greens on the in nine for a 32, after carding an out 35.

Pair Post 68's

Lawson Little, San Francisco, former National Open champion, and Corporal Oliver posted 68's to stay among the topnotchers.

They were followed by Reg Kirkwood, Daytona Beach, Fla.; Tony Penna, Dayton, Ohio, and Joe Turnesa, Rockville Center, N. Y., who scored 69's.

Penna's homecoming nine featured the morning play. Going out with a high 39, he rolled in six three-putters for a sizzling 30 on the homestretch.

Other scores were: Dutch Harrison, Chicago, 70; Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., 71; George Fazio, Cedarbrook, Pa., 71; Mike Turnesa, Fairview, N. Y., 71; Sam Byrd, Merion, Pa., 72; Benny Shute, Chicago, 72; Bruce Coltart, Seaview, N. J., 73; Felix Sarafin, Scranton, Pa., 73; Chick Hart, Reading, Pa., 74; Johnny Bulla, Greensboro, N. C., 74; Lefty Stackhouse, Texas, 75; Frank Allan, West Pittston, Pa., 76.

GAO, Petworth Play Tonight

Two District teams—GAO of the Government League and the independent Petworth C. A. nine—will open their quest for the Metropolitan baseball tournament title tonight when they take part in a double-header at Ballston Stadium at 7:30. The first will tangle with the Vienna Cardinals in the opener, and the second meets Alexandria's Art Welders.

First-round play will be concluded Monday when the other four clubs entered see their first action. The Washington Apaches clash with the Jacobsen Florists in the first game, and the second brings together the Heurich Brewers, Post-Industrial League champion, and Palace A. C. The latter club is champion of the Washington-Virginia League.

Mrs. Paul Winkler took down top prize in the selected nine-hole tournament for ladies yesterday at Congressional Country Club, turning in a 40—8—32. Four strokes back were Mrs. D. M. Jani, with 42—6—36, and Mrs. D. H. Henderson with an identical score. Low putt prize went to Mrs. Herbert Weber, who needed only 32.

Defense Bond Drive Shares Day With Nats

Baseball and defense bonds will share the program at Griffith Stadium today when the Nats meet the Cleveland Indians in the finale of a four-game series.

The day in baseball has been designated as National Defense Bond Day and elaborate ceremonies will precede the game, including an address at home plate by Undersecretary of Treasury Daniel W. Bell.

President Clark Griffith of the Nats will present gifts of defense bonds to any and all players hitting home runs, and the winning pitcher of the day will also be presented with a bond by the Washington Board of Trade.

The pre-game program follows:

2 p. m.—United States Army Band and 100 troops from Washington Provisional Brigade at Ball Park.

2:30 p. m.—Parade by troops, augmented by sailors from Washington Navy Yard.

2:50 p. m.—Salute to Flag and National Anthem by Army Band.

2:52 p. m.—Troops and band "present arms" to Undersecretary Daniel W. Bell.

2:55 p. m.—Arch MacDonald introduces Mr. Bell over the loud speaker system.

2:56 p. m.—Mr. Bell's address from home plate.

2:59 p. m.—Undersecretary Bell throws out ball to start game.

Manager Bucky Harris will send Arnold Anderson to the mound against the Indians. The Cleveland club will start Chubby Dean, formerly of the Athletics. Dean will be the third left handed pitcher to start against the Nats in the four-game series.

Bob Custer, Former Cage Star, to Wed

Bob Custer, former basketball star at Western and Eastern High Schools, will marry Miss Elizabeth Orton today at St. Francis Xavier Church, it was announced yesterday by the bride-to-be's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Orton.

Wicker Hurls 4-2 Victory For Montreal

By the United Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Kemp Wicker, veteran left-hander, pitched the Montreal Royals to a 4-2 victory over the Buffalo Bisons tonight, evening their semifinal International League play-off series at two games each.

Wicker allowed only seven hits and proved invincible over the last six innings as no Bison reached third base. After setting the first six men down in order, the Montreal Royal pitcher weakened momentarily in the third inning to allow Buffalo to score both its runs on four hits and a wild pitch. A fine throw by Left Fielder Don Ross nailing Ned Harris at the plate after Mickey Rocco had singled, halted the Bisons rally and Wicker hurled shut-out ball thereafter.

Third Baseman Roy Hughes gave Montreal a 2-run lead in the first inning when he homered over the left field wall after Corbitt had singled off Charley Fuchs, starting Buffalo hurler. The Royals scored again in the third on a single by Campbell and a double by Ross. Wicker clinched his own game in the ninth when he doubled off the center field wall, scoring Howell who had singled.

Buffalo	002 000 000—2	7	0

Wicker and Howell; Fuchs, Trucks (4) and Parsons.

Central, Devitt In Scrimmage

Fans of Central High and Devitt Prep football teams got a line on their favorites yesterday when they held a lengthy scrimmage session at Central Stadium.

Outstanding for Coach Jan Jankowski, host mentor, were Wilbur Rock, tackle; Mike Denikos, back; Hubert Tucker, guard, and Jack Samperton, end. Devitt's Coach Jim O'Leary was particularly pleased by the play of Backs Bud Fisher, George McGowan and Bob Kaufman, Tackle Francis Manilli and Guard Charles Davis.

100 Small Boat Racers In Cup Regatta Today

Engaged in making last-minute preparations on their "Nolle Prosse 2d" for the President's Cup Regatta sailing races today are Al Bird, Charles Trammell, skipper, and John Swayez, making final preparations at the Capital Yacht Club late yesterday afternoon

Eastern Pacific Coast Drivers Meet For Sail Events Opposite Airport Today

More than one hundred small boat sailing enthusiasts from widely scattered yachting centers on the East and Pacific Coasts will open the sailing weekend of the fifteenth annual President's Cup Regatta today at 1:30 p. m. off Hains Point.

Two races tomorrow, the first at 9:30 a. m. and the final at 2 p. m., will conclude the regatta which this year is minus the featured speed-boat events because of a threatened East Coast fuel shortage and national defense operations throughout the country.

Today will mark the seventh year sailboats have been given a place on the regatta, and all indications were the Potomac River opposite the new National Airport would see the largest gathering of little windjammers ever assembled here.

From Seattle, Wash.; tidewater Maryland and Virginia; and New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, skippers of 13 national and international sailing classes were converging on Capital Yacht Club, regatta headquarters for the two days.

One of the latest entries to be received by officials yesterday was that of Mr. and Mrs. Alton O'Brien, of Perth Amboy, N. J., who held the comet class national title in 1936. They will be racing today in a new comet, Aquila II. With With their entry, the comet class promises to furnish the most heated competition of the week-end.

Already received by Sailing Chairman Arthur Clephane is the Double Scotch, owned by Phil Somervell, of Edgewater Park, N. J., this year's titleholder in the comet class.

Clephane also revealed that Arthur Godfrey, well-known local radio announcer, had entered his lighting class sloop in the class A handicap. Named La Spouse, the boat will be raced by Godfrey, with Mrs. Godfrey as crew.

The following classes will go off at five-minute intervals with the firing of guns from the Coast Guard cutter Jackson.

Twenty-foot division I, 20-foot division II, Hampton one-design, comet, national one-design, 16-foot, snipe, moth, penguin, handicap A, handicap B, Washington canoe and handicap C boats will race two laps; the others go around the triangular course but once.

Grid Drill Scheduled

A practice session for the 150-pound Maryland Aces football team will be held at 4:30 today at Burroughs Playground. Newcomers as well as veterans are urged to be present.

Service Club Golf Title Won in Upset By Mrs. Maxwell

Mrs. M. M. Maxwell, an attractive newcomer to District women's golf this season, pulled a major upset yesterday in the finals of the Army and Navy Club championship with a 5 and 3 victory over medalist Mrs. M. K. Barroll.

Mrs. Maxwell was 3 up at the turn and, 4 up with four to play, ended the match with a birdie 4 on the long fifteenth hole. She had an approximate 90 for the round.

Mrs. W. F. Boone won the second flight over Peggy Hermann, 4 and 3, and Mrs. W. Magruder the first consolation over Mrs. L. P. Moore, 5 and 4.

Alsab, Juvenile Champion, Runs Today as 'Graw' Opens

$10,000 'Cap Tops 8-Race Program

14 Entries Listed For Eastern Shore Handicap; Joe Ray May Be Declared

By Clocker Mike.

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 12.—The Harford Agricultural Breeders Association today opens the gates of Havre de Grace to what promises to be the best meeting held at this turf point in many a year. As is generally the case, the opening day attraction will be the $10,000 added Eastern Shore Handicap, an event at 6 furlongs for 2-year-olds. The race, which annually attracts the best 2-year-olds in the country, has kept up its good work this year, the field being headed by Mrs. Albert Sabath's Alsab, the bargain colt of the year.

Among the winners of the Eastern Shore were such notables as Equipoise, Rosemont, High Quest and War Admiral. Of course there are some winners farther back that could be mentioned but that is way before my time. The best time for the race was hung up by War Admiral in 1936 when he toured the 6-furlong distance in the excellent time of 1:11 with 113 pound son his back.

14 Entries Scheduled

Today's race has drawn a total of 14 entries but when the bugle blows calling them to the post, it is doubtful if the field will number over ten or eleven. Beside Alsab the race has drawn such good youngsters as Colchis, Air-Current, Ben Shaba, Equipet, Sir War, Sweep Singer, Baby Dumplin, Pony Ballet, Elder, Rencourt, Flaught, Joe Ray and our old half miler friend Anonymous. Of this field it is almost certain that E. K. Bryson's Joe Ray will be withdrawn. Another likely to come out of the race is Anonymous, a fair sort around the halfers but a little too highly placed here.

As was the case in the spring, Havre De Grace will stage an eight race card. Backing up the headliner will be seven races for the older horses. Included in this group will be four at three quarters of a mile and three distance races. Included in the latter group will be one at a mile and seventy yards and two at a mile and an eighth.

Horse Wagering At Md. Half-Milers Set New Record

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Sept. 12.—Wagering on the horses hit a new high at Maryland's minor tracks during the 60-day season which ended at Timonium yesterday.

Bettors poured $8,260,768 into the pari-mutual machines in the 1941 season at the five half-mile tracks compared with $5,995,413 last year.

Every track showed an increase over 1940, the gains ranging from 29 per cent at Cumberland to 43 per cent at Marlboro.

Track	1940	1941
Hagerstown	$858,144	$1,211,312
Bel Air	1,508,846	2,172,888
Cumberland	1,064,294	1,380,298
Marlboro	1,130,803	1,624,063
Timonium	1,372,826	1,872,218
Totals	$5,995,413	$8,260,768

The State treasury gets 2 per cent of all wagering over the $500,000 mark. The tax this year amounts to $155,215.36. The State also receives a 5 per cent tax on the net revenue of the tracks.

Selections at Havre de Grace

Dear Al:

The Eastern Shore Handicap is to be contested today and it drew one of the best fields of the year. Heading the list is Mrs. Albert Sabath's Alsab, winner of five stakes so far this season. Alsab, as has often been written, is the supreme bargain of the year. This colt was purchased at the yearling sale for a mere $700 and has earned a total of $72,180. If he wasn't a smart investment, make mine vanilla. The Eastern Shore is an event for 2-year-olds over the 6-furlong distance and has drawn an overnight field of 14. It is expected that about 11 of these can be counted on as certain starters. Air Current, the property of L. L. Haggin 2d, got in yesterday to fulfill his engagement in the 2-year-old stake. Colchis, another scheduled starter in the event, had his stock raised a little when it was announced that Maurice (Moose) Peters would come down to do the booting. Among the other jockey arrivals were Darrell Madden, Mannie Berg, Eddie DeCamillis, Lucas Dupps, Red Howell and Red Pollard. Our old friend Cy Butler has taken over the book of Al Shelhamer. Some other stables to get in recently were L. P. Harlan with 10, Elmer Trueman with 10, and W. J. Norton with 8. Former Jockey George Fields, who for many years was one of the best riders in the country, accompanied the Norton shipment and will be the head exercise boy for the stable. Among the changes seen in the office force was that M. C. (Ty) Shea, of Baltimore, had been made entry clerk and would serve in the stand in the afternoons as a placing judge. Charlie McLennan, race secretary here, will not be in the stand as has been the custom in past years. Shea worked under Brennan around the half-milers and is one of the best-liked officials around the tracks. The Government is really closing in on this track. They have erected a large settlement of homes which are to accommodate the workers at the defense plants nearby. The most notable is the Aberdeen Proving Grounds. It has been learned that Ben Whitaker, owner of Requested, and Mrs. Albert Sabath, in whose interest Alsab performs, are both in favor of a match race between their charges. If this race materializes it will be held at Belmont Park on September 23. That's a race that should pack them in. The two are without a doubt the best 2-year-olds to be seen under colors this year. Well, let's see how it will go on the big apple.

BILL.

First Race—BOSTON PAL was a clever winner last out at Arlington Park and should be able to handle a field like this. He is an old-timer but has always been partial to this track. STAR CHANCE is a consistent sort and should furnish the chief contention. GUERRILLA showed speed in several starts at New York and has a chance.

Second Race — BARBARA CHILDS is one of Bradley's youngsters that has shown speed in races. Was second out and deserves the call with these maidens. MISCHIEF AFOOT also has good races to recommend and should be a factor. RENCOURT has trained well enough to be entered in the stake and will probably wind up favorite.

Third Race—CLINGENDAAL is a badlegged sprinter but must be given the preference after those last few races. Scored twice at Chicago and has trained well since shipping here. ZOSTERA returned to top form in New York and cannot be overlooked. WOODVALE LASS has been going bad but loves this strip.

Fourth Race—HEATHTOWN was a clever sprint winner last out and I am taking her to go a distance against these. She is as fit as ever but will have the consistent IRISH MOON to beat for the top money. TODDLE ON hasn't shown much of late but is dropping down in class.

Fifth Race—I'm going out on a limb here and take SKIN DEEP to beat his field of highclass sprinters. All races in New England were good and I'm going to string along. MADIGAMA has been rested and has always preferred this course. STOLEN TRYST is a much improved horse.

Sixth Race—ALSAB is the champion 2-year-old and there is no getting away from that. After beating everything out West, he should keep his string intact here. COLCHIS has worked well enough to give the top one a race for his money and may surprise. EQUIPET is a filly but she has trained brilliantly.

Seventh Race—RONCAT has been regarded as a router in this section of the country but races in New England say that sprints will do. Will have the hard knocking BILL FARNSWORTH to down but I believe he is equal to the task. JAY JAY is somewhat of a champ over this track.

Eighth Race—I may be getting a little high on a half-miler here but I'm going to take CANDLE ENDS to beat this field. He's no high class router but neither is anything else in here. GOOD CONDUCT had some good races before coming here and is the threat. CISNEROS is always a tough one over a distance.

Best bet—ALSAB.

Alsab, Requested Meet in Match Race, Sept. 23

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 12.—The owners of Alsab and Requested, outstanding 2-year-olds of the year, today agreed on conditions for a match race at Belmont Park September 23.

The conditions agreed upon by Albert Sabath, Chicago owner of Alsab, and B. F. Whitaker, Texas owner of Requested, call for each horse to carry 122 pounds over 6½ furlongs with a purse of $10,000—winner take all—and a trophy. If either horse is withdrawn after midnight, September 16, the owner of the other will forfeit $2,500.

Each horse has proven a remarkable bargain from the 1940 yearling sales at Saratoga. Alsab, campaigning in the Chicago and New England areas, cost $700 and has won $72,190. Requested was knocked down to Whitaker for $1,300 and has earned $47,300.

Reds Defeat Giants, 8 to 4; Riddle Victor

By International News Service

Cincinnati, Sept. 12.—The Cincinnati Reds trimmed New York, 8 to 4, today with a seven-run rally in the sixth inning.

The Reds picked up their first run in the third, but in the fourth the Giants scored four times, two of the tallies being driven home when Pitcher Fiddler Bill McGee singled with the bases loaded.

The Reds took the lead in the explosive seventh when Elmer Riddle slammed out a two-run two-bagger with loaded bases. The assault drove McGee to cover, Bill Lohrman was unable to halt the rally, and Rookie Dave Koslo finally put out the fire.

Riddle held the Giants at bay thereafter and won his seventeenth victory. Riddle was rapped for nine hits, the Giant hurlers for 13.

Cincinnati's smallest baseball gathering of the season, 1585, witnessed the game.

RE MR. BARROW, THE SILENT MAN

New York, Sept. 12.—There wasn't much said about Ed Barrow, during the huzzahing over the capture of the American League pennant by the Yankees. And yet it was the twelfth pennant that has come to the firm since he was put in charge of the Ruppert baseball empire in 1920. It is a record which may never be approached, and a deep tribute to the big shy old boy with the glowering eyebrows.

CONSIDINE

Barrow was a first class manager himself, but his real genius is selecting the right man for the right job. It was he who found George Weiss and gave him the support which built up the great Yankee farm system. It was Barrow who signed Joe McCarthy, after McCarthy had been fired by the Cubs. Ed runs the works, and does it better than any man alive. He bought the Ruths, Gehrigs, DiMaggios and Kellers.

But you never hear much about him, or from him. In fact he prefaces every remark to a reporter with some admonition such as "Don't quote me, but . . ." or "Remember, this is not coming from me."

We're going to quote him, however. For he has some interesting things to say about his twelfth winner. And some of those things haven't been said before, or, at least, as authoritatively.

"I'll tell you what I think of this latest team," he told us today. "It's different than most Yankee teams, especially the great old ones. It's got balance, and I don't mean just on the field. It's got balance in the club house and in the homes of the players. It may not be the best Yankee team by a long shot, but it's as good as any club I ever saw when it comes to rising to an occasion. It's a great team, when those golden eagles are on the line.

Pays Tribute to McCarthy

"I call it Joe McCarthy's team," Barrow said. "Joe's been the main reason we've won again. I don't mean that he wasn't the reason we won our other pennants since he came to us. But this year Joe did an especially great job of pulling a club together and finding the right combination of players. How many pennants have been won without a 20-game pitcher? Usually, pennant winners have two 20-game men. Joe didn't have anything that looked like even one 20-gamer.

"Another sensible thing Joe does is to get rid of discontented players. He weeds them out as they come along, and the result is obvious on this new winner. I couldn't say that of our winners in the early days. Those early clubs were selfish, temperamental and there was a lot of jealousy. But not since McCarthy's come to us."

Barrow was asked if he had any idea about how McCarthy would juggle that thoroughly unspectacular Yankee pitching staff in the World Series.

"I doubt if I'll know until the first game of the series," Ed chuckled. "You see one of the first things I did when I came to the Yankees was write a memorandum to Col. Ruppert and Col. Huston and tell them that if they wanted to be assured of good teams the best thing they could do would be stay out of the locker-room and stay away from the manager. It turned out to be such good advice that I've kept it myself."

Ted Williams Just Hits

P. S.—Greatest thing about Ted Williams' .400 plus batting average, to the average big leaguer, is that Ted never bunts and seldom hits to any field except right . . . Pro football appears to be in for its greatest season, if early season crowds are a criterion. Overlooking the All-Star and exhibition games for the moment, the lowly Rams and the lowlier Steelers drew 23,720 in their season opener—at Akron, of all places . . . "How you going to beat a fellow like Byron Nelson?" complained Jimmy Thomson the other night. "With Hogan, Snead and Dodson still out on the course, and within a shot or two of him, Nelson finished his last round, told his wife to see that the bags were put in their car and said, 'I'll wait around to get my check for winning.' Which is just what he did!"

England's biggest boxing show since well before the war will be staged September 21 under the joint promotion of the Marquis of Queensberry and War Correspondent Quentin Reynolds, who used to cover the Brooklyn Dodgers. All proceeds will go to the blitzed people of Manchester. Every British champion will be on the card. Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Joe Louis, Billy Conn, Mike Jacobs, Jimmie Bronson, Jim Braddock and other American fistic notables are sending donations to the fund and messages to be read from the ring by Reynolds on the night of the fight. Any other American fighter, manager or promoter can do so by cabling Reynolds at the Savoy Hotel, London.

Hypocrite Wins Curate 'Cap At Aqueduct

By the Associated Press

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Much to the delight of those in the crowd of 11,200 who installed him favorite at $4.30 for two, R. A. Coward's Hypocrite breezed off an easy winner of the featured Curate (class "C") Handicap here this summery afternoon. Jack Westrope nursed the 6-year-old son of Wrack along and the combination reported four lengths clear, timed in 1:45 for the mile and a sixteenth trip.

A. J. Sackett's heavily-weighted Tola Rose, a victim of early interference, was much the best of the other three starters, leading R. C. Thatcher's Spanish Duke over the wire by three lengths for the place award. Dusky Fox and The Fiend trailed.

The Fiend was fastest out of the gate from the outside position, closely followed by Tola Rose and Hypocrite. As the two swung around the clubhouse turn, Tola Rose was caught in a wedge between the other two horses and pinched back. The Fiend held command briefly as they entered the backstretch. Hypocrite then moved into a clear advantage. Kept under wraps by Westrope from that point on, the favorite left no doubt as to his superiority. Tola Rose, after shaking off The Fiend while in pursuit of the victor, had no trouble holding safe the challenge of Spanish Duke.

Recall Defends Show Honors Today at Olney

Seeking to carry on his record for dominating the Montgomery County Horse Show for the fourth (or maybe more) consecutive year, Charles Carrico's Recall will be the most touted entry in the annual event at Olney, Md., today.

Held on the farm of T. A. (Lex) Barnsley, the show will attract not only pampered show ring hunters and jumpers, but also the workaday draft horses who earn their own living all during the year and have this particular Saturday set aside to "show off."

Morning events, beginning at 9:30 o'clock, will be devoted to the 2000-pounders—the Belgians, the Percherons, and the other heavy draft varieties. They include classes for draft breeding, 4-H breeding, 6-horse teams, 4-horse teams, 2-horse teams, hunter breeding, and ponies, the last two being the only early outings for riding horses.

Thoroughbred hunters and jumpers will come into their own in the afternoon, following a parade of morning winners at 1:30. Classes are open saddle, junior hunters, local hunters (bred in Montgomery and Howard Counties), hunter hacks, ladies' hunters, pairs of hunters, handy hunters, and three open jumping events.

Entrants include Lewis Randall of Clarksville, Md., with Sonny and several other hunters; Charles Fletcher's Nanette, Mrs. Nancy Harris McDowell's Dunstar, Lieut. Fred Hughes, jr.'s Black Caddy, Mrs. Hughes' Hi-Ho, Eddie Talbert's Crusoe, Gardner Hallman's Lady Jack, Fenton Fadeley's string of hunters and jumpers, and other widely known local horses.

Hoyas' Kopcik Back, May Join Team

Crack End Talks With G. U. Heads

Blozis Outstanding In Hoya Scrimmage; Reiges and Dornfeld Also Are Impressive

By Jack Munhall

Hope was renewed yesterday that Georgetown would not lose its star end Mike Kopcik. The 195-pound senior was back in town, according to Coach Jack Hagerty, and in conference with school officials. Kopcik, the Hoyas' best punter and outstanding end, returned from his home in Endicott, N. Y. after an absence of several days. It had been reported that Kopcik was in scholastic difficulty.

Hagerty was still pretty much in the dark concerning the status of his kicking ace, but the mere fact that Kopcik is back at school was considered a good omen, even though he has not rejoined the team.

Meantime the Georgetown football squad took advantage of yesterday's autmnal weather to get in some heavy work in a intrasquad scrimmage lasting one and a half hours. The coaching staff was divided in its opinion of the workout, with Coach Hagerty fairly satisfied, and Assistants George Murtagh and "Mush" Dubofsky somewhat disappointed.

Blozis Brilliant

There was one item upon which all agreed, however, and that was the customary brilliance of Al Blozis, the 235-pound All-America tackle candidate. Whether he was playing at his normal right tackle berth or at left tackle, Blozis was a plenty tough customer to handle.

Using his bulk strength and surprising speed, big Al was just about invincible against plays aimed in his direction, and repeatedly he would charge to the opposite side to spill ball carriers from behind. It was in smashing up passing attempts that Blozis was particularly terrifying. One time he caught up with Benny Reiges, the Hoyas' sophomore passing hope, and whacked him to the ground so hard that the entire practice field seemed to reverberate with the shock. Reiges bounced up uninjured, though there was a glassy look in his eyes.

A few minutes before the others finished, Blozis was sent to the showers. Since he didn't seem tired, the guess is that the coaches shunted him away to protect his wearying mates.

Lemke Looks Good

Other linemen who showed up well were Ends Art Lemke and Bob Duffey, and guards Pete Calcagno and Ed McMahon. In the backfield, Reiges was impressive both on offense, at running and passing, and on defense where he made several spectacular open-field tackles. Veterans Frank Dornfeld and Bill McLaughlin also contributed some big running gains, as did Sophomores Joe Gyorgedeak and Joe Sikorski. The latter was quarterbacking one of the squads and turned in a good job. In one series of plays his team twice shook loose backs for what would have been touchdowns, and on the other try they completed a flat pass that also might have been a score.

Though the pace was fast there were no serious casualties noted. George Perpich, giant junior tackle, and Al Yukna, sophomore end and tackle, sustained slight head injuries.

The Hoyas will continue scrimmaging among themselves, with the only outside practices scheduled being against Navy next Saturday and again the following Monday.

Pirates Split Double-Header With Braves

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Sept. 12.—The Pirates and Braves split a second straight double-header here today, the Pirates winning the first, 6 to 3, for Lloyd Dietz's seventh victory of the year, and Al Javery blanking the Bucs in the finals, 5 to 0.

Javery, who didn't permit a hit after the fourth inning, held a 1-to-0 edge until the eighth when Eddie Miller's double and two bunts set the stage for Gene Moore's single with the bases filled. Eddie had four hits in the first game.

The Pirates were charged with five errors in the second contest, and made six in yesterday's nightcapper.

Frankie Gustine featured the opener, driving in two runs with a pair of triples and scoring two himself.

'Skins Subdue Pacific Grid Stars, 30-0

38. Peterson passed to Lefty Goodhue for 30 yards, Filchock making the tackle. Groves' attempted place-kick from the 40 was wide.

Both teams were hampered by the dew-soaked ball. Filchock went through the line for 6 and Todd picked up 2 more. Todd's punt was poor, going out on the Redskins' 40. Wilbur Moore intercepted Peterson's pass and went 48 yards before being stopped by Goodhue on the 11-yard line. Goodhue then intercepted Filchock's pass behind his goal line and Fred Davis brought him down on the Stars' 25 as the quarter ended.

Redskins, 0; Stars, 0.

Second Period

Redskins held and Peterson punted to Todd, who was downed on his 45. The Redskins were penalized 15 yards for clipping. Masterson made a brilliant catch of Filchock's pass for 33 yards and a first down on the Stars' 32. Filchock shot short pass to Todd and he ran to the 20 for a first down.

Filchock faked a pass and went off tackle to another first down on the Stars' 9. On the next play, Todd fought his way to a touchdown through right tackle. Masterson's place-kick was good. Redskins, 7; Stars, 0.

Kenny Washington returned the kick-off and was thrown by Filchock on the Stars' 25. Moore and Andrako stopped Washington for no gain at left end. Washington passed 7 yards to Strode, who was stopped by Todd. Redskins were penalized 5 yards for running into the kicker and it was first down for the Stars on their 37. Richards went through the line for 14 yards.

Roy Zimmerman intercepted Richardson's pass and the Stars were penalized 15 to their 32 for holding. Bob Seymour, in two tries, picked up 6 and Zimmerman ran to first down around right end with Vic Carroll blocking. Ray Hare skirted left end for 7. Redskins were penalized 5 for off-side and 10 more for arguing. Zimmerman got 10 of it back at right end. Redskins were penalized 15 for clipping.

Kenny Washington stopped Joe Aguirre on an end-around and was injured. Aguirre, who kicked the field goal for St. Mary's that beat Fordham last year, booted a perfect placement from the 37.

Score: Redskins, 10; Stars, 0.

Ray Hare, of the Redskins, was put out of the game for arguing.

Third Period

Morgan carried the kick-off to the Redskins' 21 and on a quick-kick, Baugh punted to Stars' 4-yard line, where Sanford downed ball. Punt was good for 67. The crowd booed when Referee Old penalized the Stars half distance to goal for off-side. Baugh took in Peterson's punt on Stars' 34 and was stopped. Morgan and Baugh made nine and then Banta fumbled and Strode recovered for the Stars on their 30.

Peterson's pass was intercepted by Red Morgan, who galloped 32 yards unmolested to touchdown. Baugh fumbled the slippery ball on Sanford's attempted placement.

Sanford kicked-off and Richards returned 33 yards to the Stars' 33. Dick Farman threw Goodhue for a 15-yard loss. Peterson's pass was intercepted by Jack Banta for a first down on Stars' 22. Wayne Millner made a fine catch of Baugh's pass for touchdown. Stanford's placement was good.

Score: Redskins, 23; Stars, 0.

Fourth Period

Peterson punted 50 yards and Todd ran it back to the Redskins' 43. The crowd roared when Referee Old was injured on the play and trainers of both teams worked over him. The band played "The Old Gray Mare," etc. Old had to leave the game. Frank Filchock broke through and ran 41 yards to Stars' 17. He was brought down from behind.

Todd skirted right end for 5, but on the next play, the Stars held for downs. On the first play, Bob Tichenal intercepted Peterson's pass for touchdown. Filchock's placement was good.

Army Asks 170 Officers Be Retired

First Step Taken In Purge of Men Considered 'Unfit'

By Charles Hurd

Copyright by New York Times

The first step in the Army's "purge" of officers considered unfit for duty was taken yesterday with an announcement that 170 of these have been recommended for removal.

This action, the first such in the Army's history, was taken after Congress passed in May, at the request of Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, a law specifying procedure for retiring or discharging unfit officers.

It was pointed out that the action had no connection with more recent orders assigning maximum ages at which each grade of officer is considered fit for field duty. That new order affects alike Regular, Reserve and National Guard officers, but the forced retirement law does not affect reserves or the guard.

The law under which yesterday's recommendations were announced was passed specifically to permit summary action on Regular Army officers who heretofore have been so firmly fixed by law in their positions that it was virtually impossible to remove an officer for anything less than an offense involving trial by court-martial, or for actual physical disability.

No names were made public by the War Department, pending final action on the recommendations by the Secretary of War.

Of the officers to be relieved, 133 have been notified, the War Department announced, and notifications are being forwarded to the 37 remaining ones.

It was indicated that quite a number of other officers soon will be similarly notified, while a group of others have filed voluntary requests for retirement.

Among the latter groups, it was stated, 66 officers have requested voluntary retirement, 9 have asked permission to appear before retirement boards on the ground of physical condition, 7 have asked to be permitted to appear before general retirement boards, and 51 offered retirement options have not yet responded.

While more than 250 officers thus figure in contemplated retirements, it was pointed out that there are 15,000 officers in the Regular Army.

G. W. Gridders Show Up Well In Rough Drill

After a week of conditioning exercises, Coach Bill Reinhart gave his George Washington football squad its first taste of heavy work yesterday on the Polo Field in East Potomac and at the end was pleased to see no serious casualties.

Minor hurts were sustained by Matt Zunic (bad leg), Paul Nugent (strained muscle in side) and Paul Weber (bad Charley horse).

Standouts of the intrasquad practice game were mostly linemen, but in the backfield Scott Gudmundson also got in some good licks. The blond junior halfback gave an exhibition of passing and running, indicating that despite the wealth of promising sophomore backs, he has no intention of surrendering his tailback spot.

Along the forward wall the stars were Ellis Hall and Henry Agusiewicz at guards and big John Konizewski, the 230-pound tackle.

The Colonial squad was brought to full strength yesterday with the arrival of Ted Hapanowicz, a sophomore center who is expected to prove a capable understudy for Don Seebert.

Humphries Blanks Macks For White Sox

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—Johnny Humphries' four-hit pitching and his teammates' timely hitting gave the Chicago White Sox a 2-to-0 victory over the Athletics before a slim crowd today. It was Humphries' fourth shutout victory of the year.

Humphries was in serious trouble only in the ninth when Benny McCoy singled and Frankie Hayes walked with two out. Humphries squelched the uprisings, however, by forcing slugger Bob Johnson to fly out.

The Sox made the most of their eight hits off Phil Marchildon. Myril Hoag tallied the first run in the opening inning when he walked, stole second, took third on Don Kolloway's infield out and went home on Joe Kuhel's infield out.

In the eighth, Kolloway singled, Kuhel walked and Luke Appling singled to score Kolloway. Dee Miles threw out Kuhel at home plate after taking Taft Wright's fly to end the inning.

Mighty Phils Blast 3 Hurlers To Beat Cubs

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 12.—The Philadelphia Phils blasted three Chicago pitchers to win the opener of a two-game series, 5 to 3, before a Ladies' Day crowd of 5523.

Tom Hughes was returned the winner, although he gave up nine hits, three of them by Lou Novikoff, the "Mad Russian" only recently returned from Milwaukee. One of Novikoff's hits was his fifth home run as a Cub.

Jake Mooty started for the Cubs but was peppered for eight hits before being removed for a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning. Rookie Walter Lan Franconi took up the pitching chore, but was knocked out in the ninth when the Phils clinched the game with their fifth run. Vern Olsen finished the game.

Zale-Abrams Bout Rescheduled for November 28

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 12.—The world's four top ranking middleweights will show their wares at Madison Square Garden within one week this fall because Promoter Mike Jacobs today rematched Georgie Abrams and Tony Zale for November 28.

The fight between Zale, recognized as champion by the National Boxing Association, and Abrams, the so-called "uncrowned king of the middleweights," was postponed when Zales was stricken with a skin infection and removed to a hospital. The bout originally was set for tonight.

Their appearance will follow a meeting on November 21 between Billy Soose, holder of the New York title, and Ken Overlin, who is seeking to regain the crown.

Powerboat Star Upsets Officials, But All Is Okay

Jack Hyde, widely known local powerboat driver, created a sensation at the Capital Yacht Club yesterday when midst preparations for today's President's Cup sailing races he roared up to the club in a 225 hydroplane.

"Hey," they yelled at him, "there are no powerboat races in the regatta this year. Didn't you hear they'd been called off in the interests of national defense?"

When Hyde had docked, he explained that he was en route to the Maryland Yacht Club Regatta in Baltimore today and that he was testing his craft in the water before taking it by trailer to the Monumental City.

The boat he was driving is owned by Jack Thurston, of Richmond. Now called the Baby Majada, it is the former 4-litre craft, Emancipator, with which S. Mortimer Auerbach, of Atlantic City, broke many records. In one English regatta three years ago, Auerbach's Emancipator smashed 22 marks.

Film Monopoly Talk Is a Joke, Willkie Says

Wendell L. Willkie, defending the motion picture producers against "monopoly" charges voiced before a Senate committee, asserted yesterday the movie makers were engaged in "the fiercest cut-throat competition of any industry in the country."

The 1940 Republican Presidential nominee told reporters that instead of cooperating in a calculated program to install war propaganda into films, the motion picture companies were "cutting each other to pieces" in their efforts to put over box office successes.

Willkie is representing the movie industry in hearings before the Senate Interstate Commerce Subcommittee on a resolution by Senators Nye (Republican), and Clark (Democrat), to investigate reports of propaganda in films. The committee held no session yesterday.

John T. Flynn, newspaper and magazine writer who testified Thursday, urged the committee to act toward breaking up what he charged was a monopolistic combine operating a private censorship against the dissemination of peace appeals while working to involve this country in war.

But Willkie said that the films against which Flynn lodged his chief complaints—"March of Time" shorts and features released through United Artists—were not even produced by the "Big Four" companies.

Willkie listed those companies as Twentieth Century-Fox, Paramount, Warner Brothers, and Loew's, which controls Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. He added that the "monopoly" charges levelled by Flynn and witnesses who had preceded him appeared to be directed chiefly against those firms.

"This talk of monopoly is laughable," he declared. "Competition in the motion picture industry is the fiercest of any industry in the country. Instead of there being a monopoly, there is cut-throat competition."

Willkie said he hoped to call to the stand next week the heads of the four large companies to deny the propaganda and monopoly charges in person.

Present-Day Army Praised By Pershing

Gen. John J. Pershing, who commanded the American armies during World War I, last night asserted that our present-day soldiers have the "spirit and the stamina to defend their country at all costs."

The statement was contained in a message to the Army, published in the Army and Navy Journal, on the eve of the warrior's eighty-first birthday today. He has been confined to his special apartment in Walter Reed Hospital for several months.

"I am happy to send my personal greetings to more than 1,500,000 soldiers now serving actively in the Army of the United States," he said. "Their service in the present emergency is of the utmost importance to the preservation of our national security."

Declaring that no nation provides better soldiers than the American, because "our men have the spirit and the stamina to defend their country at all costs," Pershing added:

"This was shown in 1917 and will be again, should the need arise.

"I believe that the training today has been rapid and that units which a few months ago were filled with recruits are now becoming well-knit, dependable organizations."

He congratulated national leaders "who did not wait for hostilities to begin before organizing a defense force."

Pan American To Open Plane Route to Africa

International News Service Staff Writer

Pan American Airways Co. yesterday was granted a certificate to operate a transport mail, passenger and cargo air service across the South Atlantic to Africa, via South America.

The new service will serve as an adjunct, officials said, to the bomber ferrying service which is planned for the same transoceanic route, to connect with another American service across Africa to the British forces in the Middle East.

The Civil Aeronautics Board approved Pan American Airways' application for the transport service after only one day of hearings, which were held in executive session, due to the "confidential" nature of the evidence submitted, from the standpoint of national defense.

President Roosevelt approved the granting of the certificate, the C. A. B. announced. The President originally asked Pan American Airways to undertake the new routes, the chief purpose of which was said to be to speed war aid to the British Imperial Forces in the Middle East.

The service will operate from Miami, Fla., via San Juan, Puerto Rico; Port of Spain, Trinidad; Belem, Brazil; Natal, Brazil; and thence across the South Atlantic to Leopoldville, Belgian Congo, where it is reported "adequate" air landing facilities are available.

Technically the certificate is a "temporary" one, though its rights were stipulated not to expire until five years hence, or six months after the Secretary of War determines continuance of the service is no longer required in national defense interests, whichever period first expires.

Property can be carried over the route, which, it was reported, will be serviced by clipper planes of the same type now used by Pan American Airways in its route to Lisbon, Portugal.

The ferrying service proper is a matter not yet formally acted upon. But it was understood that such items as airplane spare parts could be carried over the new route approved today.

Company personnel were to depart soon by clipper to set up headquarters in Leopoldville.

Mr. Roosevelt announced recently that American bombers would be flown by American pilots direct to the Middle Eastern British forces over the projected connecting routes to the Africa west coast, and thence to the Middle East, where it is reported the terminus may be Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Dobson Blanks Browns, 5-0, For Red Sox

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 12.—The troublesome St. Louis Brows ran into the strong right arm of young Joe Dobson today—and he blanked them, 5 to 0, for his sixth consecutive victory.

The Browns have bothered the second-place Red Sox throughout the season, winning 13 of the clubs' 21 contests.

Dobson gave them only five hits today as he achieved his eleventh triumph and first shutout. Moreover, Dobson drove in Boston's first two runs with a single after the Browns had passed catcher Frankie Pytlak intentionally to pitch to "six straight Joe."

Those runs came in the second inning when Johnny Niggeling, veteran Brownie knuckleball right-hander, yielded three of the 10 bases on balls he presented the Red Sox.

Boston added a marker in the sixth on Jim Tabor's second safe bunt, Pytlak's single off Johnny Barardino's glove and passes to Dobson and Dom DiMaggio, the second of which forced in Tabor.

Another walk for DiMaggio, Lou Finney's triple and Tabor's third hit tacked on the final two runs in the eighth.

Walked twice by Niggeling, sensational Ted Williams flied out twice and grounded out once as he went hitless for the first time since August 31 when Phil Marchildon of the Athletics passed him on three occasions and retired the .400 hitter on a foul fly.

Westward Ho Wins Young Bird Race

Westward Ho, speedy young pigeon from the loft of Owens and MacFarlane, won the third race of the current young bird series of the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club from Connellsville, Pa., an airline distance of 160 miles.

Averaging slightly under 50 miles per hour, the winner beat a good field of 162 birds from 22 local lofts, winning by a clear margin of 18 yards per minute. The birds were liberated at 8 a. m. and the winner was timed at 11:20 a. m.

you? Well, you clipped me from behind."

Well, Boss, we might as well make the rest of this about football. One of the Texas A. & M. players was telling me the other day about the time his club went to Philadelphia to play Temple U. At the half the coach told his players that Temple couldn't beat them. He said, "We'll sing our way to victory." And so the coach began singing "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You," and all the players joined in.

The team took the field still singing. To shorten a long story, Temple ran up a big score on Texas A. & M. On the train, going back to Texas, one player was particularly low in spirits. The coach noticed this and went to him and tried to console him. The dejected player looked up and said, "Coach, them Temple guys surely knocked the hell out of our choir, didn't they?" Hoya Tickets Go on Sale

Tickets for Georgetown's opening football game with Ole Miss the night of September 26 at Griffith Stadium are now on sale at the Hilltop athletic office, Rome Schwagel, graduate manager, announced yesterday.

All seats will be reserved, and priced at $1.65 and $2.20.

Season tickets for the Hoyas' four home games may be obtained at $4.95 for reserved seats and $6.95 for box seats.

Schwagel reported yesterday that there has been an unusually heavy demand for reservations for the opening game.

Member Tennis Play Opens at Columbia

Columbia Country Club will hold its annual tennis championships for members, starting at 2 o'clock today. Top seeding among the men was given Ricky Willis. Ranking in order behind him were Charley Channing, Reggie Cooper and Dick Mayfield.

Mrs. J. Cunningham got top ranking among the women, followed by Elinor Pinckel, Margaret Graham and Mrs. Edna Vest.

M. A. Net Doubles Scheduled Today At Edgemoor

The long-postponed doubles finals of the Middle Atlantic tennis championships will be played at 2:30 today at Edgemoor Club between top-seeded Barney Welsh and Hugh Lynch and second-ranked Don Leavens and David Johnsen. The Middle Atlantics were played at Columbia, but this match was shifted to Edgemoor by mutual consent because a club tournament is now in progress at Columbia.

Welsh and Lynch will be bidding for their second victory of the season over Johnsen and Leavens, who bowed to the favorites in a hard-fought five-set match in the City of Washington tournament.

first run in motion when he opened the first inning with a single to left. But he was caught stealing, and the run evolved, eventually, on a walk issued to Buddy Lewis. Travis' single to right moved Lewis to third, and after filling the bases with a walk to Vernon, Bagby served a wild pitch that scored Lewis.

That wild pitch, incidentally, the first throw to Ortiz, was perilously close to the big Cuban's head, and dark looks flashed from the batters' box to the pitching mound.

Wynn put another run in motion when he singled to right, with two out in the second, scoring eventually on Cramer's single to right, and in the third Bagby retired. Vernon beat out a bunt, Ortiz slugged his triple into the left field corner, and Bloodworth scored the Cuban with an infield out. When Evans singled, Bagby was through.

Montana Sinking Brings to Light Ship Romance

New York, Sept. 12 (INS).—Sinking of the American-owned steamship Montana Thursday off Greenland by a submarine brought to light tonight the secret marriage of Niels G. Aaare, 30, Danish second mate on the sunken ship, to Shirley Barrington, 24, British dancer, now living in New York.

Interviewed at her apartment, the pretty dancer told of a shipboard romance with the handsome Dane ten months ago on the Antonio out of Scotland and how they eloped on August 22 to Wilmington, Del.

"After a wonderful honeymoon of ten days, Niels sailed away again," she related. "I haven't heard from him since. I pray that he has been saved.

"This makes his second torpedoing. The other happened a year ago off Scotland. He and six others were adrift in a lifeboat for about a week before they were picked up. Two had died, one went crazy. My poor Niels—I hope he is all right."

Holiday Cuts Gain in D. C. Store Sales

Washington department store sales in the week ended September 6 were 13 per cent above those for the same 1940 week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night. The volume was 26 per cent under the previous week but this was due in large part to the Labor Day holiday in the September 6 week.

In the four weeks ended September 6 local store sales were 29 per cent above the like 1940 period.

For the Fifth Federal Reserve District store sales in the latest week were 14 per cent above the same 1940 week and for the four-week period were 29 per cent above 1940.

Nationally, store sales were 12 per cent improved in the week ended September 6 and 27 per cent heavier in the four-week period. The percentages of increase last week over the corresponding period a year ago were reported by Federal Reserve Districts as follows: Boston 14; New York 11; Philadelphia 12; Cleveland 12; Atlanta 15; Chicago 10; St. Louis 5; Kansas City 15; Dallas 23; San Francisco 17 per cent.

Retail Sales Gain Slows This Week

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Business activity showed only a mild increase this week, Dun & Bradstreet said today in its review.

"The rise from existing high levels was smaller than the increase which usually takes place in early September," the agency said. "Retailers in most instances traced the lagging gains to the exceptional rush last month, and to a moderate let-down in the pace of forward buying. Tardy deliveries and merchandise scarcities also slowed retail volume somewhat.

10 Million Gain In Building

Building permit valuations in Washington showed an increase of more than $10,000,000 in the first eight months this year, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. In a national survey San Diego, Calif., continued to show the largest proportionate increase.

Following is a comparison of permit valuations in the 20 leading cities:

D. C. Figures Are Cited

Figures on Washington's business boom were quoted by Fred A. Smith, president of the local Board of Trade, at a dinner meeting of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Addressing the E. J. Clark Agency in the Columbia Country Club, Thursday night, Mr. Smith pointed out that bank clearings had increased from $93,500,000 in January, 1938, to about $150,000,000 in June, 1941. Retail sales, he said, should total more than $600,000,000 here this year, according to the Federal Reserve index.

Home building in the first six months totaled about 11,000 units against 15,000 in the entire previous year. Bank deposits aggregate more than $450,000,000.

The 907,816 persons in the metropolitan area have more money to buy life insurance than ever before, Mr. Smith concluded.

Grave Suspension Problem

The suspension of men's pants is threatened, according to a summary by the Associated Press.

They can't have slide fasteners much longer; defense is taking all the metal and machines.

Can't have buttons; plastics and buttonhole machinery both run smack into priorities.

Ideas about safety and other pins clash with the priorities board's restrictions on brass.

Belts and suspenders, of rubber, leather or plastics, all call for materials in which defense supplies are scarce and restricted.

Food Index Again Spurt.

In the most general upward movement recorded since the outbreak of the war, 18 of the 31 commodities comprising the Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food price index, showed advances this week, as against only three showing declines. This brought the index to $3.34 as of September 9, a rise of six cents, or 1.7 per cent from the preceding figure of $3.28. It also widened the increase over the $2.31 for the corresponding 1940 week to $1.03, or 44.6 per cent.

Advances this week were registered for flour, wheat, corn, rye, oats, barley, lard, butter, cheese, cottonseed oil, cocoa, beans, peas, eggs, potatoes, prunes, hogs, and sheep. Lower quotations were listed only for sugar, rice and lambs.

The index represents the sum total of the price per pound of 31 foods in general use.

Realty Bonds Firm

Washington real estate bonds held generally firm in August, according to the Amott-Baker realty bond price average. Mayflower Hotel Co. first 5s of 1950 with an advance of 2½ points showed the only change among the four local realty issues carried in the index.

The Outlook

300 Large Corporations, Anticipating Jump, Boost Tax Reserves to 769 Million Dollars

By September 20, it is expected that both houses of Congress will have concurred on the details of the pending record-breaking tax bill.

In spite of the increases in the offing, revenue will doubtless be insufficient to fulfill the Morgenthau formula of meeting two-thirds of the Federal expenses. The plain significance of this fact is the clear implication that the emergency program should be financed in part through rigorous economies in the non defense expenditures of Government, national, State and local.

Demagogic politicians create an illusion by contrasting corporate and individual taxes. In the final analysis, the full burden falls on the 46 million or more self-supporting citizens.

Corporations are for the most part mere intermediaries, which act as tax collecting agencies for Government. They get the funds to meet their tax bills out of their gross receipts, which are provided by the customers who buy their goods and services. Taxes, like wages, goods and services purchased from others, depreciation, and the cost of capital, constitute a business cost, and it is the effort of all corporate management to recoup all costs, including taxes, in their selling prices.

As expected, corporate tax rates will be higher. The Senate bill imposes a 6 per cent surtax on the first $25,000 of corporation income taxes and 7 per cent on any amount over that figure. It leaves at 24 per cent the existing normal tax for larger corporations and puts the rates for those earning $25,000 a year or less at 15 per cent to 19 per cent.

It likewise boosts by 10 percentage points the corporation excess profits taxes.

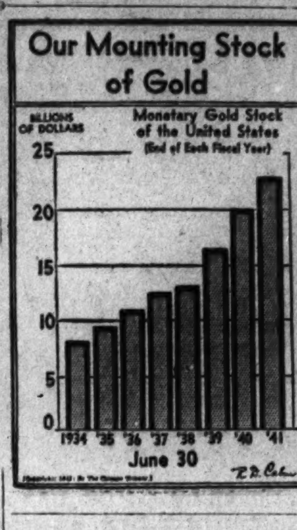
This does not take corporate management by surprise, for representative companies, anticipating a tax boost, increased their reserves for taxes reported in the first half of this year. For example, 300 larger companies report that Federal income and excess profits tax reserves for the first half of the year reached $769,000,000, amounting to more than three times the $215,000,000 reserves provided a year ago. Net income before taxes in the first six months reached $1,529,000,000, compared with $844,000,000 last year. Thus, the expected tax increase of these companies absorbed 81 per cent of the net profit before taxes.

This fact throws light on the stock market calm in recent months in the face of the armament boom which brought business volume to an unprecedented peak.

The overall picture indicates that, though corporations showed an increase in net profits over the first half of 1940, when volume was substantially lower, they reveal relatively little gain over the profit showing in the second half of 1940. Thus, the political slogan of "no wartime millionaires" is being translated into action.

Likewise, a computation by the Federal Bank of New York discloses that, though net profits during the second quarter of this year of 376 industrial and mercantile corporations, were about one-fourth larger than a year ago, they were actually slightly smaller than in the second quarter of 1937 when the level of industrial activity was well below that of the second quarter this year.

A survey of 89 companies reporting fuller data discloses that provision for corporate taxes in the first half of this year amounted to 54 per cent of net income before taxes, against 26 per cent a year earlier.



Buick Prices Average 12% Higher for '42

By the Associated Press

Flint, Mich., Sept. 12.—Buick division of General Motors Corporation announced its 1942 model price creases averaging by model groups schedules today, embracing increases from 8.9 per cent to 15.9 per cent over last year.

The new price schedules ranges from $1046 for the business coupe in the 118-inch wheelbase Series 40 Special and $1077 for the comparable model in the 121-inch wheelbase Series 40 Special to $2667 for the limousine in the 139-inch wheelbase Series 90 Limited group.

This compares with $915, $935 and $2465 for the same models last year.

The average increase in the four-door sedan models in the series 60 specail of its volume last year was $138 or 12.3 per cent.

The prices, given as factory delivered at Flint, include present Federal excise taxes, but not state and local taxes, where assessed.

Hardware Trade Hit by Shortages

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Shortages of raw materials, particularly metals, have become increasingly troublesome to hardware manufacturers, delaying deliveries and piling up unfilled orders, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today.

A survey of the industry by the credit reporting firm showed, however, that sales and production still were at peak levels. In the last six months sales by hardware manufacturers have average more than 50 per cent greater than the same period of 1940.

Output of machine tools by the hardware industry, which reached record proportions in 1940, has been expanded 70 per cent this year through plant expansions and subcontracting, Dun & Bradstreet said.

Power Output Drop Less Than Seasonal

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Reflecting the Labor Day holiday electric power production declined for the week ended September 6 to 3,095,746,000 kilowatt hours, a drop of 4 per cent from 3,223,609,000 in the preceding week, the Edison Electric Institute reported.

The current week's output compared with 2,591,957,000 in the similar period a year ago.

The decline in output was less than seasonally expected and the Associated Press index of electric power production advanced to 149.0 from 148.2 the previous week. A year ago the figure stood at 129.0 the index, adjusted for seasonal and lon-term trend, is based on 1929-30 production as 100.

Sugar Futures

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—World sugar futures advanced to a new high today but profit taking forced quotations down to a close unchanged to 1½ points lower. Sales totaled 20,200 tons.

Domestic futures lost 1 to 4 points on sales of 550 tons.

A general reduction of 1-10 of a cent a pound in offerings of refined sugar to 5.25 cents brought no reports of new business but put prices on a comparable basis with the 5.50-cent ceiling.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Cotton futures soared to 12-year highs today, then reacted sharply and closed only 4 to 11 points higher.

Profit taking and reports that the Government was studying inflation controls stimulated the downward movement.

The early rise carried the July delivery to 18.85 cents a pound, the best since October 31, 1929.

Back of the advance was a report from the gulf that a storm was moving toward the cotton belt and a statement from Senate farm leaders that cotton should be bringing 30 cents a pound. Mill, trade, speculative and Southern buying were evident in the market.

Innovations in Defense Work Seen Spur to Auto Evolution

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Participation of the automobile industry in the national defense program will lead to greatly improved automobiles in the future, George W. Mason, president of the Nash-Kelvinator Corporation, said today.

Development of new materials, new construction principles and construction improvements probably will begin immediately in the automobile industry as a result of its vast amount of work in manufacturing aircraft, airplane motors and armament in general, he said.

Mason was here for a press preview of the 1942 Nash motor cars and a convention of 3500 Nash salesmen and distributors from throughout the Nation.

Nash-Kelvinator has one hundred million dollars in Government defense contracts, he said, and is building precision equipment for airplane propellor assemblies and essential parts for Pratt & Whitney airplane engines.

Mason also said the company was one of the smaller automobile concerns which succeeded in obtaining sufficient priorities preference to assure maintenance of production schedules. A company spokesman said the prospective output for the 1942 model year was 57,000 units.

The new motor cars, in three series of five models each, were respendent in chrome trim and fittings which a spokesman wryly said "won't be on the cars the next year," due to the Government demand for chrome metal.

Massive front treatment and the flaring doors concealing running boards featured the new models, and Nash again is streasing the "600" or low priced six cylinder car.

Commodities Slump After Early Upturn

By the Associated Press

Commodity futures prices jumped at the opening of trading yesterday in reaction to President Roosevelt's "shoot-on-sight" speech, then lost ground in a flurry of profit taking and selling influenced by reports of coming Federal brakes on inflation.

The break occurred only after many quotations reached record levels. Soybeans set an all-time high, cottonseed oil touched the best in 15 years, cotton the highest in 12 years and oats in 11 years.

Soybeans, recently most active of the Chicago grain futures, swung as widely as 9¾ cents a bushel, finishing 1½ to 3¼ cents under the previous close. Wheat lost ⅝ to ⅞ cent a bushel, and corn, ⅝ to 1⅛ cents. Hogs were steady well under recent highs. Steers were about unchanged and spring lambs were 25 cents a hundredweight lower.

New York cotton futures swept up as much as $2.25 a bale early in the day but finished only 20 to 55 cents a bale above the previous close.

Cottonseed oil gained about 1-5 of a cent a pound after similar price movements. Other gainers included wool tops, .3 to .6 of a cent a pound higher, and Rio coffee up .16 to .22 of a cent a pound.

World sugar futures were unchanged to a shade lower.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot prices dropped to 93.92 per cent of the 1926 average from 94.03 the day before.

U. S. Gold Imports Drop in August

By the Associated Press

Gold imports totaled $36,979,448 in August, a decrease of $175,000 from July and $315,000,000 below the receipts in August a year ago.

The Commerce Department, reporting these figures yesterday, said the principal shipments last month were $10,845,000 from Canada, $6,742,000 from Australia and $5,098,000 from the Philippines.

Silver imports totaled $3,560,942, which was a decrease of $1,125,114 from July. The principal sellers of silver were Mexico, which sent in $2,091,000, and Canada, with $575,868.

Gold held under earmark for foreign accounts increased by $31,202,090 last month to $1,975,715,785.

Pathe Film Calls Meeting to Vote On Dissolution

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—A special meeting of stockholders of Pathe Film Corp. was announced for October 1 to consider sale of its assets and dissolution.

Since early in 1939 the company has been a holding concern whose principal asset was 3,500 shares of du Pont Film Manufacturing Corp., to which, at that time, it transferred its motion picture developing and printing business.

Under the proposed plan, holders of the 7,469 shares of Pathe preferred would receive $100 a share in cash and holders of the 585,095 shares of common would receive approximately one common share of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., parent of du Pont Film, for each 10.3 shares of Pathe.

Pathe common holders also would be entitled to share, after a lapse of four years, in any available cash after the satisfaction of all Pathe's liabilities. The preferred stockholders would be paid out of cash on hand and dividends to be received from du Pont Film.

U. S. Rubber Imports Heaviest on Record

By the Associated Press

Crude rubber imports during August amounted to 105,456 long tons, the highest monthly total on record, the Commerce Department said yesterday.

The Government stock piles of rubber increased by 9707 tons during August, bringing the total to 228,551 long tons.

The August imports were valued at $45,083,933, an average of 19.09 cents a pound, which was one-half cent more than the July average and 1½ cents more than the price a year ago.

Week's Auto Output Jumps to 53,165

Detroit, Sept. 12 (AP).—Ward's reports, Inc., estimated today that car and truck production this week would total 53,165 units, the best level of the new model season to date. The figures compare with 32,940 units last week and 63,240 last year at this time.

The survey said operations would continue in steady advance through September.

Cold Storage Of U. S. Foods Rises Sharply

By the Associated Press

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that stocks of all major groups of perishable food commodities held in cold storage warehouses and meat packing plants on September 1, with the exception of shell eggs, were in excess of those on hand a year ago and the five-year (1936-'40) average.

Creamery butter holdings of 200,529,000 pounds were the largest September 1 stocks on record with the exception of 1938, exceeding those of a year earlier by 66,000,000 pounds, or 49 per cent.

Stocks of all varieties of cheese, totaling 185,000,000 pounds, were 24 per cent greater than a year ago.

Shell Eggs Off

Shell egg holdings showed a 15 per cent decrease from a year ago, but frozen egg stocks were higher by 33 per cent. The totoal case equivalent of both shell and frozen eggs was 11,676,000 cases, or nearly 2.5 per cent above stocks of a year ago.

Frozen poultry holdings, totaling slightly more than 85,000,000 pounds, were 3,000,000 pounds heavier than a year ago.

Frozen and cured beef stocks totaled 67,477,000 pounds, compared with 35,663,000 pounds a year ago. Stocks of frozen and cured pork totaled 482,992,000 pounds, compared with 417,564,000 a year ago.

Lard stocks were reported at 282,875,000 pounds, compared with 272,290,000 last year.

Compared with the five-year average for September 1, creamery butter stocks advanced 33 per cent, cheese was 41 per cent higher, all eggs increased 7 per cent, poultry was nearly 20 per cent greater, beef was up 59 per cent, pork increased 27 per cent and lard stocks were 34 per cent greater than the average.

Frozen fruit holdings, totaling approximately 211,000,000 pounds, were 27 per cent greater than those of a year ago. Frozen vegetable stocks were about 83,500,000 pounds, or 6.5 per cent, above holdings of a year ago.

Canned Fruit Shortage Unlikely

San Francisco, Sept. 12 (AP).—California canners have sold more fruit this year before finishing packing than ever in their history. Like canners in the Pacific Northwest, they are completing the season with only a dribble of unsold canned peaches, pears, apricots and fruit cocktail.

But the packers see no likelihood of any shortage, such as some observers have suggested.

Observers were not much impressed by the big buying by the Army, Navy and Federal Surplus Marketing Administration. The combined purchases, known and estimated, run far under the exports of last year.

Last year California packed about 19,500,000 cases of fruits. Exports took 3,500,000, leaving sixteen million for domestic consumers.

This year the estimates run around 24,500,000 cases for the yet-uncompleted pack. The Army and Navy have bought about 1,443,000 cases. The FSMA may get 300,000, though it has said it wants a lot more. Add a million cases for this season's dwindling exports, and there will be left more than twenty-one million cases for domestic consumers.

Sea Defense Warning Fails to Upset Calm Of Stock Market; Prices Move Slightly Ahead

New York, Sept. 12.—Financial markets generally kept their feet on the ground today in the face of the strong sea-defense warning hurled at the Axis powers by the President.

Stocks pushed up at the start on fair activity but the usual weekend adjustment of accounts trimmed best quotations at the close and negligible minus signs were plentiful.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks retained a net gain of .1 of a point at 43.4, its second advance since September 2. Dealings dwindled appreciably after midday and transfers totaled 519,170 shares compared with 689,250 the day before.

Mr. Roosevelt's "shoot-on-sight" decree if German or Italian raiders are found in waters vital to American defense was pretty well in line with Wall Street expectations, brokers said, and consequently was not particularly disturbing to speculative contingents.

Russian claims of further successes in withstanding the Nazis was offset to some extent as a bullish factor by Berlin's announcement of sinking a number of ships in a north Atlantic convoy. Continued hopes of a Washington-Tokyo accord served as a buying prop and business developments were deemed moderately constructive.

Among stocks small fractional improvement was the rule but there were a few wider swings. J. I. Case went into new high ground with a gain of 3¾ points and advances of 1 or so were held by Deere, Eastman Kodak, Philip Morris and Colorado Fuel & Iron.

Up a shade were General Motors, American Telephone, Western Union, Chesapeake & Ohio, Santa Fe, Pepsi-Cola, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and Sperry.

In the losing column were Chrysler, Republic Steel, New York Central, United States Rubber, Anaconda, Texas Corporation, Westinghouse, Boeing and Union Carbide.

In a spotty Curb plus signs were held by Aluminum Ltd., Auburn Central Mfg., International Petroleum, Pantepec, Mesabi Iron and N. J. Zinc. Declines were posted for Bell Aircraft, Gulf Oil, Glen Alden Coal and Singer Mfg. Turnover here approximated 138,000 shares versus 140,000 Thursday.

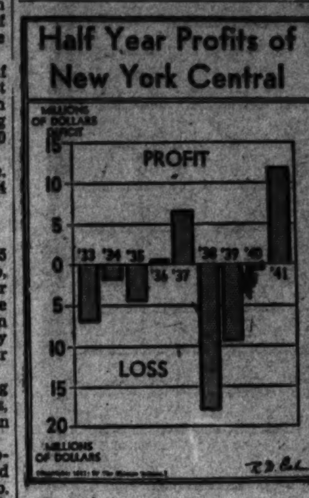
Narrow changes and an irregular trend ruled in the bond market today. The recently buoyant foreign dollar division pointed mostly higher but gains were small compared with the strong advances earlier in the week; domestic corporates moved only small fractions either way and trading was all but at a standstill in U. S. Governments.

Total transfers dropped to $5,411,450, par value, from $7,451,200 on Thursday. The Associated Press average of 10 foreign bonds moved up .1 of a point to 49.8, a new high for the year, but all other groups were unchanged.

Corporate bonds ending a trifle higher included Firestone Tire 3s at 98½, Consolidated Oil 3½s at 106, American Telephone 3¼s at 108½, Pere Marquette 4½s at 62¾ and New York Central 5s at 58½.

Japanese bonds added 1 to 2 points to recent advances. Higher issues included Japan 5½s, Taiwan Electric Power 5½s, Tokyo City 5½s and Yokohama 6s. Poland 6s and Norway 4½s were among others gaining moderately.

Only three of the 30-odd Government issues listed on the stock exchange were traded and price changes were insignificant. There was more activity over the counter but again changes were small either way.



Arms Orders Of G. M. Leap To 1.2 Billion

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 12.—Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of General Motors Corp., in a letter to stockholders said today his company's defense orders totaled $1,200,000,000, of which $825,500,000 was airplane engines, propellers, parts and equipment.

Reviewing the huge motor company's defense work, Sloan said actual deliveries of defense materials during the first half of 1941 totaled $131,800,000, and estimated deliveries for the second half would reach $275,000,000.

War material production has made necessary construction of 14 new plants, Sloan said, pointing out that 70 per cent of the orders now on hand are for products other than those normally made by General Motors.

In addition to the new plants, 13 others have been expanded and 26 existing buildings reequipped for defense work.

He listed among orders machine guns, cannon, gun housings and controls, shells, cartridge cases and fuses, Diesel engines, trucks and transport equipment, tank parts and "other items of a technical and confidential nature."

Living Costs Mount In 52 of 60 Cities

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—A rise in living costs in 52 out of 60 cities during August was reported today by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The research organization found gains ranged from as low as .1 of 1 per cent in Chicago, New Haven and Spokane, to as high as 1.6 per cent in Dallas. The average was .7 of 1 per cent.

In one of the 60 cities surveyed, St. Louis, average costs did not change. In seven other, including Detroit and Akron, they declined slightly.

Cottonseed Output Gains

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that cottonseed crushed during August totaled 107,498 tons, compared with 79,580 tons in August last year. Cottonseed on hand at mills August 31 totaled 129,367 tons, compared with 87,210 tons a year ago.

A. T. & T. Profit $100,572,018 For 7 Months

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. reports to the Federal Communications Commission net income of $100,572,018 for the seven months ended July 31, against $91,592,025 in the like 1940 period. Operating gross for the seven months was $84,512,277, against $63,958,871, while net operating income was $19,281,605, against $10,823,304.

The apparent inconsistency between operating gross and net results from the fact that the major source of A. T. & T. income is derived from dividends paid by its subsidiaries. These dividends are included usually in March, June, September and December, and for that reason the amount reported for any month for net income does not reflect the rate of earnings of the company for that month.

Small (17%) Gain In Bank Clearings

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Bank clearings in major cities in the week ended Wednesday totaled $5,689,863,000, an increase of 17.8 per cent over $4,831,423,000 in the comparable week of 1940, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. The increase over a year ago was the smallest in 10 weeks.

The total was $22,250,000 better than in the preceding week which had only five business days due to the Labor Day holiday.

Earnings Reports

International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation and certain subsidiaries in a preliminary statement net income for the first half of 1941 of $73,760 compared with net loss of $126,977 in the like 1940 period. The report did not include operations of German subsidiaries, International Standard Electric Corporation, American Cable and Radio Corporation, subsidiaries of Spanish Telephone Co., and Mexican subsidiaries.

Montgomery Ward & Co. reported net profit for the six months ended July 31 of $7,317,038, or $1.27 per share of common stock after preferred dividend requirements, compared with an adjusted net profit of $6,945,454, or $1.58 per common share, for the corresponding 1940 period. The 1941 net profit, the statement said, was after income and excess profits taxes based on the rates provided for in the bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

Pullman Co., sleeping car subsidiary of Pullman Incorporated, reported net income for July of $41,237, compared with $285,913 in July, 1940. For the seven months ended July 31 net income was $1,555,721 compared with $1,432,162 for the corresponding period of 1940.

Colorado Fuel and Iron Corporation reported $2,288,317.81 net income for the fiscal year ended June 30, a gain of $543,448.49 over the $1,744,869.32 reported in the previous fiscal year.

Colorado Fuel and Iron Corporation and subsidiaries reported net profit for the fiscal year ended June 30 of $2,288,318, or $4.06 a share, compared with $1,744,869, or $3.10 a share, in the preceding year.

Federated Department Stores, Inc., and subsidiaries reported net profit for the six months ended July 31 of $829,737 compared with $59,776 in the like 1940 period.

Kresge Department Stores, Inc., and wholly owned subsidiaries reported net profit for the six months ended August 2 of $34,098 compared with $11,925 in the like 1940 period.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 12 (AP).—The grain price rise was halted by a swelling volume of profit-taking sales today but only after new high quotations for the past several years were posted on Board of Trade blackboards. Prices showed net losses at the close.

Early buying, inspired principally by the President's speech, carried grains 1 to almost 2 cents higher, with wheat leading. Wheat and deferred corn futures touched new four-year peaks. May deliveries at 1.29¾ and 91½, respectively. Oats were the highest since 1934 and within a cent of equalling the best futures market price in 11 years, with May at a top of 57½. Soybeans, rising as much as 5 cents, established all-time highs, May reaching 2.02.

Later, profit-taking increased and traders also noted the fact that Treasury and Federal Reserve officials have been busily preparing a program designed to check inflation. Wheat fell almost 3 cents from early highs and was more than a cent below yesterday's close at one stage. Final prices were ⅛ to ⅞ lower than yesterday, September 1.19, December 1.23@1.22⅞.

Arms Race Easy for U. S., Biggers Says

By the United Press

London, Sept. 12.—Adolf Hitler selected something "right up America's alley" when he decided on mechanized warfare, John D. Biggers, American representative in charge of lend-lease coordination, said today.

Speaking at a press conference after his recent arrival here, Biggers admitted he was aware of British dissatisfaction over American production, but said the first major results of overseas output would be completed by December and at that time the new American program will be underway.

"You (Britain) can make no mistake in counting on United States production as soon as we are geared for the job," Biggers said. "The United States and Britain surely will outproduce the Axis powers by mid-1943, but we must try to shorten that time."

Biggers pledged that the United States would produce one ship daily by the middle of next year.

Biggers said that American production of machine tools in 1941 will exceed 200 million dollars (800 million dollars) as compared to a previous peak of about 50 million dollars (200 million dollars).

Washington is to have a distinguished radio visitor tomorrow.

The Silver Theater summer show, the Columbia Broadcasting System feature which has been playing host to visitors all season in one of C. B. S.'s Manhattan playhouses, is doing some visiting on its own account and will be put on from the auditorium of the Wardman Park Hotel through the facilities of WJSV.

The show is headed by Columnist Ed Sullivan, and includes Will Bradley and his orchestra, with Terry Allen and Lynn Gardner. And the guest of the week is to be Marian Gange, the swing guitarist.

Larry Adler, the young gentleman who can make a harmonica sound something like a symphony orchestra, is to be the guest on "The Pause That Refreshes" show at 7 Sunday over WJSV. He's to play the second Hungarian Rhapsody—try that on your harmonica—and "Estrellita."

Larry is a musician who started at the top. He was a guest on several of RudyVallee's programs when he was all of 14. After that he appeared several times with Eddie Cantor and when he was 16 he appeared on Broadway with Marilyn Miller and the Astaires in "Smiles."

It must be confessed that Mr. Adler is something of a blowhard. He wears out the reed of a harmonica after about two hours of playing.

The Post Radio Highlights

4:30 p. m., WRC—The Narragansett Special, New England's $25,000 horserace, starring Whirlaway, War Relic, Foxbrough, Fenelon, Big Pebble, Attention and Andy K. Jack McCarthy will cover for the radio audience.

8:30, WOL—Beloved Mme. Lotte Lehmann is guest soloist for the Treasury program, "America Preferred." She sings Wien du Stadt Meiner Traume, Sieczynski, Brahms' Die Mainacht, and a group of three songs by Hugo Wolf.

9:15, WOL—Rainbow Division veterans, heroes on St. Mihiel, now attending the American Legion convention in Chicago, visit the Chicagoland Hour. Young Heinzi Weber, son of the program's stars, Marion Claire and Henry Weber, makes his radio debut, playing a piano duet of Haydn's "Kinder Concerto" with his father.

Contract Bridge

One way to learn and improve without fear of reproach is to work out problem hands, answer quiz questions. There are two offered today, both two on bidding.

1. Sitting North, you hold these cards:

♠J642
◇10963
♣765

The bidding has gone:

East	South	West	North
1♠	Dble	Pass	?

What call do you make?

2. Sitting North, you hold these cards:

♠AK1072
◇62

The bidding has gone:

West	North	East	South
1♡	?	—	—

Answers to Quiz

1. South's hand may contain only one good major suit, hearts, so North's best response with a very weak holding is one diamond. This call gives his partner a chance to rescue himself in hearts at the one-level. A one-spade bid in response to the take-out double forces South to rescue himself at the two-level.

2. North's most profitable call appears to be two spades. If he doubles for take-outs, his partner's response will probably be two clubs. If North then says two spades, South may pass through holding heart support while a leap to three spades forces South to game, lacking help for either major suit.

The jump overcall, on the other hand, shows a good spade suit and a strong hand. It offers the bidder a chance to show both suits, since the partner is almost bound to respond once; whereas, a take-out double might allow the showing of only one.

Some Schools Face Possibility Of Two Shifts

Possibility that some Benning and Anacostia public schools may have to operate on double shifts because of the large number of children brought to those areas by defense work will be checked up through early registration next week.

The number to enroll could not be predicted by school officials yesterday but a suggestion will come following registrations planned to begin Monday. Registration in other areas will be started on Friday.

From 9 to 12

"For the convenience of parents and to facilitate the opening of schools in those areas where extensive housing projects have been developed for hundreds of defense workers new to the city, registration will begin Monday (15) and with the exception of Friday will continue every morning from 9 to 12 o'clock during the week until Saturday, 20th," it was announced by Robert L. Haycock, acting superintnedent of schools. The registration on Friday will be held from 4 to 5 o'clock.

Haycock advised parents to register their children early, "thus avoiding the great rush and confusion that will probably occur on the opening school day, Monday, 22."

District school laws require applicants to present birth and vaccination certificates. Transfer cards or pupil report cards of last year are essential for grade placement, it was reminded.

Where to Register

Registrations will be held at buildings, as follows:

Benning School, Benning Road, Foote Street and Minnesota Avenue Northeast; Orr School, Twenty-second and Prout Streets Southeast; Stanton School, Hamilton and Good Hope Roads Southeast; Congress Heights School, Nichols Avenue, between Fifth Street and Congress Road, Southeast; Ketcham School, Fifteenth and U Streets, Southeast, and Garfield School, Alabama Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street Southeast.

Sally's Fans Will Miss Her

SALLY RAND, fans or no fans, can't attend the regular Saturday night Army dance in St. Louis tonight. Announcement that she would appear at the party brought protests from representatives of Catholic Community Service on the USO committee supervising the St. Louis service men's center. "She wasn't going to do a fan dance," said Director W. N. Goodall. "It makes no difference whether she was going to dance or not," replied the Rev. George A. Lodes. "The fact she was to appear was enough for me."
